Stories of 'Boys for Sale'

By Chas. de Young Thieriot

Dan was born in Illinois 19 years ago. He told of being molested by adults at various times in the first seven years of his life.

"Maybe," he said, "all this had something to do with the way I am."

Dan has developed a smile that is almost serene: it can make strangers believe he loves life. He doesn't.

SMILE

Crossing Market Street the other night, he ignored the red traffic light and walked into the path of a Muni bus and a taxicab. Didn't he realize he could be killed that way?

"It doesn't make any difference," he said, issuing a smile as placid as Buddha's.

His parents live near San Jose. They know he is "gay," he said, but he never told them he hustles—last month.

he made a frank home. "I saved $500 so I could go see my folks," he said, and the film of serenity dropped from his face. He looked much like any disappo-

SHAME
"My mother and father are shamed of me," he said.
When I phoned them I was doming home; they said wear something decent or I don't come in looking like

I went down there wear-

Diana's Troubles

New Arrest of Sex Changeling

By Bob Robertson

Diana Summers (nee Robert) helpfully appeared at the Hall of Justice yesterday for a jury trial on the charge of impersonating a female.

The trial never made the crowded Municipal Court calendar, but Diana (as he insists upon being called) made news nonetheless.

By getting arrested for going into the women's john.

"I'm a perfectionist," Diana sobbed later in the men's section of City Prison.

"I went in there just to see how I looked."

MASCARA

Red-eyed, mascara running and black bouffant hair-do in disarray, he admittedly didn't look too good now.

"After all," he said with a fluttering gesture toward his shaving boshom and tight, beige Capri pants, "I'd look pretty silly going into the other one, wouldn't I?"

It was a sad come down from Diana's last big public appearance—at a press conference in attorney Melvin Belli's office last month.

The atmosphere then was much happier as Diana told how he had lived for eight years as a woman, working as a cocktail waitress and cigarette girl in New York and Los Angeles, and how he planned now to travel to Casablanca for an operation that would effect the final sexual alteration.

ARREST

Yesterday Diana insisted his difficulties stem entirely from harassment by the San Francisco undercover agent who arrested him last July for prostitution.

The agent picked him up in a botel bar, Diana said, and they went up to a room together.

"He's a good-looking guy," Diana said, "so I didn't mind."

But, Diana said, the agent whipped out his credentials and made his arrest.

Diana—who claims to have spent several thousand dollars for sex alteration treatments—said he was booked in the female section of City Prison and underwent a strip-search by police matron.

Diana said that it was not until he admitted that he was "technically" a man that police were any the wiser.

"Now that guy is so mad, he gets an awful razzing from the other cops, you know—that he follows me around and arrests me every time I come out of my apartment," Diana said.

The undercover agent who asked not to be named for reasons of future effectiveness—corroborated all of Diana's story except the part about "harassment."

But each of the three times he arrested Diana, he said—was sheer professional coincidence.

Diana's arrest yesterday as she entered the women's restroom in the basement of the Hall of Justice resulted from his being recognized by a court bailiff.

"There was definitely no harassment," the vice squadman said.

Diana still saw it differently.

"My bad luck comes from the narrow-mindedness of everyone who has a skeleton in his own closet," he said, "but I've never gone through it anywhere as I have in San Francisco.

"For a city that's half full of homosexuals, this is ridiculous! Me they shoot at!"
A Flurry
In Turnabout
Sex Case

The troubled career of San Francisco man who would be a woman—too
some more dire turnings yes-mitter's but leveled off, after a fashion, in the end.

Arrested Monday for using a women's restroom at the Hall of Justice, Heller failed to appear yesterday morning for arraignment.

Municipal Judge Donald B.
Constine promptly issued a bench warrant for his arrest ordered forfeiture of his $10 bail.

MISTAKE
But, it turned out, it was all an innocent mistake.

Informed by telephone by a newspaper reporter of Constine's actions, Heller's attor-ey, Ron Dondoc, expressed horror, explaining that neither he nor Heller were aware of the scheduled appearance.

By 4 p.m., Dondoc had rounded up Heller and made it to Judge Constine's courtroom.

Heller wore the same costtume as he had the day before—skin-tight beige Capri pants, tight sweater, long black leather topcoat and flats. But, looking distraught and lacking mascara and his-strip and his bountiful hairdo in disarray, he did not present his usual striking figure.

Judge Constine, over the grumblings of a deputy district attorney, accepted Bondoc's plea of ignorance and allowed Heller to plead not guilty to the charge of ovraging public decency and to remain free on bail.

DATE
Constine set March 18 as the day on which Heller's trial date will be set. But, first, Heller must appear for trial today on the charge that brought him to the Hall of Justice Monday in the first place.

That one, also outraging public decency, was specifically for impersonating a female.

It appeared that Heller's projected trip to Casablanca for an operation to end the need for deception would be somewhat delayed.
Big He-She Law Problem

By Bob Robertson

He displayed open provocation only during the dialogue between the attorney and the judge in making extraordinary objections to the admission of evidence.

That was according to the office of John Johnston, who insisted the defendant, appearing as a woman, had the genitalia of a man, but with breasts and hips.

Officer Bailey, who was present, said he saw the defendant wearing a woman's clothing and a wig.

Johnston testified that he was the victim of sexual assault by the defendant in the Crown Room's glass-walled elevator. He said the defendant had approached him and said, "I'm a man, not a woman.

The trial was recessed until this morning.

□ Being Investigated
Jurors' Verdict

By Bob Robertson

A Municipal Court jury of six men and six women yesterday found Robert Heller not guilty of criminal impersonation in presenting himself to the world as Diana Summers.

Heller, clad in the same stylish, female costume in which he was arrested on February 2, placed his face in his hands and wept quietly, then silently mouthed his gratitude to the jury.

Judge Elston C. Lawless, however, was not so pleased.

After dismissing the jury from the court room, he publicly announced, "For the first time in its life, the court does not thank the jury for its services."

"Oh, that was so catty of him," responded Heller later.

DELIBERATION

The jury reached its verdict in the extraordinary case at 5:22 p.m., three hours almost to the minute that the case was handed over to its deliberations.

Heller was arrested about 2 a.m. on February 2, as he left the Crown Room of the Fairmont Hotel in the company of a well-dressed, middle-aged man.

The man was allowed to leave without ever identifying himself, but, according to officers present during the trial, he had been completely taken in by his companion's sexual portrayal.

CHARGE

Heller was charged, specifically, that he "did willfully and without the intention of accomplishing any unlawful purpose, personally credit himself with the identity of another person other than himself, a female.

The jury, for reasons not explained, did not agree.

Heller made his appearance in court yesterday wearing a black wig, a long coat, a black headpiece, black gloves and a low-cut, black, sequined gown, which bared a broad expanse of back and arms and a distinct cleavage.

He shook his bouffant hair vigorously from side to side as Vice Squad Officer Howard Bailey testified he saw Heller kiss the unidentified man on the lips while they were still in the Crown Room.

"And he behaved himself unashamedly and sobbed openly throughout the entire trial," Assistant District Attorney Art Dempsey described him as an ordinary transvestite guilty of "lawless and licentious" behavior.

Defense attorney Ronald Bondoc called him a person who is trying to be a man as hard as she can."

Prosecutor Dempsey hammered away on the theme that there was no law, and that the law states that one person who personifies another is guilty of a misdemeanor.

He defended the rationality of the law, also, saying that a man wearing women's clothes "creates an explosive situation."

KISSING

"And he did commit a lewd act," Dempsey insisted, "in publicly kissing this other man."

Defense attorney Bondoc countered that the only intention of disclosing that Heller is "technically" a man, and thereby creating a potentially explosive situation, belonged to the arresting officers.

Legal Trend on Right of Privacy

A university of California professor raised some intriguing questions last week about the right of privacy—questions ranging from the bedroom to the laboratory.

In today's crowded world, privacy is becoming more important than ever before, and Dr. Jesse L. Carr declared during the last of a series of acuity "Right to Know" lectures on the Berkeley campus.

Dr. Carr, who is clinical professor of pathology and legal medicine at the UC Medical Center here, said this area of legal area of private rights is in the midst of sweeping change with some aspects of the question bordering on the revolutionary.

HOMOSEXUALS

"The right of privacy of married persons in their own homes is well established," he noted, "but what about those who aren't married—homosexuals?"

He said it was a question to ask when behavior patterns of individuals should be a basis for permitting legal invasion of the activities of private individuals in their own homes.

"I hold no brief for the obnoxious homosexual," Dr. Carr stressed, but explained that possibly those whose lives were expressed privately and quietly might be best left to their own devices.

"It's certainly moving in that direction," he said.

Even more portentous questions were seen in the area of medical experimentation on humans.

ORGANS

While doctors may have some nebulous right to perform human experiments for the good of mankind, to do so even with the consent of the subject when the experiment is not fully explained "is a rank violation of the rights of patients," Dr. Carr declared.

Medical advances also have created a tricky situation in the area of organ transplants, he added.

When a kidney is given to one person from another, for example, does the donor release all rights to it? Can he have it back? Must he guarantee that the donated kidney is healthy?

Such questions have and will be coming up again in the courts and among legal thinkers in the years ahead, requiring a re-evaluation of many traditional beliefs, he said.
Nationwide Drive

Homosexuals Ask
For Military Duty

Los Angeles

A national campaign to end the exclusion of homosexuals from the Armed Forces was set in motion here last week. The campaign will end with parades and demonstrations in major cities on Armed Forces Day, May 21.

(In San Francisco, spokesmen for homosexual organizations said tentative plans were "in the talking stage.""

The organization of homosexuals staging the campaign reports there are 32 million homosexuals in the nation, most of whom would be eager to fight for their country. The organization called the committee for Fight Exclusion of Homosexuals from the Armed Forces, argued that an end to the ban would ease the shortage of manpower available for service in Vietnam.

MILITANCY

Donald Slater, a spokesman for the committee, which is based here, said the drive represents the first manifestation of a new militancy in "the homosexual movement."

The campaign, he said, grew out of a convention of homosexual organizations held February 19-20 in Kansas City. The convention which was formally called the National Planning Conference of Homosexual Or-

The Church and The Homosexual

San Francisco's Council on Religion and the Homosexual, founded two years ago by a group of Protestant clergymen, got its first report from an organized church yesterday.

The Board for Homeland Ministries, of the United Church of Christ, voted here yesterday to contribute $1500, be matched by another $400 from the Northern California Conference of the denomination.

Concluding its annual meeting here, the board yesterday also approved support for establishment of an interdenominational Urban Training Center in San Francisco and West Coast ministers and men, and another similar center in Minnesota. The board also approved support for an ecumenical parish in North Oakland involving all churches in the area.

The proposed urban center will require its clergy and lay students to live and work in depressed areas of the city. Tentative budget for the project for 1966 is $70,000 and will be financed from denominational church contributions.

The North Oakland (interdenominational) Christian Center will be directed by a non-profit corporation to which support already has been pledged by Shattuck Avenue Methodist Church, Faith Presbyterian Church, Church of the Good Shepherd (Baptist) and Livermore Presbyterian Church. A community worker will be hired first.

