Season of 1704-1705

The great event of the season was the long-awaited opening of the Queen's Theatre in the Haymarket in April 1705. Vanbrugh's new playhouse was to function only briefly as a venue for spoken drama, but was to be London's principal opera house until it burned in 1789. As such, it was to be a building of considerable importance, but when it opened it was intended as an ordinary playhouse, and it radically changed the balance of theatrical competition in London. The actor cooperative that had broken away from the patent company in 1695 had always occupied the small and inadequate "second" Lincoln’s Inn Fields theatre, and when Vanbrugh agreed to assume managerial responsibility for the group and move it into his new theatre, he made them a suddenly more potent rival to the relatively successful but ill-contented company at Drury Lane under Christopher Rich.

At the outset of this season both companies knew full well that the status quo was strictly temporary. When Vanbrugh opened his fancy new theatre, competitive circumstances would change. We do not know exactly when Vanbrugh and Congreve assumed daily operational control of the Lincoln’s Inn Fields company: at the outset of the season? when they received their royal license in December? after the new theatre finally opened in April 1705? In any case, the company appears to have functioned much as usual throughout most of the season, as does Drury Lane. Lincoln’s Inn Fields was simply conducting a holding action. At Drury Lane, management’s outlook is harder to guess. Rich was aggressive in stealing an opera from Vanbrugh (discussed below), but to judge from his ads this season, he regarded Richard Estcourt as his most reliable drawing-card. Estcourt received star billing in a surprising number of ads.

Vanbrugh and Congreve were looking for a competitive edge (over and above the new theatre itself), and their bright idea was to introduce Italianate (i.e., all-sung) opera. In all probability no one at this time seriously contemplated the notion of regular performances in Italian. A publicity plant in the Diverting Post of 28 October (its inaugural issue) refers to two operas...
“almost finish’d” and mentions their being translated, seemingly as a matter of course. Daniel Purcell’s Orlando Furioso was apparently never completed, but Thomas Clayton’s Arsinoe (with words by Motteux) proved a tremendously popular novelty. Unfortunately for Vanbrugh, it did so at the rival theatre. Exactly how Christopher Rich made off with it we do not know, but evidently Vanbrugh had not signed a contract with Clayton, and Rich must have slipped in and offered better terms. Arsinoe ran steadily (and reportedly very profitably) throughout the spring and was to do so again the next season. The singers were local talent and the language was English, but public taste for the new wave in opera was established, and Rich had clearly stolen a march on his rivals.

What should Vanbrugh and Congreve do? They found themselves plagued by endless construction delays, and there was no point in mounting fancy productions at Lincoln’s Inn Fields when the scenery would not properly fit the new theatre. A month and a half before Arsinoe was produced at Drury Lane, they apparently inaugurated the new theatre with a concert that may have been attended by the Queen. At this time the theatre was probably no more than a shell: the acting company did not move there until April, and the theatre had to be closed for three months the following summer to be “entirely finish’d,” while the company returned to Lincoln’s Inn Fields. As late as 3 February Congreve wrote to a friend that they had no idea when the theatre could open, or what they would open it with, “but I believe with no opera” (quoted in the calendar, below). What they finally decided to do was daring, imaginative, and unsuccessful. Following the Passion Week recess, they opened the Queen’s Theatre Haymarket with Jacomo (or Jakob) Greber’s Gli amori d’Ergasto. The identity of the performers is cloudy (probably mostly Italian singers currently resident in London), but the performance was almost unquestionably in Italian. There were no advertisements of the initial performances, and later commentary is decidedly confused and contradictory. Everyone agrees, however, that the production was a fiasco: there appear to have been no more than five performances. This production was followed by revivals of old plays with old costumes and scenery (so Downes informs us), the result being a decidedly feeble start for the new theatre.

By March 1705 simmering resentments and hostility between the two companies broke forth into open warfare. Vanbrugh and Congreve were planning to stage a Molière translation called The Consultation (i.e., L’Amour médecin). They were apparently greatly annoyed by Drury Lane’s rushing its own version into production, a play called The Quacks, by Owen Swiney. Vanbrugh used his good social and government connections to get the piece suppressed twice (see 29 March), a high-handed proceeding that naturally drew loud complaints from Drury Lane. The “seduction” of Susanna Mountfort away from the Haymarket, and some snippy prologues and epilogues in June suggest a state of acute tension between the companies.

In truth, Vanbrugh had always envisioned a monopoly under his own direction, and he had no desire whatever to be engaged in costly competition with a second company. At the end of the spring he brought every pressure he could contrive on Rich to agree to a union, with Vanbrugh in charge of the resulting united company. On 19 July 1705 he sent Rich a set of “Proposals for Reducing the two Companies of Players into one” (printed under date, below). They were outrageously self-serving on Vanbrugh’s part, and we cannot be surprised that Rich proved unwilling to cooperate. Very shortly thereafter 33 members of the Drury Lane company addressed a formal printed petition to the Lord Chamberlain, loudly protesting any plan whereby many of them would unquestionably lose their employment in London (see ca. Monday 23 July). Hard as it is to sympathize with the tyrannical and dishonest Christopher Rich, one can hardly help but agree with the blistering terms of his formal refusal of all union proposals in a letter to the Lord Chamberlain (see 25 July). Charles Gildon’s summation of the controversy (see ca. early August) probably reflects much of the informed opinion around London: the public preferred to have two companies of actors, and Vanbrugh’s “proposals” were seen as a nakedly self-interested power grab. We probably do not know all of the twists, turns, and stratagems in the battle. In LC 7/3, fols. 5-6, for example, there is an undated set of “Regulations for the Directors of the Playhouse.” These could well date from the summer of 1705. They provide for a new set of company bylaws; a group of “Honorary Directors,” and the abolition of the benefit system, even for writers of plays. No such system ever came into operation, but we offer the hypothesis that this set of operational rules represents a proposal from Vanbrugh to the Lord Chamberlain presented as part of a union package at this time. If so, nothing came of it. With the benefit of hindsight, we can see very clearly that no suggestion from Vanbrugh that put his rival out of business could possibly have been accepted. The result was a stand-off: the Lord Chamberlain was Vanbrugh’s friend and ally, but he was evidently not prepared to face the uproar that an enforced union would unquestionably have generated. The two companies would, therefore, find themselves again in direct competition when they reopened for 1705-06.

An interesting feature of the newspaper ads this season is that starting on 5 October virtually every notice for both theatres is accompanied by a statement that “This Play is Sold by Richard Wellington at the Dolphin and Crown in St. Paul’s Church-yard.” A few performances are known only from The Diverting Post, a new weekly with a strong literary and theatrical bent. It lasted little more than a year, and it is at best a scrappy mélange, but it represents the first serious attempt at arts coverage in London since Motteux’s The Gentleman’s Journal in the early 1690s. Its accounts of new operas and plays performed and expected contain a lot of important information and are reprinted in their entirety in the calendar below.

Both company rosters this season are subject to problems. Some of the people Drury Lane employed in Arsinoe may have been hired only for that show. Even more awkward is the scantiness of the ads for Lincoln’s Inn Fields: in many cases we simply cannot tell whether a singer or dancer was a regular employee, a temporary attraction, or a late addition.

DRURY LANE

The Rich-Skipwith management continued in place. Who handled the company’s artistic operations is not known, though Richard Estcourt is an obvious candidate.

REPERTORY. Records are apparently close to complete for Drury Lane this year. The company is known to have mounted 59 mainpieces on a total of 189 nights, including one triple bill (28 June). It only used an afterpiece as such once (16 June). Six of the plays were new, two of them major successes. Colley Cibber’s The Careless Husband ran nine nights initially and sixteen in all—the most successful new play in years (7 December). Arsinoe, an Italianate all-sung opera by Peter Anthony Motteux and Thomas Clayton, did not have a run as such, but enjoyed fifteen performances in the course of the spring and helped convince Vanbrugh that opera would be wonderfully profitable (16 January). Motteux’s Farewel Folly had a so-so five-night initial run (18 January). John Dennis’ rather wooden Gibraltar managed only two nights, with the author’s benefit moved up to the second night to let the company dump the show as fast as possible (16 February). Owen Swiney’s The Quacks was a Molière-derived farce that had only three performances (29 March): it is notable principally for having been suppressed twice by the Lord Chamberlain’s office before the première (see 22 March). Richard Steele’s The Tender Husband struggled through a total of seven not very profitable performances (23 April).

PERSONNEL. Actors: John Bickerstaff; William Bullock; James Carnaby; Colley Cibber; Richard Cross; Thomas Doggett; Richard Estcourt; Henry Fairbank; Philip Griffin; Mr Harris [advertised 12 June only]; Benjamin Johnson; Theophilus Keene; Thomas Kent; John Mills; Henry Norris; William Pinkethman; George Powell [to 7 April]; Mr Sherman [advertised 12 June only]; William Toms; Robert Wilks; Joseph Williams; Thomas Wright [advertised 12 June only]. Actresses: Susannah Cox; Letitia Cross; Katharine Finch; Mary Kent; Frances Maria Knight; Jane Lucas; Margaret Mills;

3 Avery’s roster includes “Griffith,” but this is simply an error for “Griffin” on 6 February 1705. Avery also includes Phillips, but he was an amateur who took a part on 12 June.
4 We agree with the authors of the Biographical Dictionary (VII, 135) that this was probably not Joseph Harris and have indexed accordingly.
Henrietta Moore; Susanna Mountfort [from 14 June]; Sarah Norris; Anne Oldfield; Mary Powell; Jane Rogers; Elizabeth Sapsford; Mariana Smith; Diana Temple.

Singers: Mr Cook [apparently freelanced with both companies]; Francis Hughes; Richard Leveridge; the New Boy; Littleton Ramondon // Margarita de l'Epine; Mrs Hornbolt [joined in July]; Mary Lindsey; Catherine Tofts.

Dancers: René Cherrier; Mr Claxton; Mr Cottin [advertised 13 November only]; Philippe Du Ruel; Mons. La Forest; Anthony L'Abbé [worked for both companies] // Margaret Bicknell; Mrs Du Ruel; Mrs Mosse.

Musicians: John Banister; Francesco Gasparini; John Baptiste Loeillet [advertised 10 April only]; James Paisible.

Other Employees: Zachary Baggs (treasurer); John Hall; Thomas Newman (prompter).

