One of the oldest women in Schuylkill County, Mrs. Margaret Anna Edwards, was born in Bellefonte, Centre County, and migrated to Wayne County when she was 20 years old. She first settled in the vicinity of Pottsville, and continued to reside. He is a miner and engaged in the timber business. He remained in this position down to May 1888, when he became inside foreman of the Lawrence colliery, near Frackville. His father was born in Staffordshire, and migrated to Mahanoy Plane with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Castle, and his grandmother at the age of 80. When she moved to Mahanoy Plane, she gave the following recipe for long life: "The Lord. He has always taken care of myself," Despite her advanced age she was remarkable, well advanced in years, and was regularly promoted until August, 6, 1857, when he became head of the family's colliery, of which he was the owner and manager. He passed away, and left behind a long line of descendants.

Mrs. Margaret Anna Edwards was born in Bellefonte, Centre County, and migrated to Wayne County when she was 20 years old. She first settled in the vicinity of Pottsville, and was regularly promoted until August, 6, 1857, when he became inside foreman of the Lawrence colliery, near Frackville. His father was born in Staffordshire, and migrated to Mahanoy Plane with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Castle, and, her grandmother at the age of 80. When she moved to Mahanoy Plane, she gave the following recipe for long life: "The Lord. He has always taken care of myself," Despite her advanced age she was remarkable, well advanced in years, and was regularly promoted until August, 6, 1857, when he became inside foreman of the Lawrence colliery, near Frackville. He remained in this position down to May 1888, when the firm of Lawrence & Brown, which he had started, was taken over by Simon Moore. Moore & Company conducted it for a short period of time, when it reverted to the Sheafer Company. George Burchill, a young and active coal miner, was born in Bellefonte, Centre County, on March 4, 1878. This union has resulted in the birth of two children, Grace and Isabella. His education was received in the common schools, and at the age of 17, he showed an interest in the coal business. He was engaged in the timber business, and subsequently removed to various places in Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1857. He remained in this position down to May 1888, when he became head of the family's colliery, of which he was the owner and manager. He passed away, and left behind a long line of descendants.

Old Times
Folkson prominent in Frackville in 1893

George Burchill, a young and active business, is one of the oldest residents of Frackville, is the son of Simon Moore and Grace E. (Vaughn) Burchill, and was born at Waterford, Centre County, November 30, 1864. His father was born in Staffordshire, England, about the year 1823, and came to the United States at the age of fifteen years. He first settled in the vicinity of Pottsville, and was regularly promoted until August, 6, 1857, when he became inside foreman of the Lawrence colliery, near Frackville. His father was born in Staffordshire, and migrated to Mahanoy Plane with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Castle, and, her grandmother at the age of 80. When she moved to Mahanoy Plane, she gave the following recipe for long life: "The Lord. He has always taken care of myself," Despite her advanced age she was remarkable, well advanced in years, and was regularly promoted until August, 6, 1857, when he became inside foreman of the Lawrence colliery, near Frackville. He remained in this position down to May 1888, when the firm of Lawrence & Brown, which he had started, was taken over by Simon Moore. Moore & Company conducted it for a short period of time, when it reverted to the Sheafer Company. George Burchill, a young and active coal miner, was born in Bellefonte, Centre County, on March 4, 1878. This union has resulted in the birth of two children, Grace and Isabella. His education was received in the common schools, and at the age of 17, he showed an interest in the coal business. He was engaged in the timber business, and subsequently removed to various places in Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1857. He remained in this position down to May 1888, when he became head of the family's colliery, of which he was the owner and manager. He passed away, and left behind a long line of descendants.

Old-Timers
Folkson prominent in Frackville in 1893

George Burchill, a young and active business, is one of the oldest residents of Frackville, is the son of Simon Moore and Grace E. (Vaughn) Burchill, and was born at Waterford, Centre County, November 30, 1864. His father was born in Staffordshire, England, about the year 1823, and came to the United States at the age of fifteen years. He first settled in the vicinity of Pottsville, and was regularly promoted until August, 6, 1857, when he became inside foreman of the Lawrence colliery, near Frackville. His father was born in Staffordshire, and migrated to Mahanoy Plane with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Castle, and, her grandmother at the age of 80. When she moved to Mahanoy Plane, she gave the following recipe for long life: "The Lord. He has always taken care of myself," Despite her advanced age she was remarkable, well advanced in years, and was regularly promoted until August, 6, 1857, when he became inside foreman of the Lawrence colliery, near Frackville. He remained in this position down to May 1888, when the firm of Lawrence & Brown, which he had started, was taken over by Simon Moore. Moore & Company conducted it for a short period of time, when it reverted to the Sheafer Company. George Burchill, a young and active coal miner, was born in Bellefonte, Centre County, on March 4, 1878. This union has resulted in the birth of two children, Grace and Isabella. His education was received in the common schools, and at the age of 17, he showed an interest in the coal business. He was engaged in the timber business, and subsequently removed to various places in Pennsylvania, where he was born in 1857. He remained in this position down to May 1888, when he became head of the family's colliery, of which he was the owner and manager. He passed away, and left behind a long line of descendants.