RESPONSIBILITY

"It is the first real attempt to try to draw the churches into a real responsibility for the homosexual as a person, as a human being," said Canon Robert W. Cromey of St. Aidan's Episcopal Church here, one of the leaders of the Council.

The Council's current president is the Reverend Clay Colwell, of the United Church of Christ.

Although no church has contributed to the Council's financing, the Glide Foundation did provide office space, and the Reverend Ted Mullen, of the Foundation, was the Council's president last year.

The Council reported publicly last September 24 that its intensive study showed that contrary to public opinion, homosexuals "are not abnormal, neurotic, dangerous people," nor are they "inherently more criminal either in intent or actions than their heterosexual counterparts."

A MINISTER

Another unusual religious project that received support from the United Church of Christ's Board for Homeland Ministries yesterday was providing a non-denominational "shock-proof" minister for Hawaii's famed Waikiki resort area.

He would counsel on such problems as prostitution, and illegitimate births, board spokesman explained—being ready at any hour of the day or night to meet with beech boys, tourists, runaways, prostitutes and servicemen.

The work would be akin to that of San Francisco's "night minister" of the streets, the Reverend Ronald Stuart.
Draft Rights Rally For Homosexuals

Armed with the slogan, "The Draft D可达 Homosexuals—Homosexuals Don't Dodge the Draft," the Committee to Fight Exclusion of Homosexuals from the Armed Forces will hold a rally at the Federal Building at 2 p.m. Saturday. The committee claims young homosexuals are caught in a bind of governmental inconsistency. If they answer their draft questionnaires honestly and declare themselves to be homosexuals, this information can be used against them, the committee believes. But if the homosexuals purport themselves and conceal their condition from the draft board, the committee states, the Government may discharge them under less than honorable conditions when the truth becomes known.

Sponsoring organizations of the protest rally include the Council on Religion and the Homosexual; Daughters of Bilitis; the Mattachine Society; Society for Individual Rights; Strait & Associates; and the Tavern Guild of San Francisco.

THE DRAFT DODGES HOMOSEXUALS—HOMOSEXUALS DON'T DODGE THE DRAFT!

A statement adopted by fifteen homophile organizations at a national planning conference in Kansas City last February said in part:

"Homosexual American citizens have the same right and the same duty to serve in the armed forces as do all other citizens; Homosexuality in itself should not be a bar to military service. Even under existing military standards a person who is dismissed for reasons of homosexuality should be given a fully honorable discharge if his service is otherwise honorable.

The Federal government's categorical rejection of all persons it knows to be homosexual is un-American and based upon ignorance and superstition. It is also ineffective. Well over 90% of otherwise qualified homosexuals (approximately 250,000) are currently found in all branches of the military service, and they are notably serving their country on a par with and equal to heterosexual men and women. An objective examination of military attitudes toward the homosexual citizen and soldier would result in an immediate abandonment of the wholesale discriminatory practices.

"While homosexuals in other civil liberties areas are asking for equal rights, privileges and benefits from their society and country, they also recognize their equal duties and responsibilities."
NATIONWIDE HOMOSEXUAL PROTEST AGAINST

THE ISSUANCE OF LESS-THAN-FULLY-HONORABLE DISCHARGES TO HOMOSEXUALS IN THE ARMED FORCES

Regardless of the quality of service, performance or any other relevant factors, a service man or woman accused of even mere homosexual "tendencies" is given a less-than-fully-honorable discharge, leaving him at permanent disadvantage for the remainder of his life. Discharged, often after many years of honorable service, the homosexual veteran finds himself dumped out, and not always with his way paid home. The homosexual is denied any kind of severance pay and other veterans benefits—even if the discharge is officially under honorable conditions.

The average citizen and the average employer make no distinctions among discharges which are "general under honorable conditions," "undesirable" as most of these are) and "dishonorable." Either it is fully honorable or it might as well be dishonorable.

TOTAL EXCLUSION OF HOMOSEXUALS FROM SERVICE IN THE ARMED FORCES

Homosexual American citizens, asking for full equality with their fellow heterosexual citizens, recognize that along with the rights and privileges which go with such equality go duties, responsibilities and obligations among them that of serving their country in its military services.

There is no valid reason for the Defense Department's policy of absolute refusal. The battle against homosexuals was lifted during World War II.
The security of the nation was never in jeopardy because of the change in policy. Why now?

Disqualification of homosexuals from military service is far from universal among armed forces the world over. If other countries can manage—and they seem to have done so exceedingly well—then there is no good reason why we can't.

INADEQUATE PROTECTION OF CONFIDENTIALITY OF DRAFT RECORDS

For the homosexual draftee, the problem is complicated by the fact that draft records are not given adequate confidentiality. He is faced with the choice of perjuring himself by denying his homosexuality, entering the service and risking personal destruction through a less-than-fully-honorable discharge, OR of admitting his homosexuality, staying out of the service and running the risk of severe personal disadvantage through leakage of information from his "neighbors" on his draft board, or through the fact that such records may be open to public officials, and access to them may be requested of the draftee by employers, etc.
WASTING TAXPAYERS' MONEY IN TRAINING AND THEN NEEDLESSLY
SEPARATING HOMOSEXUALS FROM THE ARMED FORCES.

Costs to taxpayers to train a man or woman for service in the Armed Forces averages at least $25,000.00 (a conservative estimate of minimum cost). For those in electronics or other specialized fields the cost can be as much as $100,000.00. Three hundred men were bounced off one ship because they were supposedly homosexuals or had allegedly engaged in some homosexual conduct or were known to have "close homosexual associates." And down the drain went $7,500,000.00 at a single crack--your tax dollars and ours. Not to mention the stigma and disadvantage heaped upon those booted out! How much more of the taxpayers' hard-earned money is being wasted? And what about this needless waste of manpower?

GESTAPO-LIKE WITCH-HUNTS FOR HOMOSEXUALS IN THE ARMED FORCES.

In order to implement Government policy of exclusion of homosexuals, the Armed Forces have set up investigative services and quasi-judicial procedures which function with a ferocity most Americans would find appalling, if they were aware of them. In their mania to ferret out homosexuals, these investigative and quasi-judicial services dispense with traditional American concepts of due process, and of many constitutional guarantees, such as those against improper search and seizure, right to counsel, unauthorized confession, fair trial, etc. They resort to entrapment, intimidation, lies, threats, coercion and deceit of the worst sort. Such policies are a scandal and a horror. They make a mockery of everything our Armed Services exist to defend. They are the irrational outgrowth of irrational policies carried to irrational extremes.

We would be the last to deny that there may be problems involved in the acceptance of homosexuals into the service. But we are the first to deny that the way to deal with such problems is through the present, shameful, frightened, head-in-the-sand policy of political cowardice and political expediency, and kneeling submission to the worst aspects of popular prejudice.

CONTINUING REFUSAL BY THE DEPARTMENTS OF DEFENSE, ARMY, NAVY, AND AIR FORCES TO MEET WITH SPOKESMEN FOR THE HOMO-SEXUAL COMMUNITY TO ENGAGE IN CONSTRUCTIVE DISCUSSION OF THE POLICIES AND PROCEDURES AT ISSUE.

In a democracy, and as ours is, decision between and among citizens and their public officials are matters of right and not of mere privilege to be extended or withheld at the direction of officials.

Memoranda

TO: Chief of Staff
FROM: Chief, Intelligence and Law Enforcement Branch

DATE: 4 May 1966

SUBJECT: The Council on Religion and the Homosexual

1. The following is submitted in response to your request for information on the Council of Religion and the Homosexual.

2. An inquiry was made at the San Francisco, California, Police Department Intelligence Unit. This office has a file on the Council on Religion and the Homosexual which contains the brochure which was forwarded to this office, a list of the Board of Trustees (Enclosure (1)) and a copy of a press clipping from the San Francisco Examiner dated 22 September 1965 (enclosure (2)).

3. On 22 April 1966, a visit was made to the Council on Religion and the Homosexual. Phyllis Lyon, Vice President, was interviewed and stated, in substance, that the Council was organized approximately two-and-one-half years ago with the primary purpose of developing a channel of communication between the homophile (homosexual) community and the general public, to lessen the stigma upon the homosexual and, as an additional purpose, to get Federal, state, local governments and industry to recognize the professional capabilities of the homosexuals in their efforts to hold gainful employment without the threat of punishment or dismissal because of their (the homosexual) sex views and/or activities. The Council is also seeking to remove the stigma from the homosexual in his/her efforts to serve in the military organizations of the U.S. Government and to gain political support to repeal present anti-homosexual laws. The Council is principally composed of members of the Methodist faith, under the sponsorship of the Glide Foundation, and various organizations of the homosexual community. Pamphlets, brochures and books dealing with various organizations were furnished and are attached as Enclosures (3) to (2). Lyon stated that the roster of their membership is confidential, but that the membership was predominately homosexual. Lyon stated that some active members of military organizations have inquired as to membership in the Council, and that these inquiries were primarily from the WAC corps at the Presidio of San Francisco. Lyon stated that she was a member of the Daughters of Billie, a society of lesbians. Lyon stated that all U.S. Military Services were invited to assign a liaison officer and that each of the otherservices had all declined the invitation.

COMMITTEE TO FIGHT EXCLUSION OF HOMOSEXUALS FROM THE ARMED FORCES, NATIONAL PROTEST TO BE HELD 5-21-66.
SSA: 1948.-MISCELLANEOUS.
ReSFteletype 5-21-66.

The following is set forth to supplement the data in ref tel.

The writer observed that at about noon, 5-21-66, three men with a flat-bed rental truck parked in front of the Federal Building, installed 4 amplifier speakers and a microphone, folding chairs on the truck, and began giving pamphlets to passersby.

At 1:45 pm, a bald guitar player with a goatee (WMA, 55', 5'9") began playing & singing from the truck bed. At 1:55 pm, a picket line formed with about 30 pickets and picked till about 2:12 pm. The following speakers then talked, and the master of ceremonies was a negro minister:

1. Negro master of ceremonies (50', 5'10", 170, mustache, smiled continually)
2. WMA, 35', 6'1", 165, black hair, colored glasses, light comple., a minister.
3. WMA, 28', 5'9", 145, slight build, light comple., glasses, a minister.
4. WMA, 55', 5'7", 170, red-faced
5. WMA, 40', 5'10", 170, long black hair.
6. WPA, 50', 5'5", 145, grey hair
7. WMA, 35', 5'10", 150, carrying picket sign stating "I SERVED HONORABLY", with what appeared to be a copy of his discharge attached thereto.
8. WMA, 23', 5'9", 145, black patch on left eye, brown hair.
9. WMA, 40', 5'8", 11", 140, brown hair.

The speeches began with a pledge of allegiance and closed with a prayer. About 15 women were present, all all were Caucasians except the negro minister and one negro homosexual.

The Tenderloin is still teeming with boy and girl prostitutes and pill pushers, a concerned committee of doctors and clergymen said yesterday.

And San Francisco's police, charged the Tenderloin Committee are "harrasing the kids" instead of protecting them from preying adults in the area.