LINCOLN’S INN FIELDS and QUEEN’S

Exactly when Vanbrugh and Congreve assumed operational control of the company is not known. Their license was issued 14 December, and presumably by that time they were in a position to approve or disapprove managerial decisions. They may have taken over financial responsibility for the company at the beginning of the season. Contrariwise, the actor cooperative may not have ceded full control until the license was granted, or even until the new theatre opened in April. We simply do not know. In all probability, Betterton either carried on as artistic director or served as a highly influential adviser to the new owners.

REPERTORY. Despite the move toward more advertising in the spring of 1704, the company reverted to old patterns in the autumn. Only nine particular performances are known before the new year (as against 80 at Drury Lane). Ads continued to be strictly occasional during the winter, and (frustratingly) virtually disappear when the new theatre opens in April. Overall, we have record of 36 mainpieces on a total of 58 nights, giving us what is probably about two-thirds of the company’s repertory this season, but only about one-third of their performance dates. The company mounted eight new plays, but only Centlivre’s The Gamester seems to have been successful. Two instances in which afterpieces were employed are known (24 and 25 April), but the records are so incomplete as to make the figure largely meaningless. The new plays were as follows. John Corey’s The Metamorphosis had a brief run and disappeared (late September). Mary Pix’s (?) Zelmane, appears to have survived about six nights (14 November). Nicholas Rowe’s only comedy, The Biter, limped through about six nights (ca. late November). Susanna Centlivre’s The Gamester (ca. late January) apparently enjoyed a dozen performances in its first month, was revived later in the spring, and entered the repertory. Jacomo Greber’s Gli amori d’Ergasto was a dreadful disappointment as the choice to open Vanbrugh’s new theatre: according to Downes it survived only five nights, and evidently only with afterpiece help at that. The anonymous afterpiece farce The Consultation was clearly a flop and was not published—probably, like Swiney’s The Quacks, based on Molière’s L’Amour médecin (24 April). Mary Pix’s Conquest of Spain appears to have died quickly in mid-May. A. Chaves’ Cares of Love enjoyed about three nights (1 August).

PERSONNEL.
Actors: Thomas Betterton; John Boman; Barton Booth; William Bowen; George Bright; John Corey; Mr Dickins; William Fieldhouse; John Freeman; Francis Knapp; Francis Leigh; Josias Miller; Mr Mynns; George Pack; George Powell [from 14 April]; Mr Smeaton; Mr Trout; Cave Underhill; John Verbruggen; Mr Weller.
Actresses: Maria Allison; Katherine Baker; Elizabeth Barry; Elizabeth Boman; Anne Bracegirdle; Lucretia Bradshaw; Mrs Fieldhouse; Abigail Hunt; Abigail Lawson; Elinor Leigh; Susanna Mountfort [until 14 June]; Mrs Parsons; Elizabeth Willis.

Singers: Mr Cook [apparently freelanced with both companies]; John Davis; New Italian Boy; Mr Short // Ziuliana de Celotte [Ziuliana Celotti]; Mary Hodgson.

Dancers: Charles Fairbank; Fairbank’s Scholar; Mons. Fleury [from 28 April; advertised only once]; Anthony L’Abbé {worked for both companies}; Mons. L’Abbé; Joseph Prince // Mrs Clark; Mlle de la Val; Mrs Elford; Mrs Evans.

Other Employees: John Downes (prompter); John Miles (treasurer?).

Proprietors: John Vanbrugh and William Congreve.

UNSTAGED PLAYS PERTAINING TO THIS SEASON

The Amorous Miser (anonymous) was published this season (London: Benjamin Bragg, 1705). Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant of 5 February, where it was called “The last new Play.” An ad in the same paper on 7 February announced that “The last new Play, call’d Farewel Folly, or, The Younger the Wiser . . . is in the Press and will be speedily publish’d. And whereas there is an Advertisement, that on Tuesday, Feb. 6 will be publish’d, the last new Comedy, entituled The Amorous Miser, or The Younger the Wiser. This is to certifie, That no such Comedy has ever been Acted.” No edition of Motteux’s Farewel Folly was to appear until 1707. The Amorous Miser is not the same as Motteux’s Farewell Folly, but some scholars have assumed that it was a direct piracy, and the two titles have become bibliographically entangled. For clarification, see Cunningham, pp. 137-142. The Amorous Miser contains a prologue and epilogue, but no actors’ names or title

6 Avery lists both “Mrs” and “Miss” Mountfort with the company, but we know of only one female Mountfort at this time; we deduce that Susanna Mountfort was advertised both ways.
page reference to venue; there is no evidence that the piece was ever performed.

Fortune in Her Wits, a Latin comedy by Abraham Cowley, translated by Charles Johnson, was published at this time (London: Bernard Lintott, 1705). Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant of 16 April 1705: “This day is publish’d, Fortune in her Wits. A Comedy. Written originally by Mr Abraham Cowley, under the Title of Nausragium Joculare, and now fitted for the English Stage. To which is prefix’d a Critical Preface on Comick Translations in General. Printed for B. Lintott at the Middle-Temple-Gate in Fleet-street. Price 1s. 6d.” The translation was published anonymously and the long critical preface is unsigned, but the 1812 Biographia Dramatica, II, 246, attributes it to Charles Johnson. There is no prologue or epilogue and no indication of any attempt to get the piece performed. We have discovered no record of performance.

The Lunatick. A Comedy. Dedicated to the Three Ruling B—s at the New-House in Lincolns-Inn-Fields (London: B. Bragg, 1705). Publication of this anonymous and unperformed comedy was advertised in the Post Man of 8-10 March 1705. There is no cast, no prologue or epilogue, and no reason to suppose that the play was performed at this time. The play is important only for its dedication, a bitter tirade against Betterton, Barry, and Bracegirdle as managers at Lincoln’s Inn Fields (printed below under 10 March 1705). Genest (II, 507) points out that this play forms the basis for William Taverner’s The Female Advocates, which received its première at Drury Lane on 6 January 1713. Taverner is therefore likely to be the author of the present play and its dedication, but this cannot be regarded as certain.

The Royal Martyr, K. Charles I. This work was published with a title page reading: An Opera (Printed in the Year 1705). Copy used: Penn State. The Dedication “To the Queen” is signed by Alexander Fyfe, who was apparently the author. The piece is an excruciatingly bad religious “tragedy” in couplets, obviously not intended for performance. There is no prologue, epilogue, or list of characters. The play was reissued by John Morphew with a new title page in 1709 (copy used: Readex).

Solon; or, Philosophy no Defence against Love by Captain Martin Bladen was published at about this time (London: R. Smith and J. Nutt, 1705). There is no record of performance (and none claimed on the title page) and no cast was printed with the play. Performance appears to have been intended: the play has appropriate stage directions; ends with “The Masque of Orpheus and Eurydice”; and is supplied with a prologue and epilogue. The epilogue is full of topical commentary on such people as Pinkethman, Du Ruel, L’Abbé, de l’Epine, Tofts, Estcourt, and Gasparini. It concludes with a sneer at Rowe’s The Biter. The prologue and epilogue are reprinted by Danchin, I, 239-241.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Estcourt, the famous Mimick . . . had the same Invitation from Ireland, where he had commenc’d Actor: His first Part here, at the Theatre-Royal, was the Spanish Friar, in which, tho’ he had remembered every Look and Motion of the late Tony Leigh so far as to put the Spectator very much in mind of him, yet it was visible through the whole, notwithstanding his Exactness in the Outlines, the true Spirit that was to fill up the Figure was not the same, but unskilfully daw’d on, like a Child’s Painting upon the Face of a Metzo-tinto: It was too plain to the judicious that the Conception was not his own, but imprinted in his Memory by another, of whom he only presented a dead Likeness. But these were Defects not so obvious to common Spectators; no wonder, therefore, if by his being much sought after in private Companies, he met with a sort of Indulgence, not to say Partiality, for what he sometimes did upon the Stage. (Cibber, Apology, I, 304-305)

COMMENT. A “Prologue for Mr Wilks” on this occasion was printed with “An Imitation of the Sixth Ode of Horace, apply’d to His Grace the Duke of Marlborough” in a broadside. REPORT. The Play-House in the Hay-Market (the Architect being John Vanbrugh Esq;) built by the Subscription Money of most of our Nobility, is almost finish’d, in the mean time two Opera’s translated from the Italian by good Hands, are setting to Musick, one by Mr Daniel Purcel, which is called Orlando Furioso, and the other by Mr Clayton [Arsinoe], both Opera’s are to be perform’d by the best Artists eminent both for Vocal and Instrumental Musick at the Opening of the House. (Diverting Post, 28 October)

COMMENT. Daniel Purcell’s Orlando Furioso was never performed or printed. Thomas Clayton’s Arsinoe was winkled away from Vanbrugh and mounted at Drury Lane on 16 January 1705, scoring a considerable success.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. On Wednesday last . . . Mr Estcourt play’d the Part of Teague, in the Committee, before the Honorable Society of the Inner-Temple, with the great applause of the Judges and Benches of that most ancient House. (Diverting Post, 28 October–4 November)
COMMENT. This performance is recorded in Inderwick’s Calendar of the Inner Temple Records, III, 385. The LIF company was paid £20 for the performance, for which John Miles signed a receipt. Estcourt’s appearance with the company this night is surprising: he had only just arrived from Ireland; Drury Lane was advertising him very hard; and he was to perform the same role at Drury Lane on Thursday. We deduce that a loophole in his short-term contract with Rich allowed him to perform elsewhere save at LIF itself.

EDITION. The quarto of 1706 contains what is clearly the cast for this revival, prior to Powell’s departure from the company on 7 April 1705. The Northern Lass, or The Nest of Fools. A Comedy. As it is now Acted By Her Majesties Servants At the Theatre-Royal. With Prologue, Epilogue, and New Songs. By Richard Brome (London: Printed for H.N. and are to be Sold by J. Nutt, 1706). Copy used: British Library 644.g.25. The Actors Names. Sir Philip Luckless—Wilks; Tridewell—Mills; Sir Paul Squelch—Johnson; Bulfinch—Estcourt; Widgin—Bullock; Captain Anvil—Powell; Nonsense—Norris; Pate—Fairbank; Beavies—Bickerstaff; Howdee—Cibber; Clerk—Kent; Vexhem—Cross // Mrs Fitchow—Mrs Knight; Mrs Constance—Mrs Bicknell; Mrs Trainwell—Mrs Powell; Constance Hold up—Mrs Lucas. The Prologue Made and spoken by Jo. Hains [at an earlier date, since Hayns died in 1701.] The Epilogue. Spoken by Mistress ——. “H.N.” [Hugh Newman, the printer] comments in his dedication to the Duke of St Albans on the success of the revival (“having now again lately met with another most kind Reception”).

