Vanbrugh’s company began the autumn back at Lincoln’s Inn Fields while they awaited completion of the theatre they had opened with a conspicuous lack of success the previous April. When the Queen’s Theatre in the Haymarket reopened on 30 October with the première of Vanbrugh’s own The Confederacy (a solid success), competition on something like an equal basis was restored to the London theatre for the first time since the union of 1682. Bitter as the theatrical competition of the late 1690s had been, it was always unequal: Rich had enjoyed two good theatre buildings but had to make do with mostly young and second-rate actors; the cooperative at Lincoln’s Inn Fields included practically every star actor in London, but suffered from a cramped and technically inadequate theatre. By the autumn of 1705 the senior actors had become decidedly long in the tooth, but finally had a theatre capable of staging the semi-operas in which Betterton had long specialized. Against them Rich had a company that had grown up: among its members were such stars as Robert Wilks, Colley Cibber, and Anne Oldfield. The failed union negotiations of summer 1705 left both managements in an ill temper, and for the first time in some years both companies made a serious effort to mount important new shows.

Competition was at its hottest in the realm of opera. Under the circumstances, this was hardly surprising: Betterton had been hankering after the glory days of Henry Purcell’s semi-operas since he was forced out of Dorset Garden in 1695; Vanbrugh was strongly predisposed toward experimenting with the new, all-sung Italianate form of opera; and Christopher Rich, having evidently made fat profits off Arsinoe the previous season, was eager for another such coup. All performances were, of course, in English: not until the following season did Rich get the bright idea of importing a castrato to do the real thing, starting London opera down the slippery slope of performance in a foreign language. Vanbrugh aggressively and ambitiously mounted no fewer than three new operas. The effort and expense are especially impressive because two of them were semi-operas with complicated staging and special... effects. No company in the history of London theatre had ever tried to mount two new productions of this sort in a single season. The first to come on was Granville’s The British Enchanters (21 February). It proved decidedly popular, enjoying a dozen performances in all and entering the repertory. So far, so good, but a pastoral pasticcio called The Temple of Love (7 March), with words by Motteux and music by Saggione, seems barely to have survived to a second night. The killer was the most elaborate show of all, Thomas Durfey’s weird and wonderful fantasy-satire, Wonders in the Sun; or, The Kingdom of the Birds (5 April). It clearly cost a lot of money, but it struggled through just five nights. Its failure was a particularly devastating blow because Vanbrugh was a thinly-capitalized entrepreneur, and his partner Congreve had prudently removed himself from management (and financial liability) early in the season (see 15 December).

Durfey’s opera came on just five days after Drury Lane had mounted its one operatic effort of the year, an Englished version of Giovanni Bononcini’s Camilla. Whether Rich was smart, lucky, or just got good advice is hard to say. Nicola Haym was a shrewd judge, and he must have known very well that productions of Camilla had spread across Europe like wildfire. It is indeed a fine show, and not a difficult one to stage. Haym’s contract with Rich is extant (see 14 January): considering what Vanbrugh must have been paying for the productions of his semi-operas, Rich got quite a bargain on the most popular musical to be staged in London before The Beggar’s Opera (1728). With Arsinoe still running well and Camilla looking very much like the cash cow it was to become, Rich had once again trounced Vanbrugh in the very realm Vanbrugh was most anxious to try to exploit. Nor was Rich taking the future as a matter of course: he cleaned up Dorset Garden and reopened it for some opera performances in July and August—a clear sign of interest in competing head-to-head with Vanbrugh in the realm of fancy opera staging. Both companies had mixed but decent luck with productions of new plays. Vanbrugh’s The Confederacy and The Mistake and Rowe’s Ulysses had better than average success at Queen’s while Farquhar’s The Recruiting Officer was a late-season hit at Drury Lane. Given the money Vanbrugh had invested in opera, however, competition in straight plays was not really the issue. Battle had been joined on the opera front, and opera rapidly became the central bone of contention.

Vanbrugh wanted a theatrical monopoly. Baulked of that in the summer of 1705 and lacking the capitalization that would permit him to fight a war of attrition against Rich, Vanbrugh seems to have spent the spring and summer of 1706 trying to negotiate either a union or, failing that, a compromise that might reduce competition and improve profits. If Vanbrugh could not have a monopoly, his next choice was an absolute genre division, with music and dance at one theatre, straight spoken plays at the other—preferably with music and dance awarded to him at the Haymarket. Two versions of a draft order for such a genre separation exist and probably date from the summer of 1706 (see ca. August 1706). Once again, however, Rich dug in his heels and resisted all blandishments and pressures. He would not give up the right to music and dance, and neither would he give up the right (granted in the patents he controlled) to stage plays. By August Vanbrugh was probably fairly desperate (comments by Congreve imply that he was finding the cash drain intolerable by April-May), and he found himself forced to settle for a compromise that gave him virtually nothing of what he wanted. The “proto-union” of September 1706 belongs to the next season and is discussed in the headnote to 1706-07, but in essence Vanbrugh found himself forced to give up music and dance (which was what he most wanted) in return for being allowed to hire away some of Drury Lane’s best actors. Furthermore, Rich retained the right to mount straight plays, albeit with a very inadequate troupe of actors. Even as this unsatisfactory compromise was being negotiated via the Lord Chamberlain’s office, Vanbrugh was removing himself from daily management. His agreement of 14 August with Owen Swiney cedes operational control (and fiscal responsibility) for the company for a term of five years: Vanbrugh must have been extremely discouraged or very alarmed about finances, or both. At this point he continued to believe that big money was to be made out of opera, and that Rich was clinging to rights to music and dance for financial reasons (see his letter to Coke or Kent, ca. August, printed in the calendar). Rich had, in fact, apparently made quite a lot of money out of Arsinoe and Camilla, but they were novelties performed as an occasional treat amidst the standard dramatic repertory. And Vanbrugh was overlooking the inflationary pressures that operatic success was creating. He himself spent the winter of 1705-06 in an ugly contract battle with Joanna Maria Lindelheim, while Rich found himself locked in a similar fight with Catherine Tofts. Signs of the salary demands that were to prove so ruinous to Vanbrugh in the spring of 1708 were already appearing, but no one seems to have realized that opera singers were going to be a lot less dispensible and replaceable than common garden variety actors.

Hostility between the two companies this season is evident as early as the collision of new play premières on 30 October when Vanbrugh reopened the Queen’s Theatre. Rich promptly tried to steal Mons. Du Ruel and his wife, and Vanbrugh riposted by snatching Mrs Hook. The Lord Chamberlain, obviously irked, issued a reiteration of standing orders forbidding raiding of personnel (8 December), whereupon Rich filed an indignant protest against a series of thefts and attempted thefts by Vanbrugh. Relations between the two companies were tense and hostile throughout this season, and the unsatisfactory compromises effected at the start of 1707-08 were manifestly unstable and temporary. Throughout 1706-07 everyone working in the London theatres must have known that the status quo was fragile in the extreme.

2 One evidence of Vanbrugh’s precarious finances was probably his allowing his performers “to Act the remainder of the Summer, what Plays they cou’d by their Industry get up for their own Benefit” (Roscius Anglicanus, p. 103). Vanbrugh had not done that in the summer of 1705: we deduce that by late spring of 1706 he did not want to have to meet the payroll.

3 See 8 and 28 January, 24 February, and 1 March 1706.

DRURY LANE

Christopher Rich and Sir Thomas Skipwith continued as patentees. We do not know who served as their artistic director.