The police are "practicing hard-core harassment" of juveniles in the Tenderloin and "not going after the pushers and the big boys," the Reverend Vaughn Smith told a press conference at Glide Memorial Methodist Church.

The Reverend Cecil Williams of Glide, which released a report last February asserting some 300 young men are hustling in the Tenderloin, said an "obvious split" exists within the Police Department on how to handle the situation.

And the Reverend Edward Hansen, chairman of the Tenderloin Committee and the minister of young adults at Glide, said he himself has been ordered to move on by police while he was talking in clerical collar—with a group of youths on the street.

Other members of the Tenderloin Committee told the press conference that little if anything, is being done by the city to relieve the social and economic distress which is rampant in the area.

They said a Health Department medical clinic should be located immediately in the downtown Tenderloin area along with a de-toxification center for alcoholics and drug addicts, a halfway house for addicts, and a community coffee house for juveniles.

Police Chief Cahill was later asked to comment on the Committee's charges, but declined to make any statements until after he has read the committee's report and examined it.

A convention dramatically titled "Ten Days in August"—a gathering of several big homosexual organizations—opens here today, and the official program leads off with a cheery "Welcome to San Francisco, the gayest, lightest-hearted, most pleasure-loving city of the Western continent." That familiar phrase was, of course, written by the late Will Irwin some 60 years ago—when "gay" had only one meaning.
'Homophile' Convention

Life in a World of Sexual Hostility

By Maitland Zane

Punitive police harassment and archaic religious attitudes made the homosexual's life a nightmare, spokesmen for San Francisco's estimated 90,000 men and women homosexuals agreed yesterday.

The spokesmen joined two Protestant ministers and a writer in a press conference yesterday to discuss the "Ten Days in August" national convention of some 30 homosexual and lesbian groups which opens here this weekend.

Close to 1000 persons attending.

At a series of meetings next week the men and women "homophiles" (they prefer that term) will join with theologians, doctors and lawyers to discuss ways of changing laws and attitudes which make homosexuals virtual outlaws in a hostile heterosexual society.

"We're trying to see the homosexual as a person—outside the human being," said the Rev. Robert W. Cromeo of St. Aidan's Episcopal Church. He is a clergyman who is active in the civil rights movement and is one of the founders of a group called the Council on Religion and the Homosexual.

Flaunting alongside him at Glide Memorial Church were the Rev. Dr. Robert Treece, a theology professor at Boston University; Phyllis Lyon, public relations director for the Daughters of Bilitis, a pro-Lesbian group and an administrative assistant at the Glide Foundation; Bill Plate, a San Francisco bartender and spokesman for the National Planning Committee on Homophile Organizations; R. Turner-Lamont, a writer and lecturer.

"The churches have been hiding from homosexuality," said Canon Cromeo, 35, a lawyer and father of three girls. "They won't even admit there is a problem."

"Do you believe homosexuality is wrong?" he was asked.

"That is the issue. I don't think it is," replied the theologian.

Later, he emphasized that human beings do not choose to become homosexuals. "It happens to be a heterosexual—but I didn't choose it. The problem for them is to find meaningful, ethical, fulfilled lives."

Miss Lyon quoted the Police Department's estimate that there are 90,000 homosexuals in San Francisco and probably more than half are men.

She complained of police harassment of "gay bars" and of men and women losing their jobs—if not their careers—because police informed their employers.

Police "surveillance" of homosexual bars should be no stricter than the heterosexual "action" bars of the Financial District.

In fact, she said, "people in gay bars are much better behaved than in the action bars. All we want is equal treatment."

A wide variety of social activities has been arranged for persons attending the "Ten Days in August" meetings, beginning with a ladies-only "Spaghetti Feed" tonight at the Daughters of Bilitis Hall, a deep-sea fishing expedition, a wine-tasting party, a softball game, and a "Gay 50 Night" on Friday.

Homosexual Booth Ban at Fair Fought

A group of ministers, doctors and members of other professions today demanded "reversal of a ruling" banning an educational exhibit on the problem of homosexuality at the California State Fair.

Threatening court action, the Bay Area Council on Religion and the Homosexual fired off telegrams to officials in Sacramento protesting the "unwarranted cancellation" of exhibit space which had been reserved for the council.

The Rev. Clarence A. Colwell, president of the council, said in a wire to fair president Clarence Azevedo that he had been informed that the space was withdrawn Friday.

CONTROVERSIAL

Harrison Cutler and Edward J. Lyman, fair manager and exhibit supervisor, cancelled the space "on grounds of controversy of subject matter," according to Colwell, a San Francisco minister and member of the Northern California Conference of the United Church of Christ.

In his telegrams to Azevedo, Cutler and Lyman, Colwell said:

"Controversiality of subject is not — in our free society — sufficient reason to prohibit free discussion. We are aware that many organizations with equally controversial subjects have been granted booth space. And we consider that denial of space to us constitutes unequal protection of the law under the United States and California constitutions."

DEADLINE

Colwell said the matter will be taken into court unless Azevedo announces reversal of the ban by tomorrow. The fair is scheduled to open Sept. 3 in Sacramento.

The Council on Religion and the Homosexual consists of clergymen of several denominations, attorneys, physicians and others concerned with the subject of the "homophile community" and society's attitude toward it.
‘Homophile’ Convention

Life in a World of Sexual Hostility

Punitive police harassment and archaic religious attitudes made the homosexual’s life a nightmare, spokesmen for San Francisco’s estimated 50,000 men and women homosexuals agreed yesterday.

THE MOON BALLOON: During the Daughters of Bilitis convention dinner at the Jacqueline Tar Hotel, DSB awards were given out to the following men who have helped the Lesbian cause: Bishop Jim Pike, Mayor Jack Shelley, Dr. Joel Fort, Officer Elliott Blackstone of the Police Dept., Douglas Corbin of the Public Defender's staff and the Rev. Bob Cromey. DSB means Sons of Bilitis, and Bilitis means — well, I'm not sure. Apparently stems from the narrative poem by Pierre Louys of France, titled "Songs of Bilitis," which tells of Sappho's love for Bilitis, whoever she was. Anyway, sons or even daughters seem unlikely.

Homosexual Group Fights Ban at Fair

A San Francisco group concerned with homosexuality said last night that it will fight an order banning its "information" booth at the forthcoming California State Fair.

An attorney for the Council on Religion and the Homosexual said the organization was told by fair directors on Friday that it would be forbidden a booth because of the "controversiality of its subject matter."

The council president, Dr. Clay Colwell of San Francisco, said the space was denied by Edward J. Lyman, the fair's exhibit supervisor, fair manager Harrison Cutler, and fair president Clarence Azevedo.

The council and several other Bay Area groups concerned with homosexuality had requested a booth from which literature on the subject could be offered, fairgoers.

DEADLINE

Herb Donaldson, attorney for the council, said the group has demanded a reconsideration by the fair board before 10 a.m. tomorrow.

He said the organizations would file a writ of mandate in Sacramento Superior Court if the fair directors have not reversed their decision by then.

The Rev. Mr. Colwell told The Chronicle last night that the groups had reserved the exhibit space almost two months ago, and that Friday's telegram from Azevedo was the first intimation that the fair directors did not want the groups represented.

EXHIBIT

Phyllis Lyon, vice president of the council, said the exhibit would consist of explanatory literature and copies of medical, legal and religious opinions on the subject.

Joining with the council in the project were the Society for Individual Rights, the Daughters of Bilitis, Strait and Associates, the Association for Responsible Citizenship and the Tavern Guild of San Francisco.

TELEGRAM

The Rev. Mr. Colwell told Azevedo in a protest telegram yesterday that "controversiality of subject is not, in our free society, sufficient reason to prohibit free discussion."

"We are aware," the protest continued, "that many organizations with equally controversial subjects have been granted booth space, and we consider that denial of space to us constitutes unequal protection of the laws under the United States and California constitutions."

"Before undertaking appropriate legal action to enforce our rights under the law, we request reconsideration of this denial of space."

Donaldson said the council represents clergymen of several denominations as well as lawyers, physicians and other professional persons interested in homosexuality and society's attitude toward it.
Homosexual Ban
At Fair Upheld

Sacramento

State Fair officials refused yesterday to reconsider their decision not to allow a homosexual information booth at this year's exposition, opening next Wednesday.

As a result, the various groups concerned with homosexuality, who had sought to distribute literature in the "educational section" of the fairgrounds will now go to court, a spokesman said.

Fair manager Harrison Culter told The Chronicle he personally rejected the application for such a booth last week because of the large family attendance at the fair.

He denied that he based his action on the "controversiality of its subject matter," as an attorney for one of the applying groups declared.

In fact, Culter said, his letter of rejection stated that the denial "in no way intends to pass judgment on the merits of the program."

After receiving word of the rejection, Dr. Clay Colwell, a San Francisco minister and president of the Council on Religion and the Homosexual, wrote to Clarence Azevedo, president of the State Fair board, seeking a reversal of Culter's decision and setting 10 a.m. today as a deadline to avert court action.

The latter said yesterday that Azevedo was wiring the Rev. Mr. Colwell stating that the directors are backing the manager's decision.

The Rev. Mr. Colwell said the organizations involved will file a writ of mandate in Sacramento County Superior Court.

Hearing Set on Homosexual Information Booth at Fair

By Jackson Doyle
Chronicle Correspondent
Sacramento

Groups seeking to operate an information booth on homosexuality at the State fair will get a court hearing here next Thursday—the day after the fair opens.

Irving H. Perluss, presiding judge of the superior court, yesterday set Sept. 1 as the date for the state to show cause why it should not be compelled to allow the exhibit.

Perluss, who will preside at the hearing, said Herbert Donaldson of San Francisco, attorney for the Council on Religion and the Homosexual, which filed the suit, said he was satisfied with the date.

In the petition, Donaldson and an associate attorney, Evander C. Smith, also of San Francisco, declared that the fair management had actually assigned a space for the exhibit in May only to cancel it last week because of the "controversiality of the subject of homosexuality."

The reversal, said the petition, denied "equal benefits of the law under the U.S. and California constitutions."
Homosexual Problem - New Thinking Urged

A "radical rethinking" of popular concepts about aberrant sex practices was advocated by a Methodist minister today as a step toward a "compassionate" Christian approach to the problem of homosexuality.

Such an approach is sorely needed to bring about an easing of tensions in the relations between homosexuals and the rest of the community, said the Rev. Theodore "Ted" McIlvenna, former president of the Council on Religion and the Homosexual yesterday.

The young clergyman, just returned from a London meeting on the subject, declared that old notions of "sexuality apart from the procreation of children should be re-evaluated and revised.

CHURCH SESSION
He was the principal speaker last night at a "Theology Consultation" at the Glide Memorial Methodist Church.

The discussion was held in connection with the San Francisco convention of The Daughters of Bilitis, a national lesbian organization.

"Some homosexuals, like some heterosexuals, are ill." Most people consider themselves to be "sophisticated bisexuals, are preoccupied with sex as a way of life. But intellectually that there is a probably for a majority of adults a certain degree of sexuality is all human relationships." But their own emotions still lead them to "make many choices based on a Puritan anti-sexual bias."

