

TEAM FOUR

Team four consists of three members, who are Jeffrey, Grant, and August. We have many different personalities but each of us has strengths that will help the team. After analyzing the results, we found that Grant's strengths are found in the conscientiousness and agreeableness field. This means that Grant is very laid back, but functions well due to the high score in conscientiousness. He can be a big help in the overall design and improvement steps of the project process. Jeffrey's results show us that a majority of his personality is Agreeableness and Neuroticism. The strength of Agreeableness is that he can trust his teammates and agree with them better than others. The strength of Jeffrey's Neuroticism is his cautiousness and concern for the projects we will do. He will be more aware about what is happening during the project process. August can help out the group with certain strengths such as being very cheerful and gregarious. He scored moderately high for these two categories, on the personality test, and we believe that every group should have cheerfulness in case they start getting frustrated or tired. He also scored very high for altruism. August usually goes out of his way to help others and he believes that he can be helpful to the group by assisting his group members whenever they need help. Another trait that we think can be beneficial to the group is that August is very organized. He scored extremely high for orderliness and we believe that he can help the group get very organized with sorting out papers and keeping all of the documents safely stored.