REPERTORY. Performance records are apparently substantially complete, though blank dates in the spring are puzzling. Drury Lane is known to have mounted 62 mainpieces on 173 nights. The company advertised afterpieces only three times, employing fragments of mainpieces on all three occasions. Entr'acte music and dance figure prominently in their advertisements. Six new plays were produced, two of them proving enormous and lasting successes. Susanna Centlivre’s The Basset Table fizzled out after four nights (20 November). Thomas Baker’s Hampstead Heath survived only long enough to give the author his benefit (30 October). Colley Cibber’s Perolla and Izadora managed six nights and a single later performance (3 December). Bononcini’s Camilla (as translated and arranged by Owen Swiney and Nicola Haym) was not premiered until 30 March but nonetheless ran up 11 performances and was to be even more popular the next season. The other great success followed hard upon it: George Farquhar’s The Recruiting Officer (8 April) enjoyed ten performances and was to become a repertory staple for most of the century. The Fashionable Lover, an anonymous revamping of Nabbes’ The Bride (1640), was probably premiered in mid to late April and apparently had little or no success.

PERSONNEL. Actors: John Bickerstaff; William Bullock; James Carnaby (?); Colley Cibber; Richard Estcourt; Henry Fairbank; Philip Griffin; Benjamin Johnson; Theophilus Keene; Thomas Kent; John Mills; Henry Norris; Mr Phillips; William Pinkethman; William Toms; Robert Wilks; Joseph Williams. Actresses: Letitia Cross; Frances Maria Knight; Jane Lucas; Susanna Mountfort; Anne Oldfield; Jane Rogers; Elizabeth Sapsford; Diana Temple; Elizabeth Younger [child].

5 Carnaby’s presence in the company this year is doubtful. Genest identified a “Gentleman” making his first appearance on the stage as Carnaby (see 27 September) but cites no evidence for this assertion. Three roles for Carnaby are recorded in 1704-05, which we are inclined to credit, though the authors of the Biographical Dictionary, III, 75, question whether Carnaby took these roles.
6 Only one role known; possibly still an amateur.

QUEEN’S

Vanbrugh served as both proprietor and manager. William Congreve had dropped out of the management by 15 December.

REPERTORY. The company is known to have mounted 54 mainpieces on 139 performance dates this season. Whether all performances were advertised in the spring and summer we cannot be certain: there are a lot of blank dates. A total of ten afterpieces were advertised, all but one of them masque revivals. Like the Drury Lane company, the Queen’s troupe regularly advertised music and dance: these were clearly a vital part of their competitive strategy. The company mounted an ambitious total of nine new shows, with mixed results. Vanbrugh’s own The Confederacy (30 October) enjoyed an excellent total of 12 performances and was clearly a genuine success. Nicholas Rowe’s Ulysses ran up seven performances initially and 11 in all, decidedly one of the better records for a tragedy in recent years. However, lack of any revival after 19 February suggests that it quickly burned out its public interest. Vanbrugh’s The Mistake (27 December) had a six-night initial run and three later performances. An anonymous adaptation of Fletcher’s The Loyal Subject called The Faithful General (3 January) struggled through three nights and died. Catharine Trotter’s The Revolution of Sweden (11 February) managed only four performances. The company put a tremendous effort (and no doubt a lot of money) into mounting three ambitious new operas in the space of just six weeks in the spring, with extremely discouraging results. The first show was a success. George Granville’s The British Enchanters (21 February) enjoyed a total of 12 performances. However, The Temple of Love (with English words by Motteux to music of Saggione) managed just two performances (7 and 16 March), while Thomas Durfey’s ambitious and expen-

8 We infer from Swiney’s letter to Cibber of 5 October 1706 that he worked for Rich in a sub-managerial capacity this season. See Coke Papers, pp. 11-13.
sive Wonders in the Sun (5 April) achieved just five—definitely a fiasco, considering the scope and cost of the production. The failure of this show seems to have thrown the company into a tailspin, and performances (at least as advertised) become decidedly irregular during the spring. The last new play was Mary Pix’s The Adventures in Madrid (ca. July?). It apparently enjoyed no success.

PERSONNEL. Actors: Thomas Betterton; John Boman; Barton Booth; William Bowen; George Bright; John Corey; Mr Dickins; Thomas Doggett; William (?) Fieldhouse; John Freeman; Benjamin Husband; Francis Knapp; Francis Leigh; Mr Mynns; George Pack; George Powell [dismissed for insubordination by 14 November]; Cave Underhill; John Verbruggen; Mr Weller. Actresses: Katherine Baker; Elizabeth Barry; Margaret Bicknell [primarily a dancer at this time]; Elizabeth Boman; Anne Bracegirdle; Lucretia Bradshaw; Mary Harcourt; Mrs Hunt; Elinor Leigh; Mary Porter; Miss Porter; Mrs Prince; Elizabeth Willis.

Dancers: Richard Baxter [advertised only 8 October; probably just a visitor]; Mons. Delagarde; Mons. Des Barques; Charles Fairbank; Mr Godwin; Anthony L’Abbé [not advertised at either theatre after December this season]; Mons. L’Abbé; Lewis Layfield; Joseph Prince; Mons. Serancour; Joseph Sorin [advertised only 8 October; probably just a visitor] // Miss Bruce; Mrs Elford; Mlle Noisy.

Other Employees: John Downes (prompter); John Smith (office keeper). Proprietor: John Vanbrugh.

UNDATABLE PLAY PERTAINING TO THIS SEASON

The Rival Queans (by Colley Cibber). This play was probably performed by ca. 1699 and definitely by ca. 1703, though not published until 1729. “An Epilogue spoken by Wil. Pinkethman, when he acted the Part of Alexander” (evidently in Cibber’s parody) was published in The Diverting Post in the issue of February 1706. (It is reprinted by Danchin with commentary, I, 305.) There is no way to tell whether publication of the epilogue reflects performance in the current season.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS: With several Entertainments of Singing and Dancing, in, and between the Acts, particularly a Country Farmers Daughter, an Entry; and that last new Dance, call'd, The Wood Nymph, all three perform'd by Miss Bruce, Mrs Elfords Scholar. With Singing by Mrs Hodgson, Mr Cook and others. And Mr Pinkethman to oblige the Town, will give us leave to make Use of the Two famous French Maidens, who are fam'd for performing so wonderfully on the Rope, the eldest of the French Maidens Dancing without a Pole, and turning her self round, which never could be done by any yet before her, (as all the Quality of England are satisfy'd of) and who are desir'd by the said Quality, and most part of the Town to perform this once in Lincolns-Inn-Fields Theatre, they being oblig'd to go to France in 2 or 3 Days. Mr Pinkethman likewise has desir'd the famous Mr Evans to Vault the manag'd Horse, wherein he performs several surprizing Entertainments, especially his Body lying extended on one Arm, and drinking 9 Glasses of Wine from the other. Beginning exactly at half an Hour after 5 a Clock, by reason of the length of the performance. Not any of the Entertainments to be omitted. All which Entertainments will be perform'd at the common Price of a Play.

COMMENT: The credit to Pinkethman for permission to exhibit an outside attraction is unusual. Presumably Pinkethman had contracted to bring the French dancers to London for the August-September Fair season. This ad also implies that Evans was under contract to, or was managed by Pinkethman.