100 LISTEN
Another panel discussion at the Community Center of the Society for Individual Rights featured a prominent psychiatrist, a psychologist and a psycho-sociologist before an audience of more than 100.

Following the give and take session, the panelists issued a consensus statement, declaring:

"Homosexuals, like heterosexuals, should be treated as individual human beings, not as a special group, either by law or social agencies or employers."

"Laws governing sexual behavior should be reformed to deal only with clearly anti-social behavior, such as behavior involving violence or youth. The sexual behavior of individual adults by mutual consent in private should not be a matter of public concern."

The panelists were: Dr. Joseph Fort, director of the San Francisco Health Department's Center for Special Problems; Dr. Joe Adams, psychiatrist and former Mental Health office and Dr. Evelyn C. Gooden, research psychologist at U.C.L.A.

Homosexual Ban Will Go to Court

The fight for a "homosexual information" booth at the State Fair will be taken into court this morning, a spokesman for the Council on Religion and the Homosexual announced yesterday.

The Rev. Clarence Colwell, head of the San Francisco-based council, told a press conference the Sacramento County Court will be petitioned to reverse the State Fair officials' decision to cancel the booth.

Forty-one prominent Bay Area residents yesterday appealed to Governor Edmund G. Brown for a reversal of the decision, which they labelled "discriminatory."

"INJUSTICE"

"We endorse the educational aims of these organizations and urge that you intervene to correct this grave injustice," the petitioners told Governor Brown.

BAN

Fair manager Harrison Cutler banned the proposed booth last week because of the "controversiality of its subject matter."

The Rev. Mr. Colwell said the subject matter is a pamphlet entitled "Every Tenth Person is a Homosexual." A compilation of information, it would "correct a great many myths about the homophile," he said.

"Unfortunately, the treatment of the homosexual by the fair officials has been the same as by the general public," he added.

The State Fair Board made the right decision," the governor said.

Signers of the petition to the governor included the Rev. Mr. Colwell, Democratic Assemblyman Willie Brown, the Rev. Bertrand Mayer, of Suicide Prevention of San Francisco, Inc.; Harold L. Call of the Mattachine Society; and other clergymen, attorneys and college professors.

Lawyers' Panel

Homosexuals Told: 'Educate Public'

A panel of lawyers, including two San Francisco assemblymen, urged a homosexual group yesterday to undertake a massive program designed to convince the public that homosexuality is an acceptable way of life.

But they warned, the campaigners will be up against tough odds in any effort to revise anti-homosexual laws.

Assemblyman Willie Brown advised some 66 persons, mostly males, at a seminar sponsored by the homosexually oriented Society for Individual Rights:

"I see little likelihood of any change in the present California laws on the subject. Of 120 members of the Legislature, there are six or eight who would be willing to take a favorable stand (on revision)."

Brown urged the group to "act as any other minority group would--discuss the issues, educate people."

Assemblyman John Burton joined in the plea for an educational program, "not only in the community as a whole but in the homophile community itself."

They and other participants in a seminar on "Legal and Penal Code Reforms as They Affect the Homosexual" agreed that offenses involving force, those committed with minors and those committed in public places are properly designated as felonies. Other homosexual activity should be considered a "nuisance" misdemeanor.

Douglas Corbin, senior attorney for the San Francisco Public Defender's Office, asserted:

"The law in this area is antediluvian. The penalties are highly disproportionate to the offense involved. And if judges viewed the laws as they are written, things would be worse than they are."

Attorney Ephraim Margolin, a University of California lecturer in law, said:

"We are dealing with the rights not of one minority but of all minorities." Margolin added that legal "reforms" should be sought through the judiciary rather than the legislative branch of government.
Sex Group Canceled From Fair

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Council of Religion and the Homosexuals has threatened court action against state fair officials unless they reconsider "unwarranted cancellation" of the group's exhibit space.

In a telegram yesterday to fair president Clarence Acevedo, council president Dr. Clarence Colwell, San Francisco, said the space was denied Friday "on the ground of controversy of subject matter."

Colwell said the space in the outdoor educational exhibit area was cancelled by Edward J. Liran, fair exhibit supervisor, and Harrison Cutler, fair manager.

"Controversial of subject is not, in our free society, sufficient reason to prohibit free discussion," Colwell said. "We are aware of many organizations which have been granted booth space, and we consider that denial of space to use constitutes unequal protection of the laws under the United States and California constitutions."

"Before undertaking appropriate legal action to enforce our rights under the law," he said, "we request reconsideration of this denial of space."

Colwell said the council consists of ministers from several denominations, lawyers, physicians and representatives of other professions interested in the subject of homosexuality and society's attitude toward it. The fair begins Aug. 31 and ends Sept. 11.
Homosexual Dispute

Leaflet Flurry at Fair Gates

By Jackson Doyle
Chronicle Correspondent

Sacramento

Organizations sympathetic to homosexuals lost a legal battle to distribute pamphlets on the State Fair Grounds yesterday—and immediately started passing out leaflets at the main gate.

After Superior Judge Irving Perluss ruled that the fair management was within its rights in refusing the groups an exhibit booth, the Rev. Clarence Colwell of San Francisco, told newsmen that some 25,000 informational pamphlets still will be made available to fair-goers.

EXPOSURE

And Evander C. Smith of San Francisco, attorney for the Council on Religion and the Homosexual, which the Rev. Mr. Colwell heads, predicted that the thousands of more people will be exposed to the educational campaign than would have been the case had the fair directors "allowed us a little booth in a corner of the grounds."

State Fair police at first ordered the handful of pamphlet-passers away from the gates, but later relented and a spokesman said the State was not "going to make an issue out of it."

Dr. Colwell said members of pro-homosexual groups will return "en masse" to the gates Sunday morning.

Perluss ruled plumply from the bench after the Rev. Mr. Colwell and Earl Starks of Sacramento, chairman of the Association for Responsible Citizenship, an organization which also seeks more rights for homosexuals, testified. They said that the fair management had once assigned the organizations exhibit space only to rescind the action.

Deputy State Attorney General Clarence Brown argued that no contract had been signed, and that even if it had been, the fair management has complete discretion in such matters.

RAISE

Judge Perluss accepted the attorney general's view. But he praised the "high motives" of the Council on Religion and the Homosexual and said he was in no way "acting the big brother" in deciding what should or should not be exhibited.

Out of court, the Rev. Mr. Colwell said the Legislature is supposed to reflect the will of the people. If campaign-styled "educating" the people are stifled, he asked, how can the Legislature be expected to change?
STRAIT SHOOTER: Guy Strait, of whom you probably never heard until this very moment, publishes a biweekly paper here for homosexuals called "Cruise News & World Report" — a name that U.S. News & World Report finds not at all amusing. In fact, through its local lawyer, Jesse Feldman, that conservative magazine is suing Strait to change the title, or else. Said Feldman to Strait the other day: "I've read your publication quite carefully, and I don't understand why you're using that title in the first place. There's nothing in it about cruises" ... "Well, sir," replied Strait, "it's a problem of semantics. You're using the King's English. I use the Queen's!"
Controversial Involvement

Church in the Tenderloin

By Lester Kinsolving

Kern county oil money squeezed by an ardent Methodist woman is financing the Glide Foundation's myriad and often controversial social work. This financial independence—often an envied situation—has enabled the Tenderloin church to help people who in almost no other church would be interested—modestly aiding homosexuals, drug addicts and male prostitutes.

But such radical activity also cost the church most of its "old lady" parishioners.

Former business manager Larry C. Johnson, who retired in 1964, said yesterday, "A tough civil rights stand is putting us in the hot seat, especially to the elderly ladies who are a bulk of our congregation."

It is estimated that three of five years ago there was a membership of 500. But now two-thirds have gone to other churches. All the old timers are gone.

The Glide Foundation is located at Ellis and Taylor streets, on the fringe of the Tenderloin, and most of its regular parishioners are poor people.

The 385 members pledged an annual income of only $6,000.

ENDOWMENT

But the Glide budget is three times that figure—thanks to a huge endowment.

The deed of trust provides that the church "maintain as an evangelistic center and the budget of $385,000 provides for five full-time clergy and a staff of 14 lay employees, as well as varied programs and building maintenance.

"Glide can do what most Methodists cannot do," said the Rev. Donald Kuhn, director of the Foundation's division of communication.

ORGANIZATIONS

Here are some of the organizations Glide has helped found and support:

- The Council for Religion and the Homosexual.
- Vanguard—a group which helps male prostitutes and drug addicts.
- Citizens Alert—a group aiding victims of police harassment or brutality.
- Parents Action Group—which is helping Negro parents in the Hunters Point area to obtain a new school.
- Intersection and the activities Liberation Front, which sponsors poetry readings, dance and painting classes, "underground movies" and other cultural activities.

GREGORY

Glide staff members have campaigned against Proposition 14 and assisted striking Delano farm workers.

Negro comedian Dick Gregory was given the pulpit one Sunday and spent 75 minutes attacking the predomina"ly white congregation for its hypocrisy.

An overflow crowd of 850 on Christmas morning heard John Handy and his Concert Ensemble deliver a "literate jazz happening!"
IN Volvement

These happenings in church have driven away many old ladies. But such unusual social involvement has attracted many new worshippers from the transient population in the neighborhood.

The Glide Foundation is able to do what it is doing because it is free of financial pressure. The Foundation is worth $7.5 million in cash, negotiable securities and land holdings.

The Foundation and church are named for the late H. L. Glide, a multi-millionaire Sacramento sheep rancher who owned grazing lands in Kern County where oil was found.

Widow

His widow, the late Lillie Glide, was an ardent Methodist. She founded Mary Elizabeth Inn, a home for working girls at 1040 Bush street, as well as Epworth and Wesley Halls in Berkeley.

She also financed the purchase of the land and the church building, as well as an adjoining apartment house and office building, which houses the area headquarters for both the Methodist and Presbyterian churches.

Glide's board of directors - which includes Methodist Bishop Donald Tippett - has never tried to hamstring the controversial social program.

And the Rev. Mr. Kuhn emphasized: "Glide does not seek to build an empire of organizations. Most of them eventually go off on their own. We seek to relate - not to control."
The Transsex Cases

The 'Girls' Who Live a Masquerade

By Keith Power

Gladys Campbell appears unremarkable among thousands of pretentious office girls in San Francisco.

She has an undistinguished clerical job for which she is an unspectacular $20 a month.

She primp's with the girls in the ladies room, picking out dates and holding forth fashion, and at the release 5 o'clock trips home for another evening of waiting.

But the central secret about Gladys Campbell is that she is a man and has encouraged by those knowledgeable about her sex phenomena to succeed her as masquerade as a woman.

And further, a program is being organized with police leadership to help her sister transsexuals - all born to live and hold down jobs as women in San Francisco.

The goal they all cherish is a loss of their physical and despised manhood by surgery.

Before the advent of Christine Jorgensen, the surgical conversion of a man to a woman was an ill-defined nightmare for the general public - a grotesque perversion of the natural order.

Unable to function as a man and rejected as a woman by the 'straight' world, the transsexuals of the Tenderloin - here are the estimated 20 of them - turn to prostitution to support themselves.