COMMENT. The prologue was originally written for the 1684 production of this play and was revamped at an unknown date. The revised version is printed by Danchin (I, 41-42) from The Second Part of Mr Penkethman’s Jests (1721), speculatively associated with the season of 1701-02.

† ZELMANE; OR, THE CORINTHIAN QUEEN [Mary Pix]. No advertisement of initial performances; cast not advertised (but see below).

Anonymous Dedication: the following Poem was a piece left unfinished by Mr M——t, who in his Life was generally belov’d, and encourag’d in what he did by all. The Gentleman who brought it to me, also inclin’d me to lay it at your Feet... I hope the Memory of the Author may excuse the defects of my Addition. The Town I hear has been favourable in its Character.

COMMENT. The date is assigned on the basis of an ad for the fifth night on Saturday 18 November. We have presumed a continuous run, which would place the première on Tuesday the 14th, but if the performances were spread out, the première would be earlier. The Diverting Post of 4-11 November says that the première will take place “On Monday next” (i.e., 13 November) and that Zelmane will be presented “With a Farce, annexed to it.” If there was an afterpiece, its identity remains unknown. The prologue was printed in the Diverting Post of 11-18 November, where we are also told that this production was “the first time of the whole Company’s Playing.” The statement in the unsigned dedication (by Pix?) that the piece was based on an uncompleted MS by William Mountford (d. 1692) may be true or not, but the Diverting Post of 28 October assigns authorship to Mrs Pix.

First Edition. The Biter. A Comedy. As it is Acted at the Theatre in Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, By Her Majesty's sworn Servants. Written by N. Rowe, Esq; (London: Jacob Tonson, 1705). Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personæ: Sir Timothy Tallapoy—Betterton; Pinch—Pack; Clerimont—Verbruggen; Friendly—Booth; Scribblescrabble—Leigh; Bandileer—Knap; Trick—Fieldhouse; Grumble—Trout; Bohee—Freeman // Lady Stale—Mrs Leigh; Mariana—Mrs Bracegirdle; Angelica—Mrs Mountfort; Mrs Clever—Mrs Barry; Mrs Scribblescrabble—Mrs Lawson. Prologue, Spoken by Mr Betterton. Epilogue, Spoken by Mrs Bracegirdle.

Contemporary Comment. The Biter, a Farce . . . had a six Days run; the six Days running it out of Breath, it Sicken'd and Expir'd. (Downes, Roscius Anglicanus, p. 95) Did not the tragic Rowe write The Biter, a comedy; and was he not the only person of the audience that laughed during the acting of it? (Davies, Dramatic Miscellanies, I, 94) The Part of the Biter perform'd by Mr Pack, who in time will be a shining Comedian. (Advance notice in the Diverting Post of 28 October-4 November)

Comment. The author's benefit was advertised for Monday 4 December, but since the company gave Abra-Mule on Saturday 2 December, the initial run of Rowe's play must have been non-continuous. The prologue was published in the Diverting Post of 18-25 November, but this need not imply a première before the week of 27 November. As early as the Diverting Post of 28 October-4 November, there was a puff announcing imminent performance: “Next Week will be Acted at the New Theatre in little Lincoln's Inn Fields, a New Farce called, The Biter. Written by Nicholas Rowe, Esq.” Thus the prologue was presumably ready around the beginning of the month and could have been passed to journalist friends at any time, though Danchin (I, 230) suggests that variants in the Diverting Post version may imply that the “text had been taken by ear.” A single song for the play was published, “Cloe blush't and frown'd and swore,” music by Eccles, sung by Cook (D&M 542).

CONCERT. Segniora Sconiance, a Famous Italian Singer, who lately came from those Parts, had a few Days since the Honour to Sing before Her Majesty with great Applause, upon the First Opening of the Theatre in the Hay Market, erected by the Contribution of the Nobility. She is to Sing several Italian Songs, never Sung in this Kingdom before, Compos’d by the most Celebrated of the Modern Italian Masters. (Diverting Post, 25 November–2 December)

COMMENT. This is a tantalizing report. It reads like a press release, and the change of tense is disconcerting. No such singer has been traced, and the name could be satiric. But if this notice can be believed, it reports what appears to be an official inaugural concert for the new Haymarket Theatre in the presence of Queen Anne, otherwise unknown. The theatre was clearly far from rigged and fully operational (it did not open for dramatic performances until 9 April 1705), but a concert could easily have been given there long before the acting company was able to move in.

December 1704

ca. December

DOCUMENT. At about this time Jacomo Greber recorded thirty-three items of practical advice in his commonplace book about how a foreign musician coming to London should seek employment to his advantage. The advice covers whom to see, how to negotiate, salary levels, current musical taste, etc. The manuscript is now in the Osborn Collection, Yale University. Translated from the German in Harold E. Samuel, “A German Musician Comes to London in 1704,” Musical Times, 122 (1981), 591-593.

COMMENT. A revival of Shakespeare and Fletcher's King Henry the Eighth was planned for about this time, but evidently did not take place. In the Diverting Post of 9-16 December 1704 is printed “A Prologue design'd to be Spoke before Henry the VIII by Mr Betterton” (reprinted by Danchin, I, 238). The anonymous author laments the lack of success of the company and says that not even Otway or Congreve now please the audience. Danchin assumes that “Henry VIII” was acted about mid-December, and the present prologue was not used,” but when the company advertised the play for 3 May 1705 the bill stated “Not Acted these four Years.” We assume, therefore, that the December revival proved abortive.

FIRST EDITION. The Careless Husband. A Comedy. As it is Acted at the Theatre Royal, By Her Majesty's Servants. Written by C. Cibber (London: William Davis, 1705). Copy used: Readex. Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant of 19 December. The Persons: Lord Morelove—Powel; Lord Foppington—Cibber; Sir Charles Easy—Wilks // Lady Betty Modish—Mrs Oldfield; Lady Easy—Mrs Knight; Lady Grave-airs—Mrs Moore; Mrs Edging—Mrs Lucas. The Prologue. Prologue upon the last Campaign. Written by a Person of Quality; design'd for the Sixth Day, but not spoken. The Epilogue. [The unspoken prologue for the sixth night was by Arthur Maynwaring or possibly the dedicatee, the Duke of Argyle. See Snyder.]

Dedication: This Play at last through many Difficulties, has made way to throw it self at your Grace's Feet... [The play was subjected to the charge] offer'd to my First Play, viz: But that's a Praise I have indeed some reason to be proud of... The Best Criticks have long, and justly complain'd that the Courseness of most Characters in our late Comedies have been unfit Entertainments for People of Quality, especially the Ladies: And therefore I was long in Hopes, that some able Pen (whose Expectation did not Hang upon the Profits of success) wou'd generously attempt to reform the Town into a better Tast, than the World generally allows 'em: But nothing of that kind having lately appear'd, that wou'd give me an Opportunity of being Wise at another's Ex pense, I found it Impossible any longer to Resist the secret Temptation of my Vanity, and so even struck the first Blow my self: And the Event has now convinc'd me, that whoever sticks closely to Nature can't easily write above the Understanding of the Galleries, tho' at the same Time he may Possibly deserve Applause of the Boxes.

This Play before its Tryal on the Stage was Examin'd by several People of Quality, that came into your Graces Opinion of its being a Just, a Proper, and Diverting Attempt in Comedy; but few of 'em carry'd the Compliment beyond their private Approbation... But your Grace has been pleas'd, not only to encourage me with your Judgment; but have likewise by your Favourable Influence in the Bounties that were rais'd for me for the Third and Sixth Day, defended me against any Hazards of an entire Disappointment from so bold an Undertaking... And if the Dialogue of the following Scenes flows with more easie Turn of Thought and Spirit, than what I have usually produc't; I shall not yet blame some People for saying 'tis not my own, unless they knew at the same time I owe most of it to the many stolen Observations I have made from your Grace's manner of Conversing. [Dedication signed by Colley Cibber, and dated 15 December 1704.]

COMMENT. "A Song in the last New Play... Set by Mr D. Purcell, and Sung by Mr Leveridge" ("Sabina with an Angel's Face") was published in the Diverting Post of 9-16 December.
ings . . . will be perform'd several select Entertainments of Vocal and Instrumental Musick by the best Masters. To begin at 8 in the Evening. Tickets may be had at the Door. [Price not stated.] (Daily Courant, 6 December)

COMMENT. No author's benefit was advertised the third night, though Cibber's dedication shows that he received one.

Saturday 9

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Congreve to Joseph Keally: Rowe writ a foolish farce called the Biter, which was damned. Cibber has produced a play [The Careless Husband], consisting of fine gentlemen and fine conversation altogether; which the ridiculous town for the most part likes: but there are some that know better. (Congreve: Letters and Documents, pp. 34-35)

DOCUMENT. License for a New Company of Comedians. Whereas We have thought fitt for the better reforming the Abuses, and Immorality of the Stage That a New Company of Comedians should be Establish'd for our Service, under stricter Government and Regulations than have been formerly. We therefore reposing especiall trust, and confidence in Our Trusty and Welbeloved John Vanbrugh and William Congreve Esqrs for the due Execution, and performance of this our Will and Pleasure, do Give and Grant unto them the said John Vanbrugh, and William Congreve full power and Authority to form, constitute, and Establish for Us, a Company of Comedians with full and free License to Act and Represent in any Convenient Place, during Our Pleasure all Comedies, Tragedys Plays, Interludes Operas, and to perform all other Theatricall and Musickall Entertainments whatsoever and to settle such Rules and Orders for the good Government of the said Company, as the Chamberlain of our Household shall from time to time direct and approve of Given at our Court at St James this 14th day of December in the third Year of Our Reign. By her Majestys Command Kent. (LC 5/154, p. 35)

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. I went to dine with Dr Gibson; where were also Dr Kennet and Dr Waugh. Her Majesty's Proclamation [i.e., the theatre license] (in the Gazette of Xmas-day) much regretted; Mr Vanburgh [sic] and Mr Congreve (two of the chief Debauchers of the Stage) being appointed Directors. (The London Diaries of William Nicolson Bishop of Carlisle 1702-1718, ed. Clyve Jones and Geoffrey Holmes [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1985], p. 260, entry for 27 December 1704)

COMMENT. The license was printed in the London Gazette of 21-25 December 1704. This license was granted with the consent of the company of actors at Lincoln's Inn Fields, who had acted there as a cooperative under the license of 1695 but had now agreed to move to Vanbrugh's elegant new theatre and work there under his direction. (See the season headnote and Roscius Anglicanus, pp. 98-99.)