FIRST EDITION. HAMPSTEAD HEATH. A Comedy. As it was acted at the Theatre Royal in Drury Lane. By the Author of The Yeoman of Kent (London: Bernard Lintott, 1706). Copy used: Readex. Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant on 16 November. Dramatis Personæ: Bloom—Wilks; C. Smart—Mills; Lampoon—Cibber; Squire Calf of Essex—Bullock; Deputy Driver—Johnson; Chum—Pinkethman; Berynthia—Mrs Mountfort; Arabella—Mrs Oldfield; Mrs ap Shinken—Mrs Lucas. Prologue. Epilogue Spoken by Mr Pinkethman.

COMMENT. This is functionally the same play as Baker’s An Act at Oxford, suppressed in 1704 (see the season headnote for 1703-04), with the action reset away from Oxford and a bit of rewriting as necessary.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. A new Comedy (never acted before).

‡ THE CONFEDERACY [Vanbrugh]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. THE CONFEDERACY. A Comedy. As it is Acted at the Queen’s Theatre in the Hay-Market. By Her Majesty’s Sworn Servants. By the Author of The Relapse, Provok’d Wife, and Æsop (London: Jacob Tonson, 1705). Copy used: Readex. Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant on 14 November. Dramatis Personæ: Gripe—Leigh; Monytrap—Dogget; Dick—Booth; Brass—Pack; Clip—Mimes [i.e., Mynns?] // Clarissa—Mrs Barry; Araminta—Mrs Porter; Corinna—Mrs Bradshaw; Flippanta—Mrs Bracegirdle; Mrs Amlet—Mrs Willis; Mrs Cloggit—Mrs Baker. Prologue, Spoken by a Shabby Poet. Epilogue, Spoke by Mrs Barry.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted before.

COMMENT. The Queen’s Theatre in the Haymarket reopened on this day, “finish’d” at last.

Genest (II, 272) observes that The Confederacy and Estcourt’s The Fair Example (DL, 10 April 1703) were both founded on Dancourt’s Les Bourgeoises à la mode. Mr Mimes is not otherwise known to us and does not appear in the Biographical Dictionary, whose authors assume that this name was an error for Mr Mynns (X, 409), which seems likely. A head-to-head collision of play premières at the two theatres is clear evidence of the ill-will between the companies at this time.

DOCUMENT. On this date several members of the old Lincoln’s Inn Fields Company testified in answer to Sir Edward Smith’s bill of complaint of 30 May 1704. Thomas Betterton, John and Elizabeth Boman, Anne Bracegirdle, Elizabeth Barry, John Verbruggen, George Bright, and Cave Underhill all basically deny any involvement in the Patent Company, its theatres, or profits since the split of December 1694. Since their company (past and present) does not operate under a patent, they maintain that their records are none of Smith’s business. P.R.O. C5/337/72. (See Document Register, no. 1824.)

THE AMOROUS WIDOW: or the Wanton Wife [Betterton]. Barnaby Brittle—Dogget (and see below). (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. The Amorous Widow; or the Wanton Wife: A Comedy. As it has been Acted in all the Theatres with great Applause for many Years: By Her Majesty’s Servants. Never Printed before (London: W. Turner and J. Morphew, 1706). Copy used: Harvard. Although this play received its première by 1670 and was a longtime repertory staple, it had never been previously published. The cast printed in the 1706 edition apparently represents the Queen’s revival of this autumn. Sir Peter Pride—Freeman; Cuningham—Verbruggen; Lovemore—Betterton; Barnaby Brittle—Dogget; Geffrey—Fieldhouse; Clodpole—Bright; Merryman—Underhill // Lady Laycock—Mrs Leigh; Lady Pride—Mrs Willis; Mrs Brittle—Mrs Bracegirdle; Philadelphia—Mrs Porter; Prudence—Mrs Hunt; Damaris—Mrs Prince.

Preface: What is here presented to the publick view, is a Play written some time since by one of the purest Wits this Nation e’er produc’d for Dramatick Poetry; and, with the rest of his Works, has found a general Acceptance and Applause as often as it came upon the Stage, not only on the Theatre-Royal in Drury Lane, but likewise in Lincolns-Inn-Fields, in Dorset-Garden, and at the Queen’s Theatre in the Hay-Market.

Were we to reveal the Author of this incomparable Comedy, as that we durst not without a Violation of the Promise made to his exemplary Modesty, which [sic] often requested the Gentleman, to whom he bequeathed this rich Treasure, never to divulge its Parent, his very Name would challenge a just Veneration from all the most sensible Part of Mankind, as well as strike Terror in the severest Criticks; who, amongst all their carping Comments, cannot deny, but his Vein was as naturally good in the Tragick way as in the Comick . . .

‘Tis true, a Play seldom makes a Publick Entry abroad, without being usher’d by a Prologue and Epilogue, both which we were not without; but through some Negligence or Casualty the Original ones being lost, we would not impose any upon the World, that were not Genuine. . . .

RECEIPTS: According to testimony in Public Record Office C7/642/44 gross receipts were £64 3s. 6d. The company had agreed to give the profits of this performance to Steele in lieu of his benefit the previous 25 April, though Steele objected to public announcement of the replacement benefit. Following deduction of constant and incident charges and the deficiency of £12 1s. 10d. on the play’s second night, Steele’s profit was £13 5s. 8d., but he never collected the money and subsequently sued Rich. § THE BASSET-TABLE [Susanna Centlivre]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. The Basset-Table. A Comedy. As it is Acted at the Theatre-Royal in Drury-Lane, by Her Majesty's Servants. By the Author of the Gamester (London: William Turner and J. Nutt, 1706). Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personæ: Lord Worthy—Mills; Sir James Courtly—Wilks; Lovely—Bigerstaff [Bickerstaff]; Sir Richard Plainman—Bullock Captain Hearty—Estcourt [Estcourt]; Sago—Johnson; Buckle—Penkethman // Lady Reveller—Mrs Oldfield; Lady Lucy—Mrs Rogers; Valeria—Mrs Mountford; Mrs Sago—Mrs Cross; Alpiew—Mrs Lucas. Prologue Spoke by Mr Penkethman. Epilogue Spoke by Mr Estcourt. [Danchin, I, 294-295, prints a second “Prologue. For the Basset-table. Spoken by Mr Pinkethman, acting a Footman in a Lac'd Livery” from Durfey's Songs Compleat (1719). He suggests that it too was used during the first run.]

Dedication: Poetry, in its first Institution, was principally design'd to Correct, and rectify Manners. Thence it was that the Roman and Athenian Stages were accounted Schools of Divinity and Morality. . . . I have had a tender regard to good Manners, and by the main Drift of it, endeavour'd to Redicule and Correct one of the most reigning Vices of the Age. I might say, as many of my Brethren have done upon slighter Grounds, that this Play has had the good fortune to Please and Divert the Nicest, and Politest Part of the Town.

COMMENT. Publication “this day” by Walsh and Hare of “Mr D. Purcel's Musick in 4 parts, in the Comedy called the Basset Table, price 1s. 6d.” was advertised in the Post Man of 22-24 January 1706.