"It was a police problem," Blackstone explained when approached about his program by The Chronicle. "The prevention of crime is my foremost duty. Without help, the transsexual is prone to prostitution, as becomes suicidal or is a burden on the community because of mental disturbance."

Blackstone's solution, supported by his research in psychiatric literature, was to find the Tenderloin's transsexuals as women and arrange counseling to direct them in the female role.

The American authority on the subject, Dr. Benjamin, wrote that case histories have shown that transsexuals are not susceptible to psychotherapy.

"For all practical purposes, this means the mind of the transsexual cannot be adjusted to the body. Therefore, attempts to adjust the body to the mind appear logical, at least to the unprejudiced."

The San Francisco Office is attempting to establish an album of photographs to be used in HOMEX cases.

All Agents receiving copies of this memo are requested to submit names or identifying information of persons who may be logical persons to include in this album, so their photographs and background information may be obtained.

Of interest would be the photographs of persons known as:

"SHAKEMEN" - Subjects who imitate police officers and extort money from victims set up by Chickens.

"CHICKEN" - A homosexual whose assignment is to find a potential victim for the Shakemen to compromise.

Also of interest to this program would be persons known as:

"BABY DOLL" - A victim who exhibits a real fear of being caught and exposed as a homo and who is particularly vulnerable to extortion (possibly on a continuing basis).

Unquestionably the best reason for individuals to wage their own campaign for venereal disease control is that "you can't do a good job with defective tools."

The bar-going crowd long ago learned that VD was not limited to the very bad people and that even the ivy-league was not immune from it.

The wise and active people learned that it paid to drop in the Public Health clinics for a check-up and to reassure themselves that they were not contributing to the spread of the diseases associated with sexual activities.

Several factors have contributed to the rise in percentages of venereal disease and some of these factors are directly associated with the moral codes of the past.

The greatest cause for the spread of VD is the unwillingness of the mass media to treat VD with the same candor that they afford measles, murder, or mayhem. The latter two sell far more papers and offend far fewer of the population than does a candid and factual treatment of VD.

Another of the great causes for the spread of VD is the failure of educational systems all over the country.

Some elements who control the educational systems feel that teaching of venereal disease control might lead to more promiscuity and thus would be demoralizing; others cannot find qualified personnel to teach of the dangers of VD and thus rely on antiquated and corny methods to impress the young with the dangers of VD.

Another great cause for the spread of VD is the fear of a social stigma associated with VD. What some people like to refer to as "unnatural acts" sometimes act as transmitters of VD and those thus exposed are reluctant to go to doctors and lay the facts on the line. Most of the readers of THE BAR RAG have learned that there are no "unnatural sex acts" and simply as a matter of course go to the City Clinic or to their doctors with some degree of regularity.

They have a responsibility to the entire community, however, that is of the greatest importance--They should take it upon themselves to tell their friends, their sex partners, and all those that contact that, "YOU CAN'T DO A GOOD JOB WITH DEFECTIVE TOOLS."
FREE LEGAL ADVICE

One of the costs of living today is involvement in legal affairs. To most people the law is a vague and meaningless mass of words.

Most of us know what it is to be arrested, to be tried, and the various involvements in criminal law; fewer of us know the involvements of civil law.

Many, many people are in need of advice regarding both criminal and civil law and simply cannot afford it.

Now, as a service of the Economic Opportunity Council, counseling in matters of law is readily available, at no charge, to everyone.

The San Francisco Neighborhood Legal Assistance Foundation has four offices to bring the benefits and protections of the law to those who have long been denied them.

The Foundation is a non-profit corporation, chartered in 1966 under the laws of the State of California.

The principal goal of the Foundation is to bring the benefits of the law to those who have long been denied them. To that end the Foundation is committed to provide clients with high quality legal representation, and to increase access to these services through the establishment of neighborhood law offices in low-income areas of the city. A further aim of the Foundation is to promote awareness of legal rights, and to encourage the assertion of those rights among the poor. Finally, the Foundation works for changes in the law and its administration that will not only benefit the poor, but help to realize the basic ideals of our legal system.

The Foundation has five neighborhood law offices:

WESTERN ADDITION, 721 Webster, 567-2804
MISSION, 2701 Folsom, 648-7850
HUNTERS POINT, 1433 Mendell, 283-3700
CENTRAL BEACH, 755 Commercial, 362-5630
CENTRAL CITY, 532 Mission, 225-3285

THE MAN had come over to the Central City office to see how these offices function and found Attorney Herb Donaldson who was discussing a man regarding the drawing up of a will and testament. The man had no family that he knew of and Mr. Donaldson arranged the will and testament. So that a long-time friend and companion would inherit his business and cash on hand. Then there was a young man who had a friend in jail. The Foundation cannot represent anyone in a criminal case but the client was advised of the rights and procedure in the case and saved himself several hundred dollars that he could not have paid.

The work of the foundation is not limited to the men who are regularly on the payroll because a large number of attorneys have volunteered to serve in various capacities with the Foundation.

Generally speaking the services of the Foundation are available to all those who cannot afford to consult a private attorney.

Now there is no reason for anyone to go without the necessary legal care necessary for life in these United States.
WHAT'S HAPPENING?

San Francisco is bracing to receive the annual deluge of tourists from Hipics, New York and Paris. The long wet winter months have passed and the grass and Aquatic Park is fresh for those who for years have basked in the sun there.

At Playland there is a new crop of surfers with somewhat shorter hair and muscles maintained through the winter months with one-arm pushups.

At Land's End there is a blossoming of the wild life as never before and many take their strolls there every Sunday.

The action has been rather quiet here with the exception of the bar life that has been quite good as widely separated spots throughout the city. New faces have appeared behind many bars and some of the older faces are now to be seen from 8 to 5 along Montgomery Street and in the Folk Guchi Area and banking in the sun with typical Toy League get-up at Union Square.

Along about sundown many of the older set is to be found in the Haight Area as they admire the scenery or wonder at what has happened to that sleepy area.

Tom O'Hall is missing from the Stud but is doing quite well at the hospital. Tom had a bout with his heart and can receive visitors and phone calls. For him, ever active, this must be a hard go, except for his many friends who keep the hospital wondering.

The West Con Delegates from SF had never seen Buck Jones in action before, but after their tour of the bars in LA, with everyone being very conscious of where they were with—there Buck-lined out for the evening.

You never heard of 'Buck Jones'? This is what John Jones, new president of S.I.R. was known as in his younger days.

The Empress sends greetings to the loyal subjects of the Crown and has plans for an Imperial Entourage to go out. It's the first time and the grand old private cars of the millionaires of yesterday.

Hai Call of San Francisco Mattiechine reports that his organization figured heavily in the apprehension of the blackmailer notes in the Examiner of recent date.

POTPOURRI

++ The policeman suddenly threw the beam of his flashlight into the parked car, saying, viewing the nude girl and her boyfriend up and down. With a leer and a soft voice said, "I'm next." The girl sat and laughed, but the boy was upset. "Calm down," said the officer, "I won't hurt you." The young man replied, "It's just that I've never done it with a policeman before."

++ Notes from Sacramento: He just can't be all bad... RH got out his economy shears and cut off 25 investigators from the ARC.

++ Another note from Sacramento tells that the hide and seek is taking the place of the Log Cabin in the hearts and pockets of Sacramento Fakkers. It is located up the road from the old Log Cabin.

++ The plans of S.I.R. for a greatly enlarged home base are proceeding. An initial gift of $1000 toward the fund to buy a huge hall and dance floor with offices and room for everything short of a football game are going well.

++ The Nevada Club has joined the list.

++ The Tavern Guild series of auctions winds up the 8th of May with a finale at Jacksons. According to Bill Flatone of San Francisco's outstanding stage personalities donated not only their time and talent, but literally the clothes off their backs.

Plans for the summer sessions of concerts are underway and they will be grander, greater, and gayer than ever before. And this is quite a statement because the plastics have been great, grand, and gay as in no other city in the entire world.

VOTING?

In November San Francisco will select a mayor and six Supervisors. The BAR RAG will take no stand on any of the candidates, but take a very definite stand on the necessity for everyone who is qualified to vote to get to a place where he can register to vote without delay.

Great dissatisfaction has been expressed throughout the country with some of the recent elections. Absolutely nothing can be gained by complaining after the fact. It is vitally important that everyone accepts his responsibility as a citizen and vote.

S.I.R. has registrars available at most times and registration is carried on at the City Hall.

Recent developments in City Hall might directly affect each of our readers. Moves are afoot to remove at least one city official and agitation might start for changing in other areas.

As of this writing anyone who considers San Francisco their home is qualified to vote as long as they are 21 years of age and have never been convicted of a felony. The Board of Supervisors is the legislative branch of the City-County government and the Mayor is the chief executive. Alcho the Mayor's job is largely that of being on hand to kiss babies and cut ribbons, he is the man who directs to police and fire and recreation departments, and is in a position to influence public opinion.

If you do not vote you have lost your right to complain about the treatment you receive from your elected officials.

Also in the coming months there are several petitions for referendum to be circulated. Only registered voters may sign these petitions. Some of them have direct influence on the rights and privileges of the average resident.

Reagan Denies Gay Ring at Capital

By JACK WELTER

Examiner Capitol Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Governor Reagan today unequivocally denied widely circulating rumors that he has broken up a homosexual ring involving some former high officials of his administration.

"There is no truth to the report," he declared when he was asked if the were true, "and I know where it came from."

He accused Washington columnist Drew Pearson, who published some of the rumors today, of lying.

Pearson cited alleged circumstances of an investigation but did not identify by name any of the persons involved.

He was questioning about the Pearson column which brought the long rumor barrage into the open during a press conference in the Capitol.

Reagan charged that the material in Pearson's column "is stooping to destroy human beings, innocent people."

The Governor was incensed by one question to the point of resoundingly banging his lectern.

"I was informed last night," he said, "why, most Californians won't see it (the Pearson's) scurrilous attack - I think that is the best clue to the veracity of the report - as far as we know, most of the major papers are refusing to run the Drew Pearson column in which it appears."

"Wait a minute," he heatedly told a questioner who had implied that he had "extracted an agreement" to suppress the column.

"I didn't extract any agreement," he snapped. "I simply said that at the time I was notified of this, I was told that the major newspapers of California were - as they did with Pearson's scurrilous attack on George Christopher during the primary - not going to run this column - as they didn't run that one."

He declared that Pearson has been "riding my back for a number of years" when Reagan was just a banquet speaker and performer.

"I'd like to say now," the angry Governor went on, "three Presidents — of both parties — have called Drew Pearson, publicly, a liar and, to my knowledge, none of them have ever seen fit to retract that opinion.

"And I certainly have never seen anything that would justify my disagreeing."

Pearson, he said, "writes with a certain amount of bias," and, in the current instance, "He is lying."

"I am not going to dignify Drew Pearson by even attempting to answer anything as scurrilous and as ridiculous as this report," the Governor said.

FLAT DENIAL

However, he did deny with a flat "No" an allegation in the columnist's report that his travel secretary, Arthur Van Court — former Los Angeles police detective — had investigated a Lake Tahoe "homosexual orgy" and confirmed existence of the "ring."

