The introductory SolidWorks project that was assigned was to build and render a tabletop assembly. We had to follow specific instructions for the lamp, table and lampshade to learn how to use SolidWorks and different features effectively. The table legs and two other components were completely our own design. I added a small vase and large coffee mug because I am an avid coffee drinker. I also rendered those two items in emerald to have some fun with the PhotoView360 feature.