‡ Arsinoe Queen of Cyprus [libretto by Peter Anthony Motteux; music by Thomas Clayton]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

Advertisement Details. A New Opera never perform'd before . . . After the Italian manner. As it is Perform'd at the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane, By Her Majesty's Servants (London: Tonson, 1705). Copy used: Folger. The Names of the Actors: Ormondo—Hughs; Feraspe—Leveridge; Delbo—Mr Cook or Mr Good // Arsinoe—Mrs Tofts; Dorisbe—Mrs Cross; Nerina—Mrs Lyndsey.

Songs in the New Opera, Call'd Arsinoe Queen of Cyprus (Hunter, nos. 26, 29, 30, 31).

Preface: The Design of this Entertainment being to introduce the Italian manner of Musick on the English Stage, which has not been before attempted: I was oblig'd to have an Italian Opera translated: In which the Words, however mean in several Places, suited much better with that manner of Musick, than others more Poetical would do. The Stile of this Musick is to express the Passions, which is the Soul of Musick: And though the Voices are not equal to the Italian, yet I have engag'd the Best that were to be found in England; and I have not been wanting, to the utmost of my Diligence, in the instructing of them. The Musick being Recitative, may not, at first, meet with that general Acceptation, as is to be hop'd for from the Audience's being better acquainted with it: But if this Attempt shall, by pleasing the Nobility and Gentry, be a Means of bringing this manner of Musick to be us'd in my Native Country, I shall think all my Study and Pains very well employ'd. Thomas Clayton.

Advertisement Details. A New Opera never perform'd before . . . After the Italian manner, All Sung, being set to Musick by Master Clayton. With several Entertainments of Dancing by Monsieur l'Abbee, Monsieur Du Ruel, Monsieur Cherrier, Mrs Elford, Mrs du Ruel, Mrs Moss, and others. And the famous Signiora Francisca Margareta de l'Epine will, before the Beginning and after the Ending of the Opera, perform several Entertainments of Singing in Italian and English. No Person to be admitted into the Boxes or Pitt but by the Subscribers Tickets, to be deliver'd at Mrs White's Chocolate-house. The Boxes on the Stage and the Galleries, are for the Benefit of the Actors.

COMMENT: Publication was advertised by Jacob Tonson in the Daily Courant of 17 January. The Folger has two 1705 editions of Arsinoe. We judge PR 3699 S85 A8 (with four pages of prelims, and 48 pages of text) to be the first edition. PR 3699 S85 A81 (four pages of prelims, 40 of text) is a close resetting of the first edition in slightly smaller type.

But the Boxes on the Stage, and the Galleries, are for the Benefit of the Actors.

Thursday 25

Like Master Like Man [author unknown; lost?]. Cast not advertised. (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. This present Thursday will be reviv’d a Comedy . . . With several Entertainments of Singing and Danceing in and between the Acts, viz. That celebrated Dialogue by Mr Boman and Mr Pack, representing a drunken Officer and a Town Miss, originally perform’d in the Opera of the Mad Lover. As also a Country Dialogue by Mrs Willis and Mr Short. A new Trumpet Song by Mr Davis, compos’d by Mr Eccles. Likewise the last new Entry by Mr Firbank and Scholar. The Dance of Blowsabella by Mr Prince and Mrs Clark; And several other comick Dances by him and others. Also a right Irish Trot by a Child of 5 Years of Age. By her Majestys Sworn Servants.

COMMENT. All that we know about this comedy is from the Daily Courant ad, which specifies that it is revived. No English play with this title is known until much later. In 1745 the Scottish actor William Lyon published The Wrangling Lovers, or Like Master Like Man. In 1766 Thomas Ryder’s Like Master Like Man was performed in Dublin, and a year later was brought to London (pub. Dublin, 1770). Both are afterpiece versions of Vanbrugh’s The Mistake (December 1705), itself a translation of Molière’s Le Dépit amoreux. Whether this performance in January 1705 represents (a) a pre-Vanbrugh translation or adaptation of Molière, otherwise unknown; (b) a revival of Davenant’s The Man’s the Master under a deformed title; or (c) another play altogether, of which we know nothing, cannot be determined.

Tickets may be had at Robin’s Coffee-house in Exchange-Alley, Nando’s at Temple-Bar, Mr Keene’s in Arundel-street in the Strand, and Mr Dean’s at the Blue Posts in Pall-Mall. [Price not stated.] (Daily Courant, 30 January)

‡ THE Gamester [Susanna Centlivre]. Cast not advertised (but see below).

FIRST EDITION. The Gamester: A Comedy, As it is Acted at the New Theatre in Lincolns-Inn-Fields, By Her Majesty’s Servants (London: William Turner and William Davis, 1705). Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personæ: Sir Thomas Valere – Freeman; Dorante – Corey; Young Valere – Verbruggen; Lovewell – Betterton; Marquess of Hazard – Fieldhouse; Hector – Pack; Galoon – Smeaton; Count Cogdie – Dickins; First Gentleman – Weller; Second Gentleman – Knap; Box Keeper – Lee // Lady Wealthy – Mrs Barry; Angelica – Mrs Bracegirdle; Betty – Mrs Parsons; Favourite – Mrs Hunt; Mrs Security – Mrs Willis; Mrs Topknot – Mrs Fieldhouse. Prologue, Written by Mr Roe [Rowe], and Spoke by Mr Betterton. Epilogue [by Charles Johnson, according to the Diverting Post of 27 January–3 February], Spoke by Mr Verbruggen.

Dedication: The Kind Reception this Play has met with from the Town, gives me some Hopes of Your Lordship’s Acceptance. . . . The Design of this Piece were [sic] to divert, without that Vicious Strain which usually attends the Comic Muse, and according to the first intent of Plays recommend Morality, and I hope I have in some measure, perform’d it; I dare affirm there is nothing Immodest, nor immoral in it;
part of it I own my self oblig'd to the French for, particularly the Character of the Gamester [i.e., to Regnard's Le joueur (1696)]; but he is entirely ruin'd in the French; whereas I, in Complaisance to the many fine Gentlemen that Play in England, have reclaim'd him, after I have discover'd the ill Consequence of Gaming.

COMMENT. We have dated the play on the basis of (a) publication of music, prologue, and epilogue at the beginning of February, and (b) the statement in the Flying Post of 22 February that the performance that night is the twelfth. The run was not continuous, and the première could not have occurred after 5 February, but with ancillary materials already in print a somewhat earlier date is indicated. Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant on 9 February. Publication of "the new Musick in the Comedy call'd the Gamester, compos'd by Mr Terton [i.e., John Lenton] Price 1s. 6d. the Set" was advertised in the Post Man of 30 January-1 February. The prologue and epilogue were published in the Diverting Post for 27 January-3 February.

A notice for a performance of The Busie Body in the Post Boy of 26-28 May 1709 for the benefit of "the Family of Mrs Mary Pix, deceas'd," states that "the greatest part of which said Comedy, and also that of the Gamester, was wrote by the said Mrs Pix." We are not aware of any evidence to confirm this assertion.

The Northern Lass, or, The Nest of Fools [Brome]. Cast not advertised (but see 8 November) (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Persons of Quality. . . . And the Famous Signiora Francisca Margareta de l'Epine will Sing several new Songs in Italian and English. With several Entertainments of Dancing by Monsieur du Ruel and Mrs du Ruel.

Saturday 3

REPORT. Congreve to Joseph Keally: I have been so employed, and am still like to be so, that I have no time for any thing. I know not when the house [i.e., the new Haymarket Theatre] will open, nor what we shall begin withal; but I believe with no opera. There is nothing settled yet. (Congreve: Letters and Documents, p. 35)

COMMENT. The uncertainty of the co-manager as to what the new theatre would open with is striking testimony to the haste with which the company must have mounted Greber's Gli amori d'Ergasto in early April.

Monday 5

Don John, or, The Libertine Destroy'd [Shadwell]. Cast not advertised. (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. All the Musick being compos'd by the late famous Mr Henry Purcell, And perform'd by Mr Leveridge and others. To which will be added several Entertainments of Dancing by Monsieur Cherrier, Mrs Moss, Mrs Bicknell, and others.

Tuesday 6

THE PLAIN DEALER [Wycherley]. Manly—Griffin. (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. With several Entertainments of Singing and Danceing.

Tuesday 6

ARSINOE QUEEN OF CYPRUS [Motteux and Clayton]. Cast not known (but see 16 January). This performance at court on the Queen’s birthday is known from a notice in the London Gazette of 5–8 February 1704/5: “St. James’s, Feb. 6. This being Her Majesty’s Birth-Day . . . Before Dinner, there was an Entertainment of Vocal and Instrumental Musick, and in the Evening an Opera.” The opera is identified in an ad run in the Daily Courant on 2 and 3 March for a performance at DL on Monday 5 March: “a new Opera, all sung, (after the Italian manner) call’d, Arsinoe, Queen of Cyprus. As it was perform’d at St James’s before Her Majesty on Her Birthday.” Cast not known (but see 16 January). The earlier entertainments included an ode set by Eccles, a dance called “The Marlborough” by Isaac, and dancing by Du Ruel and his wife. (See Bucholz, Augustan Court, Table 7.5.)

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. On Tuesday last was Celebrated here Her Majesty's Birth-Day; the Nobility and Gentry appearing at Court in a very Costly and Magnificent manner: The Day was spent with the usual Solemnities at Court; there being a Magnificent Feast, with an Entertainment of Vocal and Instrumental Musick; and the Night Concluded with a fine Opera, to the Satisfaction of all the Court. There was also Bonfires, Ringing of Bells, Illuminations, and other Demonstrations of Joy, upon account of the same. (London Post, 7–9 February)

COMMENT. The Drury Lane ad for Wednesday 7 February specifies “several Entertainments of Danceing which were perform’d last Night before her Majesty [i.e., in this performance at court] by Monsieur du Ruel and Mrs du Ruel.” A special prologue for the court performance was written by Congreve and published by Tonson as a broadside (reprinted by Danchin, I, 255-256). Publication was advertised “This day” in the Daily Courant of 8 February. Also printed was “An Epilogue to the Court, on the Queen’s Birth-Day. By Roger, the Observator’s Country-man” (published by B. Bragg). Danchin (I, 254, 256-257) reports Luttrell’s acquisition date (Newberry copy) as 14 February 1704/5. Danchin sensibly queries whether this was “the actual epilogue spoken,” since the tone seems inappropriate, especially an attack on “Kit-Cat J—b” (i.e., Jacob Tonson). Danchin inclines to the theory that this piece is “merely a political pamphlet in the form of an epilogue,” and so do we.