He turned to Van Court — who was present at the press conference — for confirmation.

"Complete fiction," Van Court agreed.

Both Reagan and Lynn Noziger, his communications director, also denied that Noziger had "leaked" the story to reporters during the recent National Governor's Conference aboard the SS Independence, passing the word that two top aides "had been dropped on moral grounds."

"I am prepared to say," the Governor said, "that nothing like that ever happened."

"We've heard rumors — even before we got off the ship. I've even heard rumors, also, that I — behind closed doors — gave statements to the press and this is just absolutely not true."

(In Washington, Pearson's office released a statement it said had been dictated by the columnist, insisting the facts are "incontrovertible and he (Reagan) knows it."

(Pearson was reported out of town and not personally reachable.)

SATISFIED

In view of the widespread rumors, Reagan was asked, would he favor an investigation by an "ethics committee" to determine whether or not there was any truth in them.

"I'm satisfied with the knowledge we have," he replied, "and I'm certainly not going to dignify this kind of scurrilous gossip."

At another point, a correspondent noted that for weeks before the Pearson column, the state has been flooded with rumors "that you have conducted an investigation into some staff members in your office."

GOOD RUMOR

Reagan answered:

"You fellows all started out with a pretty good rumor, also, that due to some changes in personnel — that it was to set up a campaign organization for me for President."

"And when that didn't turn out to be true, all of a sudden we take a different tack with the rumors."

"Rumors are rumors and there's nothing to add to our original story about what is going on."

In replying to many of the questions, Reagan returned to a counter-attack on Pearson. He did not mention that Pearson had appeared on Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown's paid political broadcasts both in 1962 and 1966.

But he questioned whether any newspaper should publish the Pearson column.

"I think Drew Pearson shouldn't be using a type-writer and paper," he said.

"He's better with a pencil on out-building walls!"

MORE TO COME

He was asked if he expects further discomfort from Pearson's typewriter.

"I think this goes with the game," he replied, "and like President (Harry) Truman said: 'If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen.'"

When a correspondent finally inquired, "Can we change the subject," Reagan answered:

"I'd be very happy to, frankly."
Accompanied by Lyn Nofziger and a bodyguard, Governor Reagan leaves today's conference.
Reagan Quiz on Homosexual Ring

From Our Correspondent

Sacramento

Governor Ronald Reagan will be asked at his press conference this morning about a widely circulated report that he has found a homosexual ring operating among members of his administration.

For weeks now, perhaps, a score of names of persons who have been connected politically with the Governor have been bandied about in private clubs and public saloons. Not one responsible newspaper or broadcasting outlet has mentioned any names.

Nobody had brought forth any documentation that would substantiate the stories going the rounds.

PEARSON

But despite the lack of communication by the mass media, the story spread and in spreading became embellished. More and more names, including servants of the State of California, were mentioned.

Then, Drew Pearson, the nationally syndicated columnist who appears in hundreds of newspapers, put out a special report to his clients, including The San Francisco Chronicle. This report picked up the rumors that had been spreading through California—and added, perhaps, a few touches that Pearson had picked up.

DECLARATIONS

As far as was known early last night, no California newspaper had used the latest Pearson story.

But the ground swell of innuendo spread. Top aides to the Governor were busy for days issuing disclaimers of knowledge of any homosexual ring in the administration.

William P. Clark Jr., the Governor’s executive secretary, echoed what most of the others were telling reporters: “I am unaware of any such thing. It sounds fantastic. Recognizing that the latest telling of the story is attributed to Pearson, please consider the source.”

Franklyn Nofziger, director of communications for Governor Reagan, said last week: “As far as I know, there is nothing to it.”

PRESS

Asked by a reporter if the rumors had been brought to the Governor’s attention, he added: “He’ll tell you what I’ve just told you. There is no substance to it as far as we know.”

Because Clark and Nofziger disclaimed any personal knowledge of any such homosexual ring, it was reported here last night that the matter, once and for all, would be put to the assembled press corps this morning.
Pearson Asks a Reagan Lie Test

LOS ANGELES—(UPI)—Columnist Drew Pearson said yesterday that Gov. Reagan lied when he denied knowledge that two of his staff members were dismissed because they were homosexuals.

Pearson called a press conference to answer Reagan who last Tuesday denied knowledge of the alleged homosexual activity and also called the columnist a liar.

The charges of homosexual activity, rumored in Sacramento and in Washington for months, were aired in a Pearson column early last week which he said only three major California newspapers printed.

Pearson said, "I am quite convinced Gov. Reagan has lied about his knowledge of homosexuals in the government."

Pearson declined to identify the staff members he referred to in his column, saying, "the issue is the matter, not the personalities."

CHALLENGE

He challenged Reagan and the governor's communications director, Lyn Nofziger, to take lie detector tests and said he would be willing to submit to one also.

Pearson said Nofziger told reporters at the recent governors' conference aboard the liner Independence that a Reagan aide had been dropped on moral grounds.

Reagan arrived at nearby Santa Monica airport shortly after Pearson held his press conference and said the invitation to take a lie detector test was "too ridiculous to even talk about" although he said he had "no fear" of it.

As for an investigation by the attorney general, Reagan said, "I have said all I'm going to say on the subject."

ASKS PROBE

In Sacramento last Tuesday when the governor held his press conference he said, "I am prepared to say that nothing like this ever happened."

He asked Nofziger, standing nearby, to confirm what he said and Nofziger replied, "It's confirmed."

Pearson said he would like

Militant March by S.F. Homosexuals

A small group of homosexuals, describing themselves as rebels against the gay world's own square establishment, held a demonstration yesterday in the financial district.

Carrying signs reading "Freedom for Homos Now" and "Let Gays Live," a half-dozen or so young men paraded in front of 320 California street, giving pause to the hurrying noon-hour crowds.

The reaction from the public was one of amused interest with a few scattered hard stares and the occasional giggle from an office girl.

POINT

The immediate point of the demonstration was a protest against the firing of Gale Whittington, 21, as an accounting clerk by States Steamship Company, 320 California.

Whittington was dismissed after his bare-shouldered picture appeared in the underground Berkeley Barb accompanied by an article which proclaimed his homosexuality.

A spokesman for the company would only say that Whittington was "dismissed without prejudice and declined to comment further."

"It's plain that I was fired because I'm a homosexual and I said so publicly," the blond Whittington said yesterday as he shouldered a sign saying "States Line Hates Gays."

DECISION

Before making his decision to announce his sexual orientation, Whittington said he "thought about it quite awhile" and concluded it was time for homosexuals to declare themselves.

"If people only realized how many gay people are around," he said, "We should be allowed to be what we are."

Those "militants" within the homosexual world who want to campaign vigorously and publicly for acceptance by the straight world are opposed by the established gay institutions, he said.

The homosexual establishment is conservative and middle class, according to Leo Laurence, 36, a San Francisco writer, who, with Whittington, is co-chairman of the Committee for Homosexual Freedom.

"They are scared," said Laurence, who wore a button which proclaimed: "Gay is Good." "Today is simply the beginning of our campaign," he said.
A Different Protest

Signs drew glances from passersbys in the financial district.
Police Picketed
By Homosexuals

By Charles Howe

Wearing black arm-bands and carrying a $600 silver casket, a delegation of homosexuals and their friends picketed the Berkeley Police Department yesterday over the slaying of a suspected sex offender by police.

The protesters — ranging from business types to some rather campy individuals — said they were enraged over the shooting of Frank V. Bartley, 33, of 2107 Byron street in Berkeley.

Bartley, who had a record of arrests on charges of sex offenses, was shot in the head at 7:30 p.m. on April 17 in Berkeley's Aquatic Park when, plainclothes officers said, he tried to resist arrest.

The peaceful demonstration began at Glide Memorial Church here when representatives of homosexual and church groups called a press conference to protest Bartley's death.

Before the delegation arrived at the Berkeley Police Department, a Berkeley officer said that "no one here is happy" with Bartley's death.

Lieutenant Thomas Johnson said he was sure the two officers involved in Bartley's killing "are unhappy about it," and then gave his version of the killing.

Officers Welker Kline and Frank Reynolds of the department's crack Fourth Platoon were detailed to the park after a number of complaints to police about overt homosexual conduct there, Johnson said.

Bartley, described as "short but budy," solicited Kline in the suspect's car, Johnson said, and then Kline contrived an excuse to leave the automobile so that he and his partner could make an arrest.

Both officers moved in on the car and Kline, according to Lieutenant Johnson, then said he was a policeman and told Bartley he was under arrest.

"I'm not sure if Kline showed his credentials," Johnson said. "An officer doesn't have three hands and Kline was trying to open the passenger door of the car."

Bartley started his engine and tried to drive off from the secluded park area Johnson related, and at the point Kline pulled his gun "waist high."

In a scuffle — as Bartley apparently reached for the officer's pistol, Johnson said — the gun fired, sending a bullet into Bartley's head.

Bartley died at Herrick Hospital in Berkeley two days later.

The incident has been investigated by the police and the district attorney's office, Johnson said, and no charges are contemplated against the two officers.

Adams House nightspot on August 3, 1969, during demonstration in front of State St. 630 California St. S.D.
An intensive campaign to eliminate discrimination against homosexuals is being launched today by the COMMITTEE FOR HOMOSEXUAL FREEDOM. Our goals are: (1) to bring pride and dignity to the homosexual; (2) to eliminate the necessity for a double-life by gay people, most of whom feel pressured into concealing their homosexuality both at work and within the heterosexual community; (3) to pass Assemblyman Willie Brown's sex bill in the California Legislature.

The CFF is first concentrating on the States Steamship Company, at 320 California Street in San Francisco, which fired an accounting clerk, a 42-year-old gal, Whittington, after his photograph appeared in the Berkeley Barb in an embrace with another man. An accompanying article said both men were homosexual. Whittington was fired even though he had a good work record; had been with States Lines for over a year; had received two pay raises; and had never been told his work was other than satisfactory. Attempts to discuss the dismissal with M.B. Frohren, Whittington's boss, were refused, and it became clear that he had been fired solely because of his homosexuality. We assert such discrimination to be as unacceptable as that practiced against any other minority group. A man's performance on his job should be the only criterion for his continued employment; and certainly not his sexual orientation.

The COMMITTEE FOR HOMOSEXUAL FREEDOM is demanding the States Steamship Company sign an agreement with the C-H-F which will provide the following:

1. Immediately rehire Gale Whittington with full pay since his dismissal.

2. A public announcement that admitted homosexuals will be given equal employment opportunity at States Lines.

3. A public announcement that States Lines will not discriminate against persons already in the employ of the company who publicly admit their homosexuality, and that such persons will not be fired for such public admissions.

4. That no employee of States Lines which walks the picket line of the Committee for Homosexual Freedom at the 320 California Street location will be dismissed or disciplined for such act.

Beginning Wednesday noon, April 16, 1969, the COMMITTEE FOR HOMOSEXUAL FREEDOM will establish picket lines outside States Lines offices to show the world that this firm discriminates against homosexuals. The line will be withdrawn when that company agrees to comply with the above listed demands.

