

ABOUT ME

To begin, my name is Olivia Mroczko. I live at the Jersey Shore, specifically Point Pleasant, NJ. All my life, I have grown up sailing and swimming in the bay and on the ocean. Because of this, I developed a love of science, after all, sailing is science. After taking Chemistry in High School, I knew I wanted to pursue it and looked into the engineering aspect of Chemistry. It added to the appeal of pursuing Chemistry, as the engineering aspect allows me to work hands-on in more ways than just in a lab, and opens so many more doors on what I can pursue in life. Pennsylvania State University has one of the best programs and alumni connections to make this dream possible to pursue.