FIRST EDITION. Gibraltar: or, The Spanish Adventure, A Comedy. As it was Acted at the Theatre in Drury-Lane. By Mr Dennis (London: Wm. Turner and J. Nutt, 1705). Copy used: Readex. Publication was advertised in the Post Man of 8-10 March. No actors' names. The Prologue. First Epilogue Writ by a Friend, Spoken by Leonora. Second Epilogue, Writ by the Author, Spoke by the Serjeant, but shortened in the Speaking to make room for the First. Danchin (I, 261) adds "An Epilogue design'd to be spoken at the Acting of Gibraltar, on the Second Night, being for the Benefit of the Author." It was printed in the Diverting Post of 24 February-3 March 1704[5].

Preface: This Play was so unfortunate as to find the Town out of Humour with it, whether it proceeded from the Calamities which attended the Rehearsal, which were so numerous as never had befaln any Play in my Memory, or from the Malice, and strange Prejudices with which many came prepossess'd. The first day it was well Acted in most of its Parts, but was not suffer'd to be heard. The second day it was, for the most part, faintly and negligently Acted, and consequently was not seen; and a Play depriv'd of its Life, and its Spirit, can no more please like one which appears with those, than a Dead Man can have the Agreeableness of a Man who is Living.

I, by no means think it comparable to some ev'n of my own Plays. I was too much fatig'd by the long Poem which I wrote this Summer, in so short a space, to design any thing for the Stage like a Master Piece; and the two last Acts of this Play were writ with two [sic] much Precipitation for that. Yet, I look'd upon it to be an agreeable Trifle, with which those might be delighted, who have tast of a Low Comedy.

. . . I shall only say one Word, which may serve to answer a great many Objections, which are daily made against Plays; and that is this, that it is impossible there can be any where found a more contemptible Judge of Plays, than he who takes the Sentiments of the Characters for the Sentiments of the Poet; for the Sentiments of the Characters being Pro and Con, if these Sentiments are the Poets, he must necessarily Contradict himself, and can never have any meaning.

I have only this to add, that the Landskip which is painted in the first Scene of the Play, is drawn after Imagination, and not after the Truth, for there is no such place as is there describ'd near Gibraltar, and for that reason I ordered it to be left out in the Acting, because, upon the Stage, there could be no Apology made for it.

Secret Love, or, The Maiden Queen [Dryden]. Florimel—Mrs Cross. (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Persons of Quality. . . . And the Famous Signiora Francisca Margarita de l'Epine will sing several Songs in Italian and English. With several new Entertainments of Danceing by Monsieur and Mrs du Ruel.

Comment. Drury Lane was apparently dark this day. Its Daily Courant ad on the 19th concerns John Dennis' author benefit for Gibraltar on Tuesday the 20th—an exceptional instance of a theatre cancelling a second night in order to move directly from première to the author's benefit and the end of the run.

Gibraltar, or, The Spanish Adventure [Dennis]. With several Alterations. Duena—Norris. (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. For the Benefit of Mr Dennis. . . . With several Enter-tайнений of Singing and Danceing, which will be express'd in tomorrow's Bills [sic].

COMMENT: The use of the author's name in the benefit ad is unusual. The person who sent copy to the Daily Courant forgot to alter phraseology used in the ad for the 19th.

Saturday 10
DOCUMENT. On this day, publication of an anonymous and unacted comedy called The Lunatick was advertised by B. Bragg in the Post Man (see the list of unacted plays in the season headnote). William Taverner may have been the author. The dedication contains an extensive commentary on the managers at Lincoln’s Inn Fields.

The Epistle Dedicatory to the Three Rulings B—s of the New-House in Lincolns-Inn-Fields. Most Arbitrary and Most Hermaphrodite Conjunction, Since it has been brought into a Custom to offer the Products of the Brain to those who generally have the least Pretence to it, by that Rule the following Play has a peculiar right to appear under so Illustrious a Protection as Yours, whose Sense and Honesty are not less Conspicuous than Your High Birth, and Education. The First, the many Glorious Farces, Ridiculous Tragedies, the Lumber of the Stalls, which by a joint-consent You have Cook'd up, and Palm'd upon the World, testifie beyond a Contest the Sound, the Eminent Justice You have done all those Ridiculous Coxcombs who engag'd themselves in Your Cause against them, who Paid them Honestly, and Rul'd them easily, will abundantly make out, and the other two will be extremelly Visible to those who know any thing of Scotland-Yard Stall, Old Gowns, and the Wash-bowl. Having thus done more for You than most Writers can do for their Patrons, I have some Confidence that the World will not acuse me of Ambition, and Mercenary Design in Dedicating to those by whom no Part of Mankind yet got Twopence: Heroes and Beauties are generally too full of themselves, to bestow their Favours without a valuable Consideration. And Jago's Precept to Roderigo has reach'd all the Candidates of their Favour, (Put Money in thy Purse,) being sure of a Re-pulse where the Fee is only in Promise, and more than Lawyers are averse to a Cause in forma Pauperis. The old Thread-bare Whim of Merit and sense are laudibly laid aside by You, and You, like the other Giants of Mankind, think

What is the Worth of any thing,
But as much Money as 'twill bring.

And in that, perhaps, You may be in the Right, if you knew what would bring You Money and what not; but since you go by guess, I know no reason why the following Piece was so long Postpon'd, while you brought on such a heap of Vicious Rubbish, as no tolerable Judge could expect a Benefit from; but Kissing goes by Favour, and You, of all Governours, have been the most Generous to Your Darlings; You have by an excessive Fondness of them, and a peculiar happiness of Management, turn'd your selves out of Doors, and Starv'd all Your Dependants; brought a Company, in a few Years, from the Admiration, to the Contempt of the Town; a Work beyond the Talent of most Men, whose little Capacities have made them at least so true to their Interest, as to let those get something, but whom they got all. But You will, perhaps, accuse me of Partiality, and giving You a Praise beyond Your Deserts, since You will Plead Your bringing on half a Dozen good Plays in Ten Years. But I might say of that, as Diagoras did of the Offering in the Temples of those who had escap'd the Tempests of the Sea, That those who were Drown'd had put up none; for the Number is so small of those that had been sav'd in Your Element, that they wou'd be lost in the Multitudes of the Damn'd. But it is a good-natur'd Saying, De mortuis nil nisi Bonum. Speak well of the Dead. Your Dominion is Expir'd, Your Reign at an End, and therefore to remark on Your Follies, is an Ill-natur'd Censure, which Humanity condemns, especially, since by Your ill Management You have made way for Your Subjects to come into a more Honourable Regiment, and as a Pennance for Your past Crimes, You become Pupils in Your Old Age; this shews indeed, that

All Humane Things are subject to Decay,
And when Fate Summons, Mortals must Obey.

But have You, Illustrious Princes, consider'd what You are doing? What Noble Perquisites You give up? There will be no more Clandestine Sharing betwixt You without the rest; no more private accounts, and Double Books; no more paying Debts half a score times over out of the Publick Stock, yet never paying them in reality at all. There will be no more sinking Three Hundred and fifty Pounds at a time in the Money repaid on a famous Singer's Account, but never accounted for to the rest of the Sharers; no more stopping all the Pay of the Under Actors on Subscription-Nights, when You were allow'd forty or fifty Pound a Night for the House, besides the Benefit of the Galleries; no more sinking the Court-Money into Your own Pockets, and letting the Sallary People and Under Sharers Starve without Pay; no more taking Benefit-Days in the best Season of the year, and Dunning the Quality for Guinea-Tickets to help out the Defects of all the other above-named Perquisites; no fifty Shillings per Week for scowring Old Lace, nor burning it, and selling the Product for private advantage; no Twenty Shillings a Day House-Rent; no sharing Profits with the Poetasters; nor Eating and Drinking out the other half before the Performance; nor, in short, any Advantage to be made but by stated Sallaries, or the best Improvement of Natural Gifts, as far as Age, ugliness and Gout will permit.

If You have taken a View of this Melancholy Prospect, ponder it well before You conclude, and remember, that the Pleasure of Insulting Poets (whom You are not worthy to Converse with) and of Judging of Plays, which You do not understand, are Prerogatives which few of Your Station wou'd so easily quit. Being confident the good Advice I have given You, will heartily engage You in my Interest, I commit my self and my Play, with a wonderful Satisfaction, to Your Patronage, and abundantly please my self with subscribing my self Your most Humble, and Devoted Servant, Franck Tellstroth. [Anon., The Lunatick (London: B. Bragg, 1705). Copy used: Folger.]

COMMENT. Drury Lane did not run an ad in the Daily Courant this day, which is extremely unusual for them at this time. Thursday 29

‡ THE QUACKS, or, Love’s the Physician [Owen Swiney]. Cast not advertised. (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. The Quacks, or, Love’s the Physician. As it was Acted (after being twice forbid) at the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane. By Mr Swinny (London: Benj. Bragg, 1705). Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personæ: Sir Patient Carefull – Norris; Clitander – Mills; Doctor Medley – Bullock; Caudle – Cross; Tickle Pulse – Pinkeman; Novice – Bickerstaff; Refugee – Cibber; Rhubarb – Fairbank; Freckle – Keen; Harry – Estcourt; // Lysette – Mrs Moor; Lucinda – Mrs Temple; Doris – Mrs Powel; Nurse – [Mr] Carnaby. Prologue. Epilogue Forbid to be Spoke. Epilogue Spoke by Mr Mills.

Preface: The hints of this Play were taken from a petit Piece of Moliere call’d L’Amour Medicin. I can’t stile it a Translatian [sic], the Doctors part being intirely new, much of the other Characters alter’d, and the Contrivance somewhat Chang’d.

The Town were a little Surpriz’d, to find an Entertainment forbid upon the Day it was to be Represented; it seems, the better to Divert ‘em, this Play was to be stifled because the other House were to Act one upon the same Subject! . . . As for the Gentlemen of the other House, who are to reform the Stage, purify our Diversions and Naturalize all the Wit of Moliere . . . I shall only say of ‘em That they are the properest Persons in the World to reform the Stage, having known so well what it is to corrupt it, as those Physicians they say are the best, who have felt the Diseases they are to Cure.

I hope no worthy Man will believe that my design in this Trifle, was to Expose the Character of a Physician, but the abuse of it; to set Ignorance and Villany in a proper Light, and shew Men how easy they are Deceiv’d when they are taken by their Passions.