We will no longer passively accept the myth that homosexuality is a perversion allowing of discrimination, or something to be concealed out of guilt or fear. We claim no special status; we are neither as good nor as bad as any other social group in America. What we do claim are certain vital and basic human rights: the right to fully and openly express our needs, without fear of intimidation or reprisal; the right to be judged not by some inaccurate stereotype, but as individuals; and the right to enter fully, without concealing our homosexuality, the political, social, and economic fabric of America.

If you want more information, or want to discuss this with us, or want to find out how you can help, C-H-F's address is 15 Beaver St., S.F., 94111; phone 431 2342.
Eight members of the Gay Liberation Front arrested during a Halloween picketing at the doors of The Examiner building were given suspended jail terms and probation today.

Municipal Judge Harry Low ordered the five day suspended jail sentences and six month probationary terms after the nine pleaded no contest to a charge of refusing to follow police orders.

"Originally, the eight had been booked for disturbing the peace, malicious mischief, and blocking a sidewalk but after a conference between Assistant District Attorney Curt Owens and defense attorney Ellen Buchanan, an agreement was reached to plead no contest to the new charge.

The eight are Carston Clausen, David Brower, Philip Nies, Richard Cook, Karen Harrick, Jack Ranson, Leo Lawrence, and Michael Carboni.

Dawson Dias, a ninth defendant, failed to appear in court and a bench warrant for his arrest was issued by Judge Low.

Two others arrested in the protest against an Examiner story dealing with gay after hours bars are awaiting prosecution for assaulting a police officer.
Protest of Firing

A Parade of Gay Pickets

Some 60 members of the Gay Liberation Front, an organization dedicated to making homosexuality an integral part of American culture, picketed through the downtown area yesterday.

The specific target of the day, however, was the American Broadcasting Company's KGO television and radio center at 227 Golden Gate Avenue.

FIRING

The pickets marched from Civic Center carrying signs such as "Gay Love is Good Love" and "Love Thy Brother." As they passed by the draft-board headquarters on McAllister street, they shouted, "Make soldiers, not war."

They were protesting against KGO Radio's firing of Leo Laurence, 37, an ABC network news editor who said he was notified of his dismissal a day after he joined in a Gay protest against the San Francisco Examiner.

Police vehicles followed the demonstrators as they marched to Union Square.

JAILED

In front of 300 California Street, police arrested two young men who had been using bullhorns to evoke mass yells of protest against the heterosexual establishment.

The two were jailed on charges of using obscene language and disturbing the peace. They were:

Stephen Matthews, 24, a student, of 15 Beaver street; and William Patrick Brown, 24, of 2466 California street.

According to Matthews, one of the allegedly obscene slogans shouted advice to "beat the draft" by engaging in oral copulation.

Gays Win Role in Family Service

By Drew McKillips

The Family Service Agency of San Francisco voted last night to appoint two homosexuals — one man and one woman — to its board of directors.

The agency also voted to expand its membership from 25 to 26 members — specifically to make room for the additions.

The action came after moving amendments by a male lawyer and a female author and lecturer that the homosexual relationship is grossly misunderstood and is, in its own way, a family relationship that presents family problems.

The agency provides professional family counselling services to all San Francisco residents who ask for them. The agency offers a community service center and offers homemakers service for families where the mother is temporarily absent from the home.

Approximately 40 to 45 percent of its budget is derived from the United Bay Area Crusade. The 1970 allotment of the crusade is $256,000.

Other funds come from private foundations, private contributions, and contracts with private agencies.

John E. Dearman, the president of the agency, told The Chronicle that he would appoint the two new directors — as yet unnamed — in time for this January's board meeting.

REQUESTS

The agency will also tackle six other requests by San Francisco's gay community:

- Two "declared" homosexuals — one man and one woman — should be appointed as gay community organizers.
- There should be two "declared" homosexual counselors — one man and one woman.
- There should be a forceful, public position statement and letter of support by the agency on the matter of homosexuality.
- There should be an irrevocable and public commitment by the agency to the welfare of homosexuals, including agency investment of some of its present Bay Area Crusade money in gay programs.
- There should be aggressive, positive action by the agency to obtain additional United Crusade funds to finance and expand programs outlined to change United Crusade direction toward gay needs.
- There should be a two-day televised seminar on homosexuality in cooperation with the University of California Medical Center.

The board decided to take on the six requests at future meetings — with the particular help of the two new board members.

The vote to expand the board to include the two homosexuals came after arguments by Dorothy "Del" Martin, an author and lecturer, and one of the founders of the Daughters of Bilitis, a lesbian organization; and by Earl H. "Rick" Stokes, a lawyer and president of the Council on Religion and the Homosexual.

Mrs. Martin, who is a grandparent, argued that it was a misconception to think of homosexuals as "single" persons.

"Seldom do people really live," Mrs. Martin said, "as they live. They are unaware of and understand the problems of interaction within those families.

Furthermore, homosexuals form intimate relationships in a partnership or marriage which to them it's only that their in-laws, for the most part, are unaware of the unspoken, implicit status in the family.

Homosexuals also relate to family in the much larger sense of community — both in the majority culture and in the homosexual subculture."

Mrs. Martin said it is these relationships which cause so much the "pain and despair" for the homosexual.

Stokes outlines the reasons he felt the board should appoint two homosexual members.

"The lesbian not only has to fight for the right to be a homosexual, but she is at the same time, a woman, in a male dominated and oriented society. This board indicated its support for the woman's struggle against oppression at its October board meeting. The acceptance of this request for a woman as well as a man is acting upon that support."

Homosexuals Elected
By S.F. Family Service

Two declared homosexuals were elected yesterday to the board of directors of San Francisco's Family Service Agency over only the mildest opposition.

Election of the two, Sally Gearhart, 39, a former college teacher, and Earl G. (Jack) Stokes, 35, an attorney and president of the Council on Religion and the Homosexual, came at the annual meeting of the board at agency headquarters, 1010 Sough street.

Two months ago the agency voted to name a man and a woman from the city's homosexual community to its board, and at the same time voted to expand the board from 24 to 26 members to make room for the additions.

VACANCIES
For procedural reasons, his action was revoked and Miss Gearhart and Stokes were elected to fill two existing vacancies.

The only two to speak against the motion to appoint Miss Gearhart and Stokes to the board were board members Herbert L. Levy and James Cather.

Levy bespoke his "very great distress over a fundamental drastic departure from good policy" and said: "No conferring on membership to homosexuals is not only naive but stupid."

Cather, who did not attend the November meeting, said his action represents a "significant policy shift that could lead to similar demands by all the different groups representing the concerns of his agency."

Announcement of the almost uncontested election of Miss Gearhart and Stokes by President Ward Laidman was greeted with a storm of applause from the overflow audience that included members of both the "gay" and "straight" communities.

The Family Service Agency, which derives its funds in part from the United Bay Area Crusade, concentrates on social and guidance services for families in trouble.

A Parade
By 1000
S.F. Gays

By James Finefrock

It wasn't Middletown, U.S.A. For some, it wasn't even San Francisco.

It was the City's first-ever Gay Parade. Costumed in an array of paint and polish, over 1000 gays wound their way through downtown San Francisco, past topless-bottomless joints, bookstores offering the works of Harold Robbins, and pick-up bars, symbols of other more established forms of sexual preference.

The onlookers, both gay and curious straight, gave the marchers a friendly, occasionally bewildered reception. There was, however, the sidewalk preacher on Post Street warning of Sodom and Gomorrah and instructing, "Touch not the unclean thing."

Half and Half

For the most part, the crowd was what Big Jim, a 300-pounder in crinoline, had expected: half curious, half friendly.

The parade was intended by its organizers as a celebration, not a protest, to show the unity of the City's gay community.

Only one incident at the beginning of the march broke that spirit of community. Rev. Raymond Broshears and a group of radical lesbians from Berkeley yelled briefly over a sign the women were carrying, which protested male chauvinism.

The women later assaulted Broshears as he stood on the speakers' platform and accused him of kicking one of their number.

Of officially known as the Christopher Street West--San Francisco Gay Parade, the march featured an unprecedented number of people.

Mr. Gay San Francisco was there. So were Mr. Tavern Guild, Mr. Gayville, the Grand Duchess, an empress or two and a smattering of other royalty.

Also in the parade were Rev. William Johnson, the first self-proclaimed homosexual to be ordained as a minister in a major U.S. church (The United Church of Christ), a float from the Metropolitan Community Church, the Hot Moon Commune, and the Angels of Light.

The crowd at the reviewing stand numbered about 2000. Police remained on the fringes of the mass of people, despite some short-lived nude dancing by members of the Hot Moon Commune following the official ceremonies.

A police parade permit had been issued to the coalition of homosexual organizations that spearheaded the parade effort.

Parade co-chairman Bob Humphries was encouraged by the numbers who had marched. "The parade showed Gay people in all their incredible forms," he said. "This will encourage more gays to come out and do their thing. And in an election year, it's good to get out the Gay voters for the politicians to see."

Three Years From the Closet

Gay Aide on City Staff

By Michael Grieg

Jo Daly, the newest staff addition to the Human Rights Commission here, may be the first government official anywhere whose salaried job was designed to serve the gay community. In any case, the 59-year-old San Franciscan is certainly one of the only officials to admit proudly that she's gay herself.

"I came out of the closet three years ago," she said yesterday after two weeks at the unusual post. She was appointed by human rights commissioner William Becker. "I decided the gay movement needed articulate spokespeople willing to work with the establishment to change laws and attitudes."

She wore a denim jacket and pants for her first interview at the commission's office at 1095 Market Street.

"This is a good opportunity to let San Francisco's 100,000 homosexual men and women know I'm here," she said. "I'm here to help them fight against discrimination in housing, employment, education, criminal justice and wherever else I can."

As a community liaison official, she earns $7400 annually with the commission, which was originally set up to deal with discrimination due to race, religion and na-
Jo Daly is paid $7400 to serve the homosexual community.

In 1972, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors added protection of sex and sexual orientation to the commission's duties, and now federal public service employment funds have been used to fill the post.

"This job is no financial windfall for me," said the former car saleswoman. "Even at that, I find myself putting in 60 hours a week with no overtime.

"But it's a job that has to be done. And there aren't many people who can afford to leave their regular professions to do it or, for that matter, afford to go public as a gay person."

A native of Washington, she said she made the decision to "go public" three years ago after "a time of thinking and seclusion in a log cabin near Manassas, Virginia, with only my St. Bernard, Michelle, to keep me company."

"I finally decided to go to San Francisco — 3000 miles away from my family and friends — so I could be myself."

She joined the city's Alice B. Toklas Democratic Club and eventually ran for the Democratic County Central Committee — one of the first gay women to make the attempt.

"I didn't win but I didn't lose by much even though I made it clear that I was gay," she said. "And it helped in the long run. I was recently appointed to the party's state committee as the first avowed gay woman ever."

In her new post, she plans to concentrate on discrimination in employment and the criminal justice system, "I'd also like to work out an educational program for high schools, the police and employer groups," she said.

One important consideration, she noted, is to allay the fears of the general public toward the gay world.