FIRST EDITION. Ulysses: A Tragedy. As it is Acted at the Queen’s Theatre in the Hay-Market. By Her Majesty’s Sworn Servants. Written by N. Rowe, Esq; (London: Jacob Tonson, 1706). Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personæ: Ulysses—Betterton; Eurymachus—Verbruggen; Polydamas—Mynns; Theon—Knap Agenor—Weller; Ephialtes—Freeman; Telemachus—Booth; Antinous—Husbands; Cleon—Dickins; Arcas—Cory; Mentor—Bowman // Penelope—Mrs Barry; Semanthe—Mrs Bracegirdle. Prologue, Spoken by Mr Betterton. Epilogue, Spoke by Mrs Bracegirdle. Publication of “The Musick in the Play called Ulysses by Mr Eccles Master of her Majesty’s Musick” was advertised in the Post Man of 21-23 March 1706.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted before.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Ulysses, wrote by Mr Row: The Play being all new Cloath’d, and Excellently well perform’d had a Successful run, but fell short of his Ambitious Step-Mother, and his Tamerlane (Downes, Roscius Anglicanus, pp. 100-101) Circa January (?) 1706 an anonymous 27-page pamphlet appeared, entitled Critical Remarks on Mr Rowe’s last Play, call’d Ulysses (London: Benjamin Bragge, 1706). Arnott and Robinson, no. 4021. It is a sneering, act-by-act examen of Rowe’s tragedy, largely concerned with verbal infelicities.

FIRST EDITION. Perolla and Izadora. A Tragedy. As it was acted at the Theatre Royal, By Her Majesty’s Servants. Written by Mr Cibber (London: Bernard Lintott, n.d. [1706]. Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personæ: Hannibal—Williams; Blacius—Mills; Pacuvius—Cibber; Perolla—Wilks; Portius—Keen // Izadora—Mrs Oldfield. Prologue. Epilogue Spoken by Mrs Oldfield. [According to Snyder, the author of the epilogue was Arthur Maynwaring.]

Dedication to the Earl of Orrery: The Story of Perolla and Izadora was the Product of the Earl of Orrery Your Lordship’s Noble Grandfather’s leisure Hours in the Fam’d Romance of Parthenissa, which I found so irresistably Inviting, that I cou’d not help Aspiring (beyond what some People are pleas’d to call my Talent) in this Attempt of Forming it into a Tragedy: For I saw so many Beautiful Incidents in the Fable, such Natural, and Noble Sentiments in the Characters, and so just a Distress in the Passions, that I had little more than the Trouble of Blank Verse to make it fit for the Theatre. . . . Just before I hurry’d it on upon the Stage, Your Lordship did me the Honour of Adjusting its Garniture, the Expression. . . . I am bound to acknowledge, that Your Lordship’s Perusal has left it several secret Faults fewer than it had: By the good Fortune of which Assistance it has been the better able to make its way through a favourable Third and Sixth Day.

That Mr Vanbrugh & Mr Congreve (in Violation of the standing Orders & Rules of the Lord Chamberlains Office concerning ye Playhouses) & contrary to the Lawes of ye Land have seduced away & Entertain'd Mrs Mary Hooke alias Harcourt to Act in the Playhouse in the Haymarkett altho they were acquainted & well knew that in October 1702 she Entred into Articles with Mr Rich for five yeares with security for Performance.

That she lately Return'd from Dublyn on Purpose to serve out her Articles with Mr Rich. But Mr Vanbrugh & Mr Congreve bidding her a much higher salary then she Expected or (as Mr Rich beleives) they intend to Pay her, she hath Deserted Mr Rich his Service.

He now humbly Prays his Lordship That she may be restrayn'd from Acting in the Company in the Hay Markett untill she hath served out her Articles with him. [On the verso Rich supplies a copy of a letter of 27 November 1704 to him from Sir John Stanley, printed under that date, above.] Persons belonging to Mr Rich which since Christmas last have been Enter-tain'd by Mr Vanbrugh & Mr Congreve in the Haymarket: Mr Powell, Mr Bowen, Mr Doggett, Mr Mins [Mynns], Mr Husbands, Mrs Bignall [Bicknell], Mrs Baker. ‡ THE FAITHFUL GENERAL [anonymous adaptation of The Loyal Subject]. Cast not advertised.
(Daily Courant)

Dedication to the Dutches of Ormond: Your Grace receiv’d this my first Attempt in Poetry, into Your Protection; and honour’d it with Your Presence. It was expos’d upon the Stage, strip’d of all those Ornaments I endeavour’d to give it. Whole Scenes were left out; the Passions were weaken’d; some of the necessary Incidents Omitted; and those that remain’d were brought on without due Preparation, or Coherence. But it is here Offer’d to Your Grace, restor’d to the same Order in which it was Written. [The parallel between the title character and the Duke of Ormond] may attone for the many Faults in the other Parts of the Play, to which I have given a different Turn from the Original; alter’d the Plot, and made the Language wholly New. And after all the Misfortunes and Disappointments that have attended this Poem, since I was first Prevail’d upon to publish it; I think it a sufficient Happiness that it was brought upon the Stage soon enough, thus to implore Your Grace’s Protection. . . . [signed] M.N.

Advertisement: The Solitude of a Desart, and the natural Inclination I have to Scribling, fix’d me upon this Employment to divert my idle Hours; which together with the want of Experience in the just Measure of a Play, betray’d me into that common Vice of Prolixity; and insensibly spun out every Scene to an insupportable Length. On the Contrary, the Stage at this time Contracts the Drama into such narrow Limits, that I found it impossible to reconcile these Extreams, without cutting off whole Scenes; maiming the Plot, and rendering the Play imperfect in every one of the Characters and Incidents.

Before it was brought upon the Stage, it had been approv’d by some of the best Judges in Poetry . . . and I was often assur’d that it was scarcely possible it shou’d fail of Success. But it is a Fault in Architecture, to build upon an old Foundation; I have had much more trouble to clear away the Rubbish, and new Model the design, than if it had been all of Piece, and intirely my own; and the Event has sufficiently convine’d me how much I was mistaken in my Choice.

My Intention at first was only to revive the Loyal Subject, but afterwards by degrees I chang’d every thing. . . . The Episodes are all new form’d; the main Design is alter’d; and the Language is my own; those few Lines excepted that are all distinguisgh’d with a Note of Quotation; most of which I have Corrected, Transpos’d, and reduc’d to Measure. Nor need I give my self any trouble to confute the Rumour that is spread thro’ the Town, that this is only an old Play with some little Alteration; but shall refer it to the Reader, that by comparing both, he may find what a very small share of this Tragedy belongs to Beaumont, and Fletcher.

But all the Disadvantages that attended this Tragedy upon the Stage, still more increases my Debt of Gratitude to that illustrious Assembly, that honour’d it the third Day with their Presence. And also for that general Encouragement I met with from all hands, to expect such another crouded House, if I had accepted the Offer that was made me, to chuse a Day at any time that was most convenient; and tho’ some of my Friends were very earnest with me not to reject the Proposal, yet I had found so many Defects in that short Copy by which the Play was Acted, that I cou’d not suffer it to be again expos’d to an Audience of Quality, and Judgment, upon my account . . . it will prove a more agreeable Entertainment to ‘em in the Reading; than it cou’d be when it was deform’d and mangled for the Stage.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted before.

COMMENT. For a biting analysis of this adaptation (“replete with drivelling sentimentality”), see Sprague, Beaumont and Fletcher, pp. 212-220.

THE LOYAL SUBJECT (Written by Beaumont and Fletcher) [actually by Fletcher]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

EDITION. The Loyal Subject; or, the Faithful General; A Play Acted at the Theatre-Royal, By Her Majesties Servants. The Authors Mr Beaumont and Mr Fletcher. With a Preface (London: Printed for H.N. and sold by W. Keble, n.d. [1706]). Copy used: British Library 841.d.5. Actors Names: Czar—Williams; Archas—Mills; Theodore—Wilks; Putsky—Griffin; Alinda alias Archas—Mrs Rogers; Burris—Bickerstaffe; Borosky—Keen; Ensign—Johnson; Olimpia—Mrs Finch; Honoria—Mrs Temple; Viola—Mrs Norris; Petesca—Mrs Cox; Lady—Mrs Sapsford.