The Noise of these Scenes Alarm’d the Licencier [Charles Killigrew], who generally destroys with as much Distinction as the old Woman in Don Quixots Library and would’ve no more of ‘em, if it were not, that he is pay’d for Tolerating some; however they are here intire, and if I believ’d any Body was unacquainted with his good Judgment, I shou’d mar out the Retrenchments he made and shew that the edg of his Justice was turn’d upon the Innocent, and that he rather Disfigures than Cures.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never acted before . . . With several Entertainments of singing and danceing by the best Performers.

‡ GLI AMORI D'ERGASTO [music by Jacomo Greber]. Performance and cast not advertised, but see below.

COMMENT. This performance marks the opening of Vanbrugh's fancy new Queen's Theatre in the Haymarket. The Newdigate Newsletter has the following account, late or muddled in tense, but apparently substantively correct: “On Monday next [i.e., last?] the new Theatre in the hay market built by the subscriptions of the Nobility is to be opened at which time a new Italian pastorall called the Loves of Ergasto set to music by the famous Italian [German] Jacomo Greber will be acted.” (Folger Shakespeare Library)

Downes reports as follows: “About the end of 1704, Mr Betterton Assign'd his License, and his whole Company over to Captain Vanbrugge to Act under his [license], at the Theatre in the Hay Market. And upon the 9th, of April 1705. Captain Vanbrugge open'd his new Theatre in the Hay-Market, with a Foreign Opera, Perform'd by a new set of Singers, Arriv'd from Italy; (the worst that e're came from thence) for it lasted but 5 Days, and they being lik'd but indifferently by the Gentry; they in a little time marcht back to their own Country.” (Roscius Anglicanus, pp. 98-99)

Publication of the dual-language libretto confirms that the opera given was Jacomo Greber's GLI AMORI D'ERGASTO and strongly implies that the performance was given in Italian. The identity of the Italian performers has been much but inconclusively disputed. Curtis Price suggests that “Vanbrugh and Congreve may have imported one or two Italian singers during the frantic preparations for the opening of their theatre, but it is likely that they assembled most of their shabby cast from among the foreigners at the rival Drury Lane theatre.” See Price, “The Critical Decade for English Music Drama,” p. 47. Colley Cibber (Apology, I, 325) gives a rather hazy account of the opening of the theatre: “To strike in, therefore, with this prevailing Novelty [opera], Sir John Vanbrugh and Mr Congreve open'd their new Hay-Market theatre with a translated opera to Italian Musick, called The Triumph of Love [actually given in 1706], but this not having in it the Charms of Camilla [to be staged at Drury Lane in 1706], either from the Inequality of the Music or Voices, had but a cold Reception, being perform'd but three Days, and those not crowded. Immediately upon the Failure of this Opera, Sir John Vanbrugh produced his Comedy call'd the Confederacy” [actually not given until 30 October]. Cibber's account has led so reputable an authority as Fiske to believe that the performance was in English, but what Cibber had to say of an event that occurred at the rival theatre thirty-five years before he was writing must be viewed with skepticism, especially as he is manifestly muddled. He is right about the essential point: the Haymarket opened with a dismal failure. But Cibber gets the opera wrong; probably gets the language wrong; and is clearly conflating events of 1705 and 1706. The testimony of Downes (writing within three years of the event), the dual-language libretto, and the stress on “Italian” pastoral convince us that Vanbrugh attempted unsuccessfully to combat Drury Lane's success with the stolen Arsinoe by mounting an Italian-style all-sung opera in the original language.

Who were the performers? Downes' comment about a foreign company notwithstanding, there seems a high probability that most if not all of the singers were hired locally. From subsequent disputes between Vanbrugh and the Baroness, we infer that she had a part. Margarita de l'Epine (“Greber's Peg”) is an obvious candidate: she had been singing at Drury Lane, but the nature of her contract is unknown. Maria Gallia is another possibility.

A “Prologue Spoken at the First Opening of the Queen's New Theatre in the Hay-Market” (by Samuel Garth) was published as a broadside (London: John Nutt, 1705). Another broadside printing, by Benjamin Bragg, included on the verso a prose paraphrase “in a Familiar Stile, for the better Conception of the True Meaning, and for the Particular Use of Mr Jer. Collier.” The prologue for the opening was reprinted in the Muses Mercury in February 1707. Congreve’s “Epilogue at the Opening of the Queen’s Theatre, in the Hay-Market, with an Italian Pastoral. Spoken by Mrs Bracegirdle” was published in Congreve’s Works of 1710. All of this ancillary matter is reprinted with helpful commentary by Danchin, I, 265-269.

The opening of Vanbrugh’s new theatre naturally attracted a good deal of commentary, most of it satirical or hostile. The Diverting Post of 7-14 April printed an epigram “On the Projectors of the New Play-House in the Hay-Market”:

> When I their boxes, Pit, and Stage, did see,
> Their Musick Room, and middle Gallery,
> In Semi-circles all of them to be;
> I well perceiv’d they took peculiar Care
> Nothing to make, or do, upon the Square.

An anticipatory broadside in the form of a mock-advertisement for “The New Hospital in the Hay-Market” appeared ca. late March, listing “Places under the Governors to be dispos’d of”—including “A Cryer of Rehearsals—fit for a Herald” [Vanbrugh] and a “Play Cutter—fit for an Exhausted Poet” [Congreve], etc. (See British Library 816.m.19 [35]; printed in Albert Rosenberg, “A New Motive for the Censorship of Owen Swiney’s ‘The Quacks’,” Notes and Queries, 203 [1958], 393-396.)

Circa May an anonymous pamphlet appeared called A Kit-Kat C-b Describ’d (London: Printed in the Year, 1705), mocking the contributions of the Kit-Cat Club to Vanbrugh’s theatre (see Document Register, no. 1806). The 3 May 1705 issue of Defoe’s Review of the Affairs of France contains a biting attack on the new theatre, objecting to its encouragement of vice and sneering at Vanbrugh’s problems in collecting money pledged by his subscribers. Defoe includes Garth’s prologue for the first night, plus an abusive poem “On the New Playhouse in the Hay-Market.” In the 5-12 May issue of Rehearsal of Observator is another hostile account of the theatre, treating it as the “Temple” of the Kit-Cat Club.

REPORT. The first Play Acted there [at the Queen's Theatre, following Greber's Gli amori d'Ergasto], was The Gamester. Then the Wanton Wife [Betters' The Amorous Widow]. Next, Duke and no Duke. After that, She wou'd, if She Cou'd; and half a Score of their old Plays, Acted in old Cloaths, the Company brought from Lincolns-Inn-Fields. The Audiences falling off extremely with entertaining the Gentry with such old Ware, whereas, had they Open'd the House at first, with a good new English Opera, or a new Play; they wou'd have preserv'd the Favour of Court and City, and gain'd Reputation and Profit to themselves. (Roscius Anglicanus, pp. 100-101)

COMMENT. Because Vanbrugh had not started to advertise regularly in the Daily Courant, Downes' statement about revivals cannot be proved, but it is compatible with such performance records as we possess.

‡ THE TENDER HUSBAND; Or, The Accomplish’d Fools [Richard Steele]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. The Tender Husband; or, The Accomplish’d Fools. A Comedy. As it is Acted at the Theatre-Royal in Drury-Lane. By Her Majesty’s Servants. Written by Mr Steele (London: Jacob Tonson, 1705). Copy used: Readex. Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant of 9 May. Dramatis Personæ: Sir Harry Gubbin—Bullock; Humphry Gubbin—Pinkethman; Mr Tipkin—Norris; Clerimont Sen.—Mills; Capt. Clerimont—Wilks; Pounce—Eastcourt // Mrs Clerimont—Mrs Cross; Aunt—Mrs Powell; Niece [Biddy]—Mrs Oldfield; Painlove—Mrs Kent; Jenny—Mrs Sapsford. Prologue, Written by Mr Addison. Spoken by Mr Wilks. Epilogue Spoken by Mr Eastcourt.

Dedication [to Addison]: I hope I make the Town no ill compliment for their kind Acceptance of this Comedy, in acknowledging that it has so far rais’d my Opinion of it, as to make me think it no improper Memorial of an Inviolable Friendship. I should not offer it to You as such, had I not been very careful to avoid every thing that might look Ill-natur’d, Immoral, or prejudicial to what the Better Part of Mankind hold Sacred and Honourable.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted before.

THE TENDER HUSBAND; Or, The Accomplish’d Fools [Steele]. Cast not advertised (but see 23 April). (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted but Once.

RECEIPTS: Gross receipts totalled £26 14s. (P.R.O. C7/642/44). House charges were calculated at £38 15s. 10d, and the deficiency (£12 1s. 10d.) was chargeable against Steele’s share of the third night profits.

Tuesday 24

‡ THE CONSULTATION [anonymous; lost]. Never Acted before. Cast not advertised. To which will be added an Italian Pastoral call’d, THE LOVES OF ERGASTO [Greber]. Licoris—the new Italian Boy. (Daily Courant)

COMMENT. Virtually nothing is known of The Consultation. It was not published, and the author or translator is nowhere named. From the strenuous efforts made by the management of the Queen’s Theatre to get The Quacks suppressed at Drury Lane (see 29 March), various authorities have conjectured (plausibly enough) that The Consultation was likewise a translation or adaptation of Molière’s L’Amour médecin.

DL

The Tender Husband; Or, The Accomplish'd Fools [Steele]. Cast not advertised (but see 23 April). (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted but Twice.

RECEIPTS: No author's benefit was advertised. According to testimony by Christopher Rich in P.R.O. C7/642/44, the third night gross was £61 6s., and Steele’s share, after deduction of £38 15s. 10d. house charges and £12 1s. 10d. deficiency the second night, amounted to £10 8s. 2d. However Steele offered to “waive his profit by the said play . . . and permit the same to goe to the use of the Company provided they would act the said play the then next Winter one day for his [Steele’s] Benefit instead of the third day,” agreeing to pay constant and incidental charges and to remain responsible for the deficiency on 24 April.” For the upshot, see 15 November 1705.

ENTERTAINMENTS. This is to satisfy the Town, that during the Time of May-Fair, ensuing, Mr Pinkethman and Mr Finly, for Time past having had the honour to give Satisfaction to the Quality, in their separate Booths, and still being willing to keep up the Grandeur of the said Fair, have continu’d to the utmost of their Endeavours to divert the Town with some new and surprising Entertainments, which they hope will give Satisfaction in general. Their separate Entertainments will be exprest upon their Bills, in and about the Town. And their Booths will stand as usual. (Daily Courant)

Thursday 3

KING HENRY THE EIGHTH: With the Fall of Cardinal Wolsey [Shakespeare and Fletcher]. Cast not advertised. (Daily Courant, 1 May)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Not Acted these four Years.