"People have fears that we're always trying to convert others into a gay life style," she said, with a smile. "There's no need to worry. After all, I grew up in a heterosexual environment and it didn't rub off on me."
S.F. gays pray—Anita sees light

"That's disgusting," snapped the tall, fuzzy-haired gay man in cutoff jeans, brown thigh-length boots and silver beads around his throat.

Then he shrugged, "Oh, well, we'll just have to pray that Anita sees the light."

Mavis, the bearded bartender at the Polk Street gay bar, N'Touch, had announced to the silent patrons that the Miami gay rights battle had lost by a two-to-one margin.

"The issue is save the children, but it should have been educate the children," he said to cheers.

Then he confided, "This is the first time I've ever felt threatened. It's ominous. I hope the gay community has enough stamina and guts to fight it."

Most gays professed to being unsurprised by the Bade County anti-gay victory. But they were dejected by its size.

Victory celebrations were hastily canceled. At the N'Touch, they decided to pass around California oranges anyway, inviting the customers to squeeze them.

"You just can't lay down and let a steamroller go over you," said the bar's co-owner, Paul Bentley. "You've got to get up and keep fighting."

His fellow owner, Carl Stander, predicted, "This fight isn't over. It's going to get rougher. We might as well start a war, or we won't have any rights at all. Why should we hide our sexual preferences in this day and age?"

And Wayne Friday, acting president of the 70-bar Tavern Guild representing about a third of The City's gay bars, said, "This is just one battle at the start of a long war.

"I expected it but, to be honest, I'm disappointed and surprised at the size of her victory. But that's the Deep South, and I'd hate the local gay community to get discouraged by this."

He said the consensus is that 28 per cent of San Francisco's voters are gay. "Our next step is to mount a massive voter campaign for the Aug. 2 special election.

"We couldn't mount one in Miami. Our hands were tied. All we could do was send a lot of money -- close to $50,000."
—Rick Slavsky, a bar bouncer on Castro Street, was also gloomy. "A friend of mine said, 'How can you feel threatened in San Francisco? But I think this is the start of something."

E. Wilson Purdy, public safety director of Metropolitan Dade County, said in San Francisco this morning that he did not anticipate any change in law enforcement policies as a result of the election.

"I am not interested in the lifestyle of any lawbreaker," the No. 1 policeman of the Miami area declared at a news conference. Purdy addressed the Rotary International convention here on "Crime—Its Roots and Consequences."

Asked if he considered San Francisco a "cesspool of sex," as charged by one of Bryant's aides, Purdy again kept his cool. He said diplomatically:

"This is my first visit to San Francisco. I think it would be most inappropriate for me to comment on anything like that."

—Ivan Shapic
Moscone: Miami voted on issue that is wrong

Mayor Moscone defended gay rights and San Francisco today in the aftermath of the Dade County election.

"The issue in Dade County was very simply an issue of human rights. Yesterday's vote says that some people have rights and others do not. I think that is terribly wrong. I am proud that my city and my state have both taken progressive legal stands against such hate discrimination against people."

"Let me further state that I am not the least bit complacent about the campaign rhetoric of Anita Bryant and her followers which distorted the real issue and which slandered San Francisco along the way.

"We are proud that in San Francisco we know the meaning of the great American melting pot and that we have learned to live with our neighbors, regardless of the color of their skin, their economic status, their religious beliefs or their sexual preferences."

Miami vote stuns The City's homosexuals

By Ivan Sharpe

Thousands of roaring and chanting gays, in a spontaneous gesture of fury at Anita Bryant's stunning anti-homosexual victory in Miami, marched over Nob Hill last night to hold a noisy, midnight rally in Union Square.

The extraordinary demonstration — its size estimated at as many as 5,000 people — surprised even gay leaders, who had planned a small candlelight rally and "silent protest" walk along Castro Street.

The unplanned, five-mile walk along Market Street, up Polk and Clay, down California and Powell and back along Market to Castro, lasted more than three hours, startled people out of their beds on Nob Hill and ﬂabbergasted tourists outside the Fairmont and Mark Hopkins hotels.

"I think it's disgraceful," muttered Ray Gravatte, as the demonstrators marched past the Fairmont chanting "Gay Rights" and "We are people, too."

Gravatte, an engineer from Springfield, Va., is here for the Rotary International convention. "We've really enjoyed this town — it's sad this has to happen," he added, tight-lipped.

Said his wife, Gall, in long evening gown, "It's just incredible, fascinating." Then, quickly turning toward the hotel's doors, she added, "Let's go and get a drink."
By Octopus San Francisco, 3:20 a.m. — San Francisco celebrated with delight to the unusual "midnight" sight. "It's beautiful, great. I love it," smiled Croce Bonner, a 21-year-old cameo salesperson.

"You can't deny people their rights. I'd like to join them, but it's hard because I'm straight."

Mary Arguello, 27, on the other hand, said, "I got out of bed to join them. I think it's great. A lot of my friends are gay."

The gay marchers themselves were ecstatic over what was happening. "It's wonderful. We didn't expect so many," said Bill Checkwala of Gay Action as he stood up and down, megaphone in his left, trying to keep the marchers to the right of Market Street.

"Anita's really bringing us together. She's a scary woman, but she's probably the best thing that's happened to us."

The protest began about 10 p.m. at Castro and Market streets. The crowd quickly grew to nearly 2,000, and began chanting, "Down with hate — educate! We have the power to fight back" and other slogans.

As their enthusiasm grew, the whooping and cheering demonstrators waved candles and flashlight signs. "Anita may think this is God, but she's got a lot to learn," yelled one man.

"We're going to love the bitch to death," roared another, to smiles and whistles.

"Miami's going to learn from this," said gay political activist Harvey Milk, standing in the crowd. "This is the power of the gay community. Anita's going to create a national gay force."

"What's happening is an outpouring of love and warmth for all gay people, and bitterness against the churches," he explained.

After marching about 10 blocks around the Castro area, the grinding and hugging men set off down Market Street chanting "Paddy Street."

Then the marchers flooded into the streets and small groups went in to bars at patrons to join them. When many did, the cheers grew deafening.

Late-night restaurant and bus passengers were so excited to add their numbers to the growing throng. Smiling and giddy, they all began honking their horns in support.

Two police cars tried politely to keep the marred traffic out of the marchers way. For the most part, the exuberant gay's were orderly and obeyed commands by hastily organized volunteers to keep close together.

After passing City Hall, the leaders tried to hold the crowd back. But when the police disappeared for several blocks, the yelling marchers broke into a run toward the Polk Street gay bars.

Just before Clay Street, the chant began: "Gay Revolution."

Several hundred began to head up Nob Hill, while others continued down Polk Street. But then the confusion ended with more cheers, and everyone turned up the residential street.

A lone patrol car,one block ahead with lights flashing, was caught up by the change of direction and quickly sped around the block to catch up.

As the "gay rights" yell grew in volume, bedroom lights snapped on and people in nightclothes stared into the street incredulously.

Atop Nob Hill, hundreds of marchers swarmed into the park opposite the Huntington Hotel, expecting the march to end there. But the enthusiasm of the marchers growing in numbers all the time, pushed them on down California Street.

Hotel guests, resplendent in evening dresses, watched with mouths agape at a sight they are unlikely ever to see in their hometowns. Many were confused at the enthusiasm, and thought Anita Bryant had lost and that they were watching a victory march.

Then the marchers were out of the park and onto the streets. Small groups went into bars at patrons to join them. When many did, the cheers grew deafening.

While most of the marchers were conventionally garbed in jeans and sweat shirts, there were enough bearded men in women's clothes and lipstick, hairy types to draw horned gquets.

They were startled, too, to see so many women among the demonstration.

After marching down Powell Street to the further stores of cable cars full of tourists, the gay crowd filled Union Square.

Singing "We Shall Overcome," the demonstrators ran up a red "Gay Revolution" flag to the top of the square's flagpole. When the flag was raised, a young woman scrambled up the pole to free it to the cheering applause.

Half an hour later, about 12:30 a.m., they headed back along Market Street to Castro, trailed by half a dozen police cars.

"Nobody's been hurt and there have been no unusual incidents that I've heard of," said Police Officer Dennis Newcomer. "We've just had traffic problems."

A few minutes later, a block away, a young man jumped out of a green car and began swinging chains at some of the stragglers. He was jumped on by several gay men, and then led away handcuffed by the police.
Arrests in Gay Murder
Cops Hold 2 Suspects — 2 Others Hunted

By Katy Butler and Jerry Roberts

San Francisco homicide investigators arrested two men yesterday in connection with the brutal stabbing earlier this week of homosexual Robert Hillsborough.

Michael Chavez, 18, of 321 Ninth Avenue, Daly City, and Thomas J. Spooner, 21, of 433 Sixth Avenue in San Bruno, were booked at City Prison.

At 7:15 p.m., Municipal Court Judge John Signa signed arrest warrants for the two other suspects in the slaying.

Police sources said both of them live in Daly City. One is a 17-year-old juvenile and the other is 20 years old.

Chavez was picked up in the afternoon at a Daly City restaurant where he is employed as a pantryman. He was questioned for several hours before being booked at about 8:30 p.m. last night, according to homicide Lieutenant Daniel Murphy.

Spooner was arrested at his home last night.

Police said that neither of the two men was believed to have actually stabbed Hillsborough late Wednesday night.

Spooner was being held on $50,000 bail. Chavez was being held without bail, according to Murphy. The two suspects are scheduled to be arraigned on Monday.

Murphy said that investigators know the identity of the suspected stabber, but the suspect, along with a fourth man believed to have been present during the slaying, had not...
been arrested by late last night.

Police also impounded a 1974 green Buick Opel, which they said the suspects were riding in the night of the slaying.

The car in which the suspects were riding had originally been identified by witnesses as a Chevrolet.

Homicide investigators also confirmed that the arrests were made on the basis of information provided by two informants. One of the informants appeared at the Hall of Justice yesterday, Murphy said, while the other crossed homicide inspectors on the telephone.

The knife that was used in the murder Hillsborough has not been found, police said.

Neither suspect offered resistance when arrested.

One of the two informants in the case appeared at the Hall of Justice shortly before 8 o'clock last night and was heard to ask police where he could "pick up the reward."

The informant told The Chronicle he had heard about the slaying "through the grapevine."

Michael Chavez' older brother, Ben Chavez, 28, said he had talked to Michael earlier yesterday and that he "said he didn't do it."

"He said he was there and had seen it happen, but he said he wasn't involved," Ben Chavez said.

Ben Chavez said his brother had taken the car to a body shop for repairs following an accident about a week ago and that his brother was not trying to disguise the car.

The owner of the Daly City restaurant where Chavez was arrested said the suspect had washed dishes there for about six months and "seemed like a very nice kid."

"He always did his job well and never gave any problems," the owner said.

Randy Alfred, associate editor of the San Francisco Sentinel, a gay newspaper, said he was "gratified."

One of the murder suspects, Michael Chavez (head covered), was led into City Prison by Homicide Inspector Al Podesto.
Homicide Inspectors Mike Mullane (left) and Ronald Schneider (right) escorted another suspect, Thomas J. Spooner, who covered up with his jacket.