Preface: This Play having been entertained with a general Approbation, not only formerly when it’s Compilers were alive and able to support it both by their Character and Interest; but even now, in this our more Polite and Critical Age, being lately revived just in its own Native and Original Simplicity, without being dismember’d, curtail’d, or passing the Index Expurgatorius of any of our Modern Refiners, meeting with a kind Reception suitable [sic] to its Merit; some Puny Poetaster, disguised under the Coverture of a Petticoat, hath presumed to graft his wild degenerate Crab, on this Noble Stock; but what delicious Fruit it has produced, I leave to the distinguishing Taste of the discerning and generous Encouragers of the Stage.

This spurious Brat being now handing into the World by the Midwifery of the Press, dismaly Lame, Distorted, and Imperfect; and the Town having been so penetrating and judicious, as well as kind and tender, that when this legitimate Offspring of our Beaumont and Fletcher, appeared on the Stage the very same Day as the By-Blow did, it shewed a true Gust and Standard-Wit, and quitted the Imposter to embrace the Legitimate.

And indeed our Loyal Subject is so intirely compleat in all his Parts, and so well studied and considered in all its Incidents, that it's Improvement or Correction would be a Work for the most accurate and sublime Pen.

Wherefore it might justly be accounted both Ingratitude and Injustice, not to undeceive the World by publishing him intire, from the Original, that those who were so well pleased with him on the Stage, may, when they please, be entertained by him in their Hands, and the Composers Memory and Reputation vindicated from the Imputation of such gross Absurdities and self-inconsistent Incongruities, which often occur in the new modelled ones.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. With several Entertainments of Singing by Mr Ramondon and the Boy, particularly a 2 Part Song compos’d by the late Mr Henry Purcell; and an extraordinary Piece of Musick for a Violin and Flute, perform’d by Signior Gasparini, and Mr Paisible, and Dancing by Monsieur Cherrier and Mrs Moss.

COMMENT. Drury Lane's revival of the Beaumont and Fletcher original against the new adaptation seems manifestly hostile in spirit. The new edition of the original with the preface quoted above is undated and has been variously dated in library catalogues, but reference to the Queen's Theatre production of The Faithful General proves that it appeared in January 1706 or later.

DOCUMENT. To the Right Honorable the Earle of Kent Lord Chamberlain of Her Majesties Household. The Case of Catherine Tofts relating to her Agreement with Mr Rich, shewing the Reason why she forbears singing for him. Humbly Offered to Your Lordships Consideration. May it please your Lordship.

She having made an Agreement with Mr Rich on the 30th of December 1704, she thereby obliged herself to sing for him during the space of one yeare, beginning the 5th of January 1704/5, she did accordingly as often as he thought fitt for his Interest to Call her to Sing, and so continued in a good understanding till some dispute arriss [arose?] about £60 which the Nobility was pleased to give to the said Catherine Tofts out of the Subscription mony which Mr Rich pretended to share equally with her, though such a thing was never mentioned in the Articles or by word of Mouth at least not to her knowledge. She thereupon Offered upon summons to take her Oath thereof at any time when Mr Rich should think fitt, so that he having nothing to make good his frivolous pretentions and the matter being decyded to her advantage by Everybody that heard of it, He tooke all the Oppertunitys he could to be Revenged on her: which was in calling her to sing oftner than she was able to performe and when she Represented to him that by his Article he could not Oblige her to sing above twice a week, he answered that was Accounting one week with another during the time she was bound to him, which is a thing as unjust as it is impossible for it is to be supposed when he did not call her that his Interest did not require it, Therefore she humbly presumes she is not lyable to make good those times Considering she never refused to perform when he desired her. But Rather than to make any further dispute, being in hopes in time to gett free of so unreasonable a Master She Resolved to take it Patiently then. Through his ill Nature he called her to sing on a Tuesday Thursday and Saturday in the same week not in hopes of getting audiences (it being after Midsummer the weather Excessive hott and the Towne very Empty) but only to shew his ill will. These Continuall Fatigues caused such an inflamation in her throat that when he calld her again on the Tuesday after she had not only lost her Voice but her very speech was taken from her which is to be Justified by all the Audience she coming upon the Stage that day to make her excuse: After such hard proceedings some would have believed he would acknowledge how much he was in the Wrong. But on the Contrary the time being Expired that she was to sing that season and he being to pay her one hundred pounds that was then due to her he had the injustice to detaine £20 of it for that time she mis[sed] singing after having been disabled by his barbarous usage (tho he had the benefit of the same Audience as if she had performed, the Towne having no Notice of her being out of order and would by no means let her have it till she had sung twice for that one time she Mist, which she did, once on the 10th of July and the second time on the 29 October which were two of the four Months she was to have for herself. All this time was employed in taking fit Remedies for the Recovery of her lost Voice to her great Cost, and Loss of time that might have been employed in practising and improving her in Singing which she could not do having been forbid by the physicians not to try her Voice for about three Months. And after all her Care and Expences the time being near that she was to perform again she desired him to get Clothes fitt for her to appear in the Opera, those that she had before being not only worn out, but were never made fitt for her. To which he answered he supposed she had a mind to improve her self that she might be in a Condition to Raise her price, and that he would not lay out any thing upon her. Upon which she took the Resolution to buy them at her own Charge having Every body to Judge whether they are more than what is Necessary for that purpose. It may be supposed that the Encouragement she met with by the goodness the Publlick shew in bearing with her fault, should have made him alter his Uncivil Way of proceeding but on the Contrary went on with it in Calling on her to Sing without any regard to the said Accident, so that having performed on a Saturday Tuesday and Thursday without intermission, it putt her very much out of Order as may be justified by Dr Garth and Dr Welwood who were her physitians Especially Doctor Garth to whose ability and Care her speedy Recovery is intirely owing, her last illness was caused more by the ill habit of her Body than the Dyascordinces she took for her Cold, tho’ Mr Rich has Maliciously spread abroad that it was a feigned sickness, being not Contented with those Scandalous Reproaches, and now the time she was bound to him being quite Expired, he takes all Opportunities to deprive her of her due: she having Offered him his Choice either to forfeit for the three weeks she was not able to performe or to sing so many times proportionally for it. He pretends to have her sing 11 times or that she forfeit a sume Accordingly which amounts to as he Reckons it, No less than £60—out of £100—that she was to have for this last two Months of November and December, so that she must Expect no more than £40—for six Weeks—by singing, and about £100 Expence that she has been at in Clothes and Stage Jewells, All which he was to have provided for her but now refuses to pay for them, and no other Satisfaction can she get of him, But that it is his Will it should be so. Therefore all her hopes rely on Your Lordships Goodness to have justice done her, and to Convince the Nobility and Gentry that what he has reported as to her asking Exorbitant prices is false and malicious: To Clear which she is willing to Refer it to Your Lordship or any of the Nobility that will please to take the trouble to Name what she should have every time she shall performe provided she’s discharged from having any thing to doe with a man unfitt to deal with for his ill Manners & Management of them which are in his power. This is the humble Request of My Lord Your Lordships most Obedient humble Servant [Catherine Tofts].

Catherine Tofts’ demands of Mr Rich are as follows Viz.