COMMENT. Lack of an ad after 1 May could imply that the company cancelled this performance on account of May Fair, but because they advertised irregularly we cannot be certain.

Both companies apparently closed for May Fair.

‡ THE CONQUEST OF SPAIN [Mary Pix].

COMMENT. Downes says “The first new Play Acted there [at Vanbrugh’s new theatre], was the Conquest of Spain; the beginning of May 1705, Written by Mrs Pix, it had not the life of a Stock-Play, for it Expir’d the 6th Day.” Actually, the first new play (as opposed to opera) acted there was The Consultation (anonymous; lost), which appeared 24 and 25 April and sank without further trace. We have assigned a mid-May (rather than early May) date because both theatres appear to have closed for the duration of May Fair. Assuming that Downes is accurate about a six-day run, the première probably occurred between the 12th and the 17th of May.

EDITION. The Royal Merchant: or, Beggars-Bush. A Comedy. Acted at the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane, by Her Majesty’s Servants (London: H.N. for William Keeble, et al., n.d. [1706]). Copy used: Harvard. Publication was advertised in the Post Boy of 25 January 1706. Dramatis Personæ: Woolfort—Williams; Gerrard—Keen; Hubert—Mills; Florez, the true Heir of Flanders, falsly call’d Goswin, a rich Merchant of Bruges—Wilks; Hemskirk—Biggerstaff; Van dunck—Bullock; Merchants—Carnaby, Phillips, Kent, Toms; Higgen—Estcourt; Prig—Norris, alias Jubilee Dicky; Snap—Kent; Ferret—Fairbank; Ginks—Tom Wright [otherwise unknown]; Boors—Sherman, Harris, Cross // Jaculine—Mrs Cox; Bertha—Mrs Rogers. No prologue. Epilogue Spoken by Mr Pinkeman, mounted on an Ass; a long Whig on the Ass’s Head. [Danchin, I, 275, reports that the epilogue printed in the 1706 edition is simply the old Jo Hayns ass epilogue.]

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. The part of the Merchant to be perform’d by Mr Wilks for his own Benefit; With several new Entertainments of Singing in English and Italian, by Mrs Tolts; and Dancing by Monsieur Cherrier, Mrs Moss and others.

COMMENT. Enormous confusion has surrounded this title. The dedication to the 1706 edition was signed “H.N.,” which has generally been taken to mean Henry Norris but was actually the publisher Hugh Newman, who wrote dedications to several reprinted plays about this time (e.g., The Northern Lass, which he signed—see 8 November 1704). Genest’s account (II, 322) muddles a 1756 edition of a Covent Garden revival with this one. The mess was accurately disentangled (so far as we can tell) as long ago as 1926 by Arthur Colby Sprague in Beaumont and Fletcher on the Restoration Stage, Appendix II, pp. 274-275. Unfortunately, Nicoll entered the piece in his handlist (II, 346-347) as a play by Henry Norris, and Avery indexed it under Beaumont and Fletcher “(adapted by Henry Norris).” In fact, the play printed in 1706 and apparently staged by the Drury Lane company the preceding spring is simply the Fletcher and Massinger Beggar’s Bush of 1622, virtually unaltered.

COMMENT. The “Epilogue: Spoken by Mrs Mountfort at the Theatre Royal in Drury Lane” was separately published as a broadside by Bernard Lintott and is reprinted with commentary by Danchin (I, 276-277). Lintott’s ad in the Daily Courant of 18 June says the the piece is by the author of The Yeoman of Kent (i.e., Thomas Baker). Susanna Mountfort was only 14 years old, but had already performed Betty at LIF and in a court performance the previous season. Her jumping to Drury Lane is surprising, since her stepfather John Verbruggen remained with the other company. Those actors who had participated in the Court performance of February 1704 probably took their usual roles: Peregrine—Wilks; Justice Wary—Johnson; Ralph—Pinkethman.

DOCUMENT. In the Diverting Post of 9-16 June was published “An Epilogue for the Theatre Royal.” (“May we not well complain for want of Pence.”) No date, play, occasion, or speaker is specified. The epilogue is reprinted with commentary by Danchin, I, 278. Even more strongly than Danchin, we doubt that this epilogue was spoken at Drury Lane, or ever intended to be.
It bewails small audiences; smears Estcourt (one of the company’s featured performers); says the actors are “divided” about whether they should agree to a union; calls some of them “R—h-Ridden”; and concludes by saying that “L’Epine, and Tofts sneak off with all our Gains.” The piece seems manifestly hostile to Drury Lane, and we take it as a journalistic attack launched in conjunction with Vanbrugh’s escalating campaign for a union of the two companies under his own direction.

DOCUMENT. According to Charles Gildon, “The following Proposals [made by Vanbrugh to Christopher Rich] were sent from the Secretary [Sir John Stanley] to the Lord Chamberlain the 19th of July, 1705.”

Proposals for Reducing the two Companies of Players into one.

1st. That the Patent Adventurers on their ceasing to act by Vertue of their Patent, be admitted to a Moyety of the clear Profits, which shall arise from the Company now establish’d by the Queen in the Hay-Market.

2d. That there shall no Regard be had to each Companies past Debts, Engagements, or Stock, their Concern together being forward, not backwards.

3d. That the Persons to be intrusted for the Management, be Nam’d by the Queen, to be at any Time chang’d, and remov’d, as she shall think fit.

4th. That if these three principal Heads be agreed to, the Settlement of the inferior Matters, may be refer’d to my Lord Chamberlain. J. Vanbrugh. (The Post-Boy Robb’d of His Mail, 2nd edition (London: B. Mills for John Sprint, 1706), pp. 344-345)

COMMENT: In the Daily Courant ad of the 19th for this performance is an important special notice: “Note, That the Company will continue to Act there [Lincoln’s Inn Fields] till Her Majesty’s Theatre in the Hay-market be intirely finish’d.” The return of Vanbrugh’s company to their former quarters has excited surprise and speculation among some theatre historians, but this notice probably states the simple truth: the company had hastened to open its long-delayed new theatre late in the season, and now had to vacate it while Vanbrugh got it fully “finish’d” and rigged.

ca. Monday 23

DOCUMENT. At a date probably between Vanbrugh’s union proposal of 19 July and Rich’s refusal of 25 July, 33 members of the Drury Lane company addressed a formal petition to the Lord Chamberlain, objecting to the proposed union. The full text and complete list of signatories follows.

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Kent; Lord Chamberlain of Her Majesty’s Houshold. The Humble Petition of the Comedians Acting at the Theatre Royal In Drury-Lane. Sheweth,

That Mr Rich having from Sir John Stanley Receiv’d your Lordship’s Commands to send his Proposals for an Union of the two Play Houses, according to Her Majesty’s Royal Pleasure, Signify’d to your Lordship: It is with the utmost Reluctance, That your Petitioners make this their most Humble Address to your Lordship; But they having by their long Labour and Diligence (notwithstanding many Discouragements) Improv’d themselves into an Intire and Able Company, to the General Satisfaction of the Town, and being fully Content with the Terms and Conditions under which they now Act, and absolutely Convinc’d, That an Union of the two Companies cannot be without great Prejudice, if not utter Ruine, to them and their Numerous Families.

Your Petitioners therefore most Humbly Pray, That your Lordship will be pleas’d to Represent to her Majesty, the many unavoidable Hardships which they Conceive will be brought upon them, in Case your Lordship should Exert your Power, to unite them to the other Company, who having never shewn the same Diligence, Industry, nor Disposition to please their Audiences, (that we presume to think we have done;) now seek to support themselves by the Successfull labours of your Petitioners (contrary as we have reason to believe) to the intention of the Nobility and Gentry, who Subscrib’d to the Building of a New Theatre, and to the frequent Encouragements given by them for the support of two Houses. And your Petitioners shall ever Pray, &c.

COMMENT. This printed petition is reproduced in facsimile with annotation and commentary in Judith Milhous and Robert D. Hume, “The Drury Lane Actors’ Petition of 1705,” Theatre Notebook, 39 (1985), 62-67. See also Document Register, no. 1814. The date of the petition has been the subject of great confusion, being variously placed in August 1706 and December 1707.

DOCUMENT. On this day, replying to letters of 7 and 21 June (now lost) and Vanbrugh’s formal proposal of 19 July, Christopher Rich point-blank refused to consider a new theatrical union. About the 25th of July, Mr Rich sent the following Answer to Sir John St—ly [Stanley]: Sir, I Receiv’d from you two Letters, one on the 7th, and the other on the 21st of June, last, intimating my Lord Chamberlain’s Pleasure, That I shou’d bring in Proposals for uniting the two Companies; I shall ever be ready to pay the utmost duty and Obedience to his Lordships Commands, and wou’d sooner have return’d an Answer to the Letters, but that I have waited for Opportunity of speaking with the Parties concern’d: Many of whom being still out of Town, can not as yet be summon’d together; and it is impossible for me to bring any Proposals without all their respective Consents. For I beg leave to represent, that I am concern’d with above forty Persons in number, either as Adventurers under the two Patents granted to Sir William Davenant, and Tho. Killegrew, Esq; or as Renters of Covent-Garden [i.e., Drury Lane] and Dorset-Garden Theatres; and tho I have hitherto manag’d for all with an equal Regard to their Interest, as to my own, and have done it to my own Expence and Hazard, and with infinite Pains, to raise a New Sett of Actors, Singers, and Dancers, and to keep the Company together; yet to receive any Persons (other than Actors, Singers, Dancers, and Performers) into any Part, Interest or Share, with the Proprietors, under the Patents, is not in my Power, without a Breach of Trust, which I cannot answer to the rest of the Proprietors, who may tear me to pieces with Law-Suits, if they shou’d see me go about an Act, which in the Consequence of it, may in their Apprehension, conclude, or prejudice their Rights and Properties purchas’d for a valuable Consideration, on which divers Marriages, Settlements, Mortgages, Contracts, and the Support of many Families depend. And I suppose it is not unknown to you, how many Troubles and Vexatious Suits, both at Law and Equity, I have already drawn upon me, from several of the Proprietors, by my Endeavours to preserve them and my self. Sir, I am a Purchaser under the Patents, to above the value of two Thousand Pounds, (a great part of which was under the Marriage-Settlements of Dr. Davennant) and am not only accountable to the rest of the Proprietors, and lyable to several New Debts, but also under Covenants with several Actors, Singers, and Dancers, for the whole Undertaking. And when after ten Years Employment, Expence, and Diligence, I have (notwithstanding many Difficulties) succeeded; so that the Company has the good Fortune to please the Town, and the Profits begin to reimburse, and pay the Monies and Debts contracted: If I shall now be depriv’d of reaping the Benefit of such my Labour and Charges, what must the Effect be, but the undoing of my self, and of the Interests of those engag’d with me, to raise great Estates to Mr Vanbrugh, and a few others, on our Ruins?

