Plastic Fantastic

> Just when we were looking for a clever way to recycle plastic shopping bags, Canadian Living reader Melita Poley-Ruston of Hudson Bay, Sask., stitched up a great idea and shared it with us. Her crocheted carryalls work up quickly — especially with Melita’s easy handle shaping — and make the perfect totes for everything from books to bathing suits.
GENERAL NOTES:
- Sort plastic grocery and shopping bags into two lots: thick and thin.
- Printed bags crochet into great patterns, and the more color the better (you can organize into stripes or add and switch colors randomly for a variegated overall pattern).
- For square bag and smaller hook, cut thin bags into 4 to 5 cm (1½- to 2-in) wide strips.
- For round bag and larger hook, cut thin bags into 5 to 6.5 cm (2- to 2½-in) strips and thick bags into 2.5 to 4 cm (1- to 1½-in) strips.
- You can cut strips in two ways: Trim off top and bottom of bag, then, starting at top edge, cut strip in spiral, across and around bag, to bottom edge. Or trim off top of bag and lay bag flat on work surface, then, starting at top edge, cut strips straight down to fold at bottom edge, cutting through both layers.
- Tie strips together, end to end, with overhand knot; enclose strip ends as you crochet to avoid weaving in later.
- Get creative - customize the shape and size to suit yourself!
- To make longer handles for shoulder bag, work more chain stitches in first round of handle shaping for either pattern, then work 1 stitch into each chain stitch in next round. Or, make a round bag without handles, then thread a drawstring in and out around the top.
