Law Firms Located in U.S. States That Have At Least One Foreign Office

Prepared by Laurel S. Terry (April 9, 2015)
based on data provided by General Counsel Metrics, LLC.

General Counsel Metrics, LLC has created a database using information found on the websites of law firms that have approximately 37 lawyers or more and are located in U.S. jurisdictions. General Counsel Metrics LLC generously agreed to share pro bono information from its database with regulators.

Each of the 145 law firms listed below had 37 or more lawyers listed on its website at the time of the General Metrics survey and also had one or more foreign offices. While the data does not show whether the non-U.S. offices included foreign lawyers who were law firm partners or associates, this is likely to be the case for many of these law firms. As the accompanying maps show, 47 states and the District of Columbia have law firms located in their jurisdiction that also have at least one office located in a foreign country. Five jurisdictions had more than 100 offices of firms that also had a foreign office; eighteen jurisdictions had 10-99 such offices; and twenty-five U.S. jurisdictions had between 1-9 such offices located in their state. For twenty-one U.S. jurisdictions, the law firm office located in their state is the office with the most lawyers – i.e., probably the main office. Because the General Metrics database does not include every law firm in the country, there may be additional law firms in each state that have a foreign office.

This data strongly suggests implicit or explicit state policies that permit state-licensed lawyers to partner with, employ, or be employed both out-of-state lawyers and foreign lawyers. It also suggests that many clients NEED the services of both U.S. and foreign law offices.
