Philosophical Football Team?

The Philadelphia Inquirer of Saturday, November 6, 1960, furnished the following item for the benefit of all football fans:

"They say that football is a game of life and death, and in the last few weeks it has been a game that many have wondered if it would ever come to pass. But on Saturday, November 6, 1960, it did. The football season was started at Pennsylvania State University, and the game was played in the Stadium in State College, Pa. The game was between the University of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania State University. The fans were so enthusiastic that they had to be restrained by the police. The Pennsylvania State University won the game, 14-7, and the fans were elated. The game was held in memory of the late football coach, who had been a great innovator in the game of football. The fans and the players were all in good spirits, and the game was well played. The fans had been waiting for this game for a long time, and now that it is over, they are all satisfied."

Shedd Speaks Out For Individualism

Gorden Shedd, assistant pro-vocateur for the Hub, is the first in a series of administering to the HUB. He brings a fresh 口气 to the Hub's relationship with faculty and students, and the Hub committee is happy to announce that Shedd will be an important voice in the future.

SHELLY WEDDING SCENE from Jack Wade's production "The Poor People of Ireland" by George Baker, shows Don Till-on playing the role of Mahon and Tony Woodham as the father. The production was met with mixed reviews, but Shedd believes in the potential of the Hub as a forum for individual expression.

VILLIT, a new play written by Tony Villet, will be premiered at the HUB on November 5. The play will be directed by Mike Hunter and will feature a cast of up-and-coming actors from the College community.

The play is set in a dystopian future where humanity faces a rebellion against the computerized rulers. The main character, Villet, is a rebel who will stop at nothing to bring down the system.
