Concept Design Report

Background

Upon the request of Harrison Ford, McDonough's McMansions (M.M) took on the task of developing the exterior and interior design of a non-traditional home. M.M was instructed to spare no expense and provide the employer with the designs for a home of the highest quality.

Design Concept

This vacation home was designed with "get-away" in mind. Not suited for hosting, this one bedroom house was designed to allow the owner to enjoy their lavish lifestyle away from the world. The indoor pool, almost 360 degree windows, and open floor layout offer the utmost comfortability and livability for a couple to enjoy.

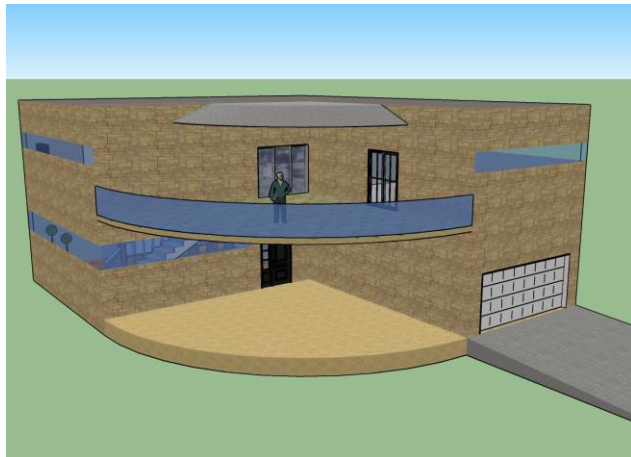

Mr. Ford's home is located in a 100 acre plot deep within a Pennsylvania forest to offer the most privacy for the esteemed employer.

Components of the Project

Mr. Ford's home design includes the structure of the house as well as the building materials and interior furnishings.

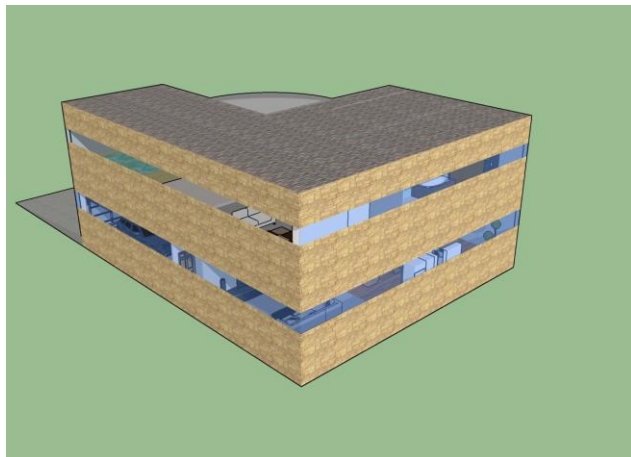

Project Description

Exterior View

View 1: Exterior Front

Front exterior features a large, partly covered, terrace and a porch, as well as the custom stone siding and wrap-around glass windows. The terrace cover is translucent and tinted to allow some light to pass through. A curved glass panel borders the outside of the terrace and two sliding glass doors provide access from the pool room and bedroom. The bottom floor features a 12' ceiling and a large garage.

View 2: Exterior Back

Back exterior also shows the wrap-around windows. The windows are placed strategically to promote the privacy of the client while allowing light to enter the room.