That what she’s to Forfeit for her Nonperformance be deducted weekly and not altogether as Mr Rich pretends so that she not singing three weeks in 9 weeks and half for which she was to have £100 her forfeiture comes to £30 16s. 9d. and then there will be due to her £68 3s. 3d. [Annotated in a different hand: agreed to make an abatement for ye time she did not sing.] That Mr Rich must pay what Expence she’s been at in Clothes and Jewells in the part of his Opera of Arsimoe which amounts to 100. [Annotated in a different hand: Mrs Tofts to take off her lace & give Mr Riche his clothes back.]

That Mr Rich must pay Mr Dieupart for his Attendance and performance Upon the Harpsicord 25 times that are due to him of 33 times Catharine Tofts has sung for Mr Rich since her Engagement with him the said Mr Dieupart having Received but for 10 Times and that is to be paid according to Agreement between them. (LC 7/3, fols. 167-168)

THE PROVOK’d WIFE [Vanbrugh]. Cast not advertised. (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted there before. . . . With Alterations.

COMMENT. The nature of the “Alterations” is uncertain, but they were probably minor. Genest (III, 171-172) believed that the substitution of women’s dress for that of a clergyman in Sir John Brute’s disguise in Act IV was probably made at this time.
as a response to outcry from Collier and others about Vanbrugh’s unflattering treatment of a pseudo-clergyman. These alterations were not published until the Dublin edition of 1743. Colley Cibber connects them to the Drury Lane revival of 11 January 1726 (Apology, II, 233-234) in a passage Genest regards merely as proof of his “inaccuracy.” Two modern editors of the play, however, have concluded that the alterations were not made until 1726. See the editions by Curt A. Zimansky (Lincoln: Univ. of Nebraska Press, 1969), Appendix B, and James L. Smith (London: Ernest Benn, 1974), Appendix A.

COMMENT: This anonymous attack (wrongly attributed to Jeremy Collier in the British Library catalogue) on plays and players was occasioned by the opening of Vanbrugh’s Haymarket theatre the previous April. The text is internally dated 29 September 1705 on page 16. A Letter to a Lady Concerning the New Play House (London: Joseph Downing, 1706). Arnott and Robinson, no. 1503. The author says “I never in my Life saw a Play, and have not read very many; a few of them were sufficient to give me a Surfeit” (p. 10), but Collier, replying to James Drake’s complaint that he attacked “the Musick and Gesture of the Playhouse only upon Report, having never heard of one, nor seen t’other,” replies “here he runs too fast, I only told him, I was no Frequenter of the Playhouse. I must tell him, I have been there, tho not always for Diversion. I am not so much a Stranger to that place, as not to have seen the Behaviour of their Women bold, and the Gestures lewd.” A Second Defence of the Short View of the Prophanenesse and Immorality of the English Stage, &c (London: S. Keble, R. Sare, and G. Strahan, 1700), p. 56.

To which will be added, THE MASQUE OF EUROPE’S REVELS [Motteux and Eccles]. With an addition of new Dances, never perform’d before. Cast not advertised. (Daily Courant)
CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Downes' comment evidently applies to this Haymarket revival, rather than to the original production of 1704: "Trelooby a Farce, Wrote by Captain Vanbrugg: Mr Congreve and Mr Walsh. Mr Dogget Acting Trelooby so well, the whole was highly Applauded." (Roscius Anglicanus, p. 101)

COMMENT. We have presumed that the masque is the one originally performed at court on King William's birthday, 4 November 1697.

DOCUMENT. 28 January 1705/6 Proposalls delivered by Mr Dieupart on the behalfe of Mrs Tofts.

1. That Mr Rich shall give Mrs Tofts £100, & Release for all past forfeitures or Neglects & she to have the Jewells & he the Cloathes, & she then to give him a discharge of all Demands past & Mr Dieupart to have 22 Guineas for what is past.

2. That then there shall be new Articles to Commence for 3 Months in which time Mrs Tofts to sing twelve times for which Mr Rich is to pay her £200 to be paid in twelve partes (vizt) £16 13s. 4d. each time she sings before the Curtaine is drawn up.

3. That Mrs Tofts shall provide at her owne Expence one to Play on the Harpsicorde to her when she sings out of the said Money. That no one shall Play to her but whom she shall appoint or approve of, And that all the rest of the Musick shall be at Mr Rich his Expence, & such persons shall be ready to Play as Mrs Tofts shall think proper to Assist her when she is singing, if Mrs Tofts should be sick during the time Agreed, by which she cannot perform, that then if Mr Rich pleases to call her she will at any time before the Expiration of the Articles make up such time when she is well & able to performe, but if by his Neglect she is not called then no Deduction shall be made, but she shall be Paid so much for the said time, but she not to sing any where else in that time where she shall Receive Money.

4. That Mrs Tofts shall have that Roome called the Practicing Roome to Dress in, & Conveniencies to put her Cloths under Lock & Key therein & two women whom she shall appoint to Dress her, and they to be ready when she is to sing to dress her as she shall Call for them & those Dayes she sings to be Constant to wait on her, and no other person without her leave & Mr Rich to pay them & to find two Bottles of wine every time she sings to be for her use to dispose of them to the Gentleman to practice with her.

5. That Mrs Tofts shall not be obliged to sing above twice in one day when she sings singly, unless she shall think proper, & that she shall sing no other part in Opera's or any other Musick but such as she shall think fitt & convenient for her and Mr Rich to find all such Cloths and Ribbons as shall be necessary for her parte without which she shall not be obliged to performe, & that she shall have 3 dayes notice before she is to sing, & that she shall have a benefitt Day on Tuesday the Nineteenth of February next in which she shall sing, but such her Singing shall not be reckoned as one of the twelve times hereby Agreed on to Sing she Paying the Charge of the House, and what shall be further agreed on at the sealing the Articles.

6. That after the time is expired if Mr Rich and Mrs Tofts doe not Agree on a further time, That Mrs Tofts shall be hereby Discharged from Mr Rich, and to be at Liberty to sing where she pleases. (LC 7/3, fol. 88)

Tuesday 5

SJP

THE ANATOMIST; or, The Sham Doctor [Ravenscroft].

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. The performance at court is noted in the Post Boy of 5-7 February, though the play is not named. Downes (p. 98) includes this as the final item in a list of court performances: “it was perform’d on Shrove-Tuesday, the Queen’s Birth Day, it being done by the Actors of both Houses, and perfectly Perform’d; there being an Additional Entertainment in’t of the best Singers and Dancers, Foreign and English: As Margarita D’elpine, Maria Gallia, Mrs Lindsey, Mrs Hudson and Mr Leveridge, and others: The Dances were perform’d by Monsieur L’Abbe; Mr Ruel; Monsieur Cherrier, Mrs Elfort; Miss Campion; Mrs Ruel and Devonshire Girl: Twas very well lik’d by the whole Court.”

COMMENT. As originally produced in 1696, The Anatomist was filled out with a masque, Motteux’s The Loves of Mars and Venus, with music by Eccles and Finger. Whether it was used on the present occasion we do not know, but it does not seem particularly suitable to Queen Anne’s birthday.

As of Wednesday 6 February there are no plays performed on Wednesday or Friday until after Easter.

‡ THE REVOLUTION OF SWEDEN [Catharine Trotter]. Cast not advertised. (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. The Revolution of Sweden. A Tragedy. As it is acted at the Queens Theatre in the Hay-Market (London: James Knapton and George Strahan, 1706). Copy used: Readex. Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant of 18 March.

Dramatis Personae: Gustavus – Booth; Count Arwide – Betterton; Erici – Cory; Vice-roy of Sweden – Husbands; Archbishop of Upsal – Bowman; Beron – Mynns // Constantia – Mrs Barry; Christina – Mrs Harcourt; Laura – Mrs Baker. Prologue. Epilogue.