Before Mr Vanbrugh and Mr Congreve had obtain’d Her Majesty’s License for a Company of Actors, I did humbly offer to his Lordship (the Company of Actors in Lincoln’s-Inn-Fields) that I wou’d receive them all at such Salaries as his Lordship shou’d think reasonable; but his Lordship was pleas’d to declare, That Her Majesty intended to have two Companies, and he wou’d not permit me to entertain them. And afterwards, in compliance with his Lordship’s Pleasure, I did not insist upon my right, so far as I was advis’d I might, of keeping those Actors, whom his Lordship has been lately pleas’d to command from me in order, as his Lordship then declared, for the keeping up of two Companies that might Emulate one another.

And now, Sir, with Submission, I do not see upon the whole Matter, how such an Union, as seems to be intended, can have a good Effect, if one considers either the Inclination of the Quality, and Gentry, who have always declared for the keeping up of two Companies (and to that purpose, subscribed to the Building of a New Theatre) or the Management of the New Theatre, since it was open’d, which has not been such, with all the Advantages of setting forth, as would invite others to put the whole under the same Government, in order to pay a very large Rent to Mr Vanbrugh, for that which cost him little or nothing, beyond the Subscriptions received by him. And, with regard to the Players themselves, since they have already, in a Petition to his Lordship [see ca. Monday 23 July], declared themselves content with the Terms, under which they act here, and apprehensive of great Hardships, if not utter Ruin, which they conclude will be brought upon them by such a Union. It wou’d be very hard, that those who desire only to subsist by their Labour, shou’d be forc’d into the other Company, who have not taken the same Care to entertain the Town, notwithstanding the many Favours, and large Subscriptions they have receiv’d, whereof three or four have engross’d the whole Benefit.

These, Sir, are some of the Reasons, which I humbly offer against a Union in general; and having on Thursday last, receiv’d Mr Vanbrugh’s Proposals in writing, I am the more confirm’d in my Opinion against it: For by the first, he wou’d have us cease to Act by virtue of our Patents; and in the second, he declares, That no Regard shall be had to the Companies past Debts, Engagements, or Stock, and how an Union can be either practicable, or safe, with respect to the Interest of all Parties upon this foot, I cannot conceive. I am, Sir, [Christopher Rich]. Theatre-Royal, 25th July, 1705.

DOCUMENT. About the beginning of August Charles Gildon wrote an account of Vanbrugh’s proposal for a theatrical union and Rich’s rejection of it (see 19 and 25 July).

[Following a rambling account of why “The Publick Diversions” should be controlled by “publick Magistrates,” Gildon discusses the recent history of the London theatre.] The Play-house having been granted to private Hands, nothing was minded but private Advantages, Obscenity, Profaneness, Bombast, Farce, and what is more ridiculous and extravagant, Singsong Operas were refus’d, and every thing without Judgment or Understanding, try’d to bring Money into their [the patentees’] Pockets. By Sale this patent comes into the Hands of those who know even less than the first Possessors of it; but how cou’d any Man go out of his way, when there was no fix’d Path to confine them. Money purchas’d the Business, and therefore the Business must be made to bring in the Money into the Purchaser’s Pockets: But here was some sort of Right, and the Stage call’d a Property, even unalterable by the Crown who gave it. However, dayly Grievances and Complaints gave Capt. V——h hopes of succeeding, in setting them [the actors] free from the Slavery they daily murmur’d at. By his Address, and Acquaintance with the People of Quality, he got large Subscriptions for Building a New Theatre, on which he might Exercise his double Capacity of Poet, and Architect. And here Men of Sense were in hopes, that a Poet had publick Spirit enough to regard only the Publick Good of those who upheld the Diversion by their Writing, or their Acting, which might have brought the Stage soon to its antient Lustre, and gain’d him more Credit (and perhaps all things consider’d) not less Money. If he had call’d in many Men of Learning, and Art, into the Management, and sought no farther Advantage from the Business that cost him little, than others equally qualify’d, except a Reimbursement of what he had really expended more than the Subscriptions. Thus he wou’d have enlarg’d his Reputation, and made Friends of all the Men of Sense, Wit and Poetry, present, and to come; and wou’d have persuaded the World, that he was not so unpoetical a Lover of only his own sordid Interest, as to mind nothing else. The Inconveniencies he wou’d have avoided by this means, had been first his building a Theatre at the Fagg-
End of the Town, whither four parts in five, that make an Audience, cannot come without an insupportable Expence. Next, the building a Theatre in nothing better than what we had before, except in the Front, or Case, which signifies little to the Business of the Place. Thirdly, his taking no Care to engage the Players of Drury-lane, who kept out of Articles a long time in expectation of being sent to; but he, either through Pride, Negligence, or something worse, never minded till they were all engag’d; and then, without any manner of Justice, forc’d away one of them [identity uncertain] when he might fairly, and without Noise, have had the major Part, and the best. Fourthly, his taking the Direction and Advice of those very People in the Government of this new Company, who had before ruin’d two Companies, and brought them from the Admiration, to the Contempt of the Town. Fifthly, his attempting, contrary to all Reason or Justice in the World, to destroy the Patent, and unite the Companies, when he found his Hopes and Projects disappointed, contrary to the Pleasure and Will of his Benefactors, who gave him their Subscriptions to keep up two Companies, whose Emulation may the better divert the Town. But to judge of the Justice of this Design, I send you his Proposals of Union, and Mr Riche’s Answer. [See 19 and 25 July.]

Preface: Of all kind of Scribling, sure Poetry is the most unprofitable. . . . He that writes a Play exposes himself without any Advantage to a parcel of fleering Critics, who wonder at any Man for attempting so difficult a Business, and are only disappointed when he succeeds in't. . . . 'Twas wrote only for an Amusement in the Country, and never intended for the Stage. . . . [Readers should] excuse abundance of Faults they may justly find thro' the Unexperience of the Author.

COMMENT. This performance is known from a “This day is publish'd ad by Bernard Lintott in the Daily Courant of 18 August which specifies “as it was acted on Friday the 10th Instant at Windsor.” Lintott advertised a “2d Edition” “In the Press” in the Daily Courant of 23 July 1706. Entirely reset and incorporating minor verbal changes, it appeared as The Lawyer's Fortune: or, Love in a Hollow Tree. A Comedy. Written by William Grimston, Esq. (London: Bernard Lintott, n.d.). Copy used: British Library 1346.e.12 (misdated 1705 in the BM Catalogue). Another edition was published in 1736, “Revis'd and Compar'd with the First Edition in 1705.”

THE CITY POLITIQUES [Crowne]. Cast not advertised. (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISMENT DETAILS. Not Acted these Twenty Years. . . . Beginning exactly at 6 of the Clock.

ca. late August

LIF

COMMENT. When the Lincoln's Inn Fields company advertised City Politiqes on 12 September 1705 the ad read “Not Acted but thrice these Twenty Years.” Since the performance of 14 August was billed as “Not Acted these Twenty Years,” this implies that the play received two unrecorded performances between 14 August and 12 September—most probably before the closure for Bartholomew Fair on 23 August.

Saturday 18

HAW

CONCERT. In the great Room at Hampstead-Wells . . . will be an extraordinary Consort of Vocal and Instrumental Musick, viz. several Single Two and Three Part Songs with a Trumpet, and other Instruments; set by Mr Henry Purcel and Mr Eccles, and Sung by Mr Cook, Mr Davis and others, the best Masters of all kind: The particulars of which will be mention'd in the great Bills. To begin exactly at Six a Clock; Tickets may be had at Mr Blany's a Sword-Cutler near the Royal Exchange, and at North's Coffee-house at Hampstead Wells. [Price not stated.] (Daily Courant, 15 August)

ENTERTAINMENTS. At the Widow Barnes's Booth, Over against the Cross Daggers in Smithfield, during the usual Time of Bartholomew Fair, are to be seen the most Famous Rope Dancers of Europe, who perform such strange and surprising Things on the Dancing Rope, as are incredible to relate; With great Variety of Encomparable fine Tumbling, Walking on the Slack Rope, and Vaulting, far surpassing all that has ever yet been seen. Together with the diverting Entertainment of your Old Friend Pickle Herring, the Chief of all his imitating Brethren. (Daily Courant)
THE DISTRESSED VIRGIN; or, The Unnatural Parents [anonymous; lost].

This title and performance are known from The Wandering Spy, or the Way of the World inquired into, 1-8 September [1705], as transcribed by Haslewood in “Collections Relating to the Drama,” vol. IX, fol. 72 (British Library 11791.dd.18): . . . looking up I saw Doggets Booth, where you are presented with a new Droll called the Distressed Virgin; being a true history of the fair Maid of the West, with the comical Humours of poor Trusty in search of his Master’s Daughter, &c. By this time Andrew and one of the actors (who I a little before took for a Lord) fell into a Discourse without Head or Tail, and said many Things to very little purpose, and had much talk without any sense in it, when all of a sudden a whistle rattles within a Booth, upon which they all run in, in a mighty hurry, with a pray gentlemen walk in and take your places for upon my word we are just going to begin; and to close all, Andrew cries, do gentlemen be rul’d by a Fool for once, and come in all of you, do, there’s good Boys, do now:—tha they were no more going to begin than I was about to eat a Toad; this was only to decoy people in, and to fill their Booth, for they all came out again presently, and told the same story over; and this is a method I perceive they observe all over the Fair. So I went from Booth to Booth, and found a gang of R[ogue]s and W[hore]s in every one of them, and every gang had its Fool or Merry Andrew, [a] Clown from Doggets Booth, to the Creation of the World, where they have Granny, a she Fool, and who is indeed a mere fool, well known all over the Town; there’s the Rope Dancing Booth . . . and a Booth full of outlandish Monsters.

COMMENT. For discussion, see Rosenfeld, Theatre of the London Fairs, pp. 17-18, who cites an undated handbill for the droll in British Library Harleian 5931, which adds subtitle details: “or, The Loving Sisters. With the Comical Travels of Poor Trusty, in Search of his Master’s Daughter, and his Encounter with Three Witches.” Fancy scenes and machines “never seen before” were advertised.

September 1705

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. In the Observer of 5-8 September is yet another rambling denunciation of plays and actors, produced as part of an argument for suppression of the theatre by the Queen.