Dedication to Lady Harriett Godolphin: There are so great Difficulties, and such general Discouragements, to those of our Sex who wou’d improve their Minds, and employ their Time in any Science, or useful Art, that there cannot be a more distinguishing Mark of a Free, and Beneficient Spirit, than openly to condemn that ill-grounded Custom, by giving Countenance and Protection to those who have attempted against it. . . . I am happy in being an Occasion of giving the World so rare an Example of, at first, in the Honour was publickly done me by the Dutchess of Marlborough, and all her Beauteous Family; And now by your Ladiships permitting this Address. . . . Catharine Trotter.

Preface: I am willing to believe that the distaste of Plays which the Town is fall’n into, (tho’ encreas’d since some care has been taken to Reform them) was at first produc’d by the just Complaints that have been Publickly made on the Abuses of the Stage, which might incline the Ladies especially, to seek in Musick, fine Scenes, and Dancing, a Diversion that wou’d at least be harmless. . . .

I . . . cou’d never allow my self to think of any Subject that cou’d not serve either to incite some useful Virtue, or check some dangerous Passion. With this design I thought writing for the Stage, a Work not unworthy those who wou’d not trifle their time away, and had so fix’d my Mind on contributing my part towards reforming the Corruptions of it, that no doubt I have too little consider’d the present tast of the Town; I shou’d not have wholly neglected those Ornaments, which all are now fond of. . . . Two sorts of Judges . . . have pass’d their Censure on it; those who have never seen any part of it, and those who, tho’ present at it, minded very little of it. . . .
have met with some turns of Raillery, which had no Foundation, but mistakes from an entire Ignorance of what had pass’d before, or were to follow, what they were pleas’d to be Witty upon; of which I need only give the Reader one for a Tast. Some finding that Arwide has set his Hand to a Paper, in which there are Articles that he knows nothing of, conclude that he sign’d a Treaty with his Enemy, without ever reading it, and on this wise Contrivance of their own Imagination, laugh at a Womans Plot, when the least attention to the conclusion of the Play, must have satisfy’d them that the deceit was a little more artfully laid.

’Tis confess’d it would be very unreasonable to desire, that every one who comes to a Play, shou’d be attentive at it; those who find in the Audience a better Entertainment, must be allow’d to turn their Eyes and Thoughts from the Stage. . . .

What objections I have heard from the less rash, or at least more attentive Criticks, are not very considerable; some who had read the History, expected to find all the remarkable Passages of it in the Play . . . not considering the Rules of the Drama, that Tragedy is confin’d to represent only such incidents as immediately conduce to the effecting the one great Action it proposes, all which must be suppos’d to happen in a small space of Time. . . . Another piece of Criticism I have heard, is, that I have made Christiana speak an Hour after she is dead: As to the time, I shall not stand upon giving ’em three quarters of an Hour, it being every whit as absurd to make her speak one Minute after she is dead, as a whole Hour; and for her speaking after she has been in a Swoon, and suppos’d dead—an Hour, if they will have it so, as there is nothing in that, but what has very frequently happen’d, the Jest will, notwithstanding, be entirely lost.

FIRST EDITION. The British Enchanters; or, No Magick like Love. A Tragedy. As it is Acted at the Queen’s Theatre in the Hay-Market. By Her Majesty’s Sworn Servants (London: Jacob Tonson, 1706). Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personæ: Cælius—Betterton; Constantius—Booth; Amadis—Verbruggen; Florestan—Husbands; Arcalus—Bowman // Arcabon—Mrs Barry; Oriana—Mrs Bracegirdle; Corisanda—Mrs Porter; Urganda—Mrs Bowman; Delia—Mrs Baker. Prologue. Epilogue. (Danchin points out that this epilogue was printed by Samuel Johnson as the work of Addison. Danchin also prints an epilogue “design’d” for The British Enchanters (already used in an earlier version for Boyle’s As You Find It) and “Urganda’s Prophecy. Spoken by Way of Epilogue at the first Representation of the British Enchanters” (I, 312-316).) A MS copy is preserved in British Library Add. MS 61,360, fols. 40-41: “Urganda’s Prophecy, design’d to conclude The British Enchanters.”

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT: A new Opera call’d, The British Enchanters, Wrote by the Honourable Mr George Grenvill; very Exquisitly done, especially the Singing Part; making Love the Acme of all Terrestrial Bliss: Which infinitely arrird both Sexes, and pleas’d the Town as well as any English Modern Opera. DOCUMENT. Sir, I received your letter about the Business of Mr Vanbrook with the Barroness, and think it will be very difficult for me to make them agree who are so wide in their proposals to each other; therefore will lett alone a little longer (‘till I come to town) in hopes they may patch up of themselves, rather then give my self the trouble (if I can avoid it) to make an Agreement which very likely will please neither; But as for the former Bargain which Mr Vanbrook does not deny, I shall alwais think him obliged to perform & pay her the £50: And she shall sing ye 5 times for it, or six if he insists upon it, though the time is Elapsed in which she was to per-forme. . . . COMMENT. There is no ad in the Daily Courant for a performance this day. Avery entered the performance without comment, evidently assuming an unbroken and continuous run of a successful new play. We have followed him in doing so, in part because of the odd error in the ad for the 25th, “thrice” for “twice.” We suspect that the printer accidentally conflated the copy for Monday and Tuesday, with the result that no ad appeared on Tuesday. Confirmation for this conjecture appears in the ad for 28 February, which says “Never Acted but four times.”

Friday 1
DOCUMENT. 1 March 1705[/6]: Signore Nicola Haym made a verbal bargaine for his scholler, with Vanbrugh & Mr Congreve, some small time before the first opening of the Theatre in the Haymarket, by which they were to give her one hundred Guineas for to sing ten times, but those ten times were to be performed before the end of November 1705; but his saide scholler has onely sung five times. She insists on the liberty to sing where she pleases, the time agreed on being expir'd and demands also the rest of the money due to her on the saide bargaine.

To shew that they did make this bargain besides the Past mony of Signore Nicola Haym who declares that it was made at the time abovementioned at the sign of the Cock in Bow Street one afternoon where was present also Mr Ecles but he cannot witness it, what was spoken having been in a language he understands not.

That this treaty did end in November last, there are these proofes the saide Signore Nicola declar’d his scholler would not come on the stage under one hundred Guineas, and on this it was concluded she should sing ten times either in the Pastoral with which the house as to be open’d, or in other playes between the Acts and as the winter was almost spent the Theatre being first opend in the Easter holy dayes twas yeilded to these Gentlemen that the time for her to sing in should not expire till the last of November as is saide above and to this they declar’d them selves satisfied and content.

That Signor Nichola’s scholler not having sung but five times does not proceede from her for he sent to these Gentlemen, two letters before the opening of their Playhouse this winter, to acquaint them that she was ready to sing any time they should apoint, but they never gave an answer to either of them, upon this my scholler went her selfe to know when they would have her sing and also advertised them that the time agreed for was near expiring, Mr Vanbrugh’s answer was that he could not tell when she should sing but after this they made her singe two different nights, and it is not any want on her side that she has not sung the remaining times.

As to the money and the bargaine these Gentlemen have often ownd both this winter, to Signor Nichola and his scholler, and they have it also in a letter under Mr Vanbrugh’s own hand to her nor can these Gentlemen complain (in this bargaine) of any one but them selves, for when Mr Congreve after the Acting of the Pastoral saide to Signor Nicola that he would give his scholler 50 Guineas for what had been done and that they should both be at liberty and the bargain end; this Signor Nicola & his scholler declind they would agree to, but Mr Congreve with drew his propostion. This makes it plaine that they were satisfied with their bargain, but if they were not why did they not when were aplyd to both by letter and personally that they should make their Advantage of her singing within that time mentiond above. Why did they not then say that they would not let her sing any more for she might then if she had lost what is due from them, the season not being spent have searcht her profit elswhere. (LC 7/3, fols. 89-90) [Evidently an appeal from Nicola Haym to Lord Chamberlain Kent on behalf of Joanna Maria Lindelheim, for whom he was serving as agent. The undated document which follows records drastically different proposals from the disputants.]

Mr Vanbrughs proposalls

Either to pay her ye same salary as Mrs Bracegirdle which is £5 a week if ye receipts amount to it; or in proportion to ye receipts

Or to have £3 a week certain, or £100 a year certain, accounting twice a week to sing. And if she continues to sing with him next winter she shall be allow seaven guineas & ye half profits of a play.

Ye baroness proposall

Ye bargain for 10 times singing determind last of November 1705. Ye Lady was to have 100 guineas for ye performance, & tho she sung but 5 times she was willing & ready to perform ye rest, there remains due on ye agreement 57 guineas. If that be paid to make ye house some amends (tho not oblig’d to make any) she will sing [five] times gratis and after those five times performd, is willing to sing ten times more by ye last of May next at ye rate of 8 [?] guineys for each time. Laroon; Thyrsis—Lawrence; Satyr—Cook; Country Man—Pack; Eurilla—Signora Maria Margarita Gallia; Phillis—Mrs Bracegirdle; Diana—Mrs Bowman; Venus—Mrs Baldwin; Country Woman—Mrs Willis. Prologue spoken by Mr Booth. Epilogue Spoken by Mrs Bradshaw. The Reader is desir’d to take Notice, That the Lines mark’d thus (‘) will not be sung, by reason of the Length of the Performance.

Advertisement Details. Never Acted before. . . . By subscription. . . . None to be admitted into the Boxes or Pit but by the Subscribers Tickets. The first Gallery 5s. Upper Gallery 2s.

Contemporary Comment. After this was perform’d an Opera, call’d The Temple of Love; consisting all of Singing and Dancing: The Singing Compos’d by Monsieur Sidgeon [Giuseppe Saggione]: The Version into English, by Monsieur Moteux [Motteux] from the Italian: The Singing perform’d by Mr Laurence, Mr Laroon, Mr Cook, Mrs Bracegirdle, Maria Gallia, and several other Men and Women for the Chorus’s: The Dances, made and perform’d all by French Men; it lasted but Six Days, and answer’d not their Expectation. (Downes, Roscius Anglicanus, p. 102)

Comment. “F. Laroon” is presumably Marcellus Laroon. See Biographical Dictionary, IX, 157. Publication of the libretto, “english’d from the Italian . . . by Mr Motteux,” was advertised in the Post Man of 7-9 March. The music was published by Walsh and Hare on 18 October 1706 *(Daily Courant): Songs in the new Opera, Call’d The Temple of Love, “Compos’d by Signor Giuseppe Fedelli Saggione.” This edition contains 18 numbers. COMMENT. In the “Postscript” to An Essay on the Opera’s after the Italian Manner (see under “mid-March” below) John Dennis reports that “Since the Printing of this Essay, I have been inform’d by very good hands, that a young Lady of the first Quality, equally famous for her Beauty, her Spirit, and her Virtue, did lately, to the Glory of her own Sex, and the Shame of ours, give very strict Order, that the Julius Cæsar of Shakespear, which was acted at her Request, should be done without any Performance either of Singing or Dancing . . .” (I, 393). This performance at Queen’s on 14 March is the only one to which Dennis could be referring. Whether or not dancing was performed this night cannot be determined; it was, however, advertised. Dennis’ editor, E. N. Hooker, speculates that the “young Lady” was Lady Henrietta Godolphin, the married daughter of the Duke of Marlborough (I, 524). She was 26 at the time, and the advertisement specifies “several Ladies of Quality.”

PASSION WEEK

mid-March

DOCUMENT. About this time John Dennis published a 16-page pamphlet entitled An Essay on the Opera's after the Italian Manner (London: John Nutt, 1706). Arnott and Robinson, no. 2028. Dennis vigorously attacks the growing vogue for all-sung opera (as opposed to semi-opera). The piece is clearly a response to the success of Arsinoe and the approaching première of Camilla.

COMMENT. A letter (now in the Folger) dated 20 March 1706 sent to a friend by Dennis with a copy of his pamphlet proves that it was in print by then. An ad in the Daily Courant on 11 April is apparently the first public announcement of its appearance. For discussion and extensive annotation, see Dennis, Critical Works, I, 382-393, 520-524.

Monday 18

CONCERT For the Benefit of William Corbett . . . will be perform'd a Consort of new Musick, (Vocal and Instrumental) by the best Masters and Voices; With several Pieces for Trumpets and Violins, compos'd by William Corbett; beginning at Seven of the Clock precisely. Tickets may be had at the Door, at 5s. each Ticket. (Daily Courant)

Monday 18

REPORT. This being Passion week, there was a new opera acted last Monday at the old playhouse [Dorset Garden? Drury Lane?], which her majestie being informed of resented the same, and ordered the lord chamberlain to suffer no more till after Easter Sunday. (Luttrell, VI, 290; 21 March)

COMMENT. We have found no advertisement for this performance, and we are not sure which theatre is meant. The order of 20 March implies Queen's rather than either of the “old” theatres. We offer the hypothesis that Vanbrugh had put on a “rehearsal” for subscribers (to The Triumph of Love) and friends.

Wednesday 20

COMMENT. This day was proclaimed a General Fast by the Queen (see British Library 21.h.4[21]). The theatres were supposed to remain dark during Passion Week in any case, but the fast made concerts impossible on this day as well.

Wednesday 20

DOCUMENT. Her Majesty having signifyd her Pleasure to me that no Rehearsalls of any Play or Opera should be performed on the stage during passion Week. These are to Require you strictly to Observe her Majestys Commands in not suffering or Allowing the Rehearsall of any Play or Opera this week Under the penalty of being silenced for breach of this her Majestys Order. ‡ CAMILLA [Owen Swiney and Nicola Haym, adapting Bononcini]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. Camilla. An Opera. As it is Perform'd at the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane, by Her Majesty’s Servants (London: Jacob Tonson, 1706). Copy used: Harvard. The Persons Represented: Latinus—[blank; Turner?]; Prenesto—Holcomb; Turnus—Hughes; Metius—Ramondon; Linco—Leveridge // Camilla—Mrs Tofts; Lavinia—Mrs Joanna Maria [Lindelheim] &c.; Tullia—Mrs Lyndsey. Prologue. Epilogue Written by Mr Estcourt. Spoken by Mrs Oldfield. [Snyder reports that Arthur Maynwaring was the author of the prologue, and that despite the printed attribution of the epilogue to Estcourt, a draft in Maynwaring’s hand in the Blenheim papers makes him the apparent author. For discussion, see Danchin, I, 320.]

Dedication: The mighty Encouragement Musick has lately met with in England, is not only an Effect of the true Taste our Nobility and Gentry entertain of that nice Science, but an Instance that we have some among us, who may be able in time to bring it into a settled Reputation. Hitherto it seem’d confin’d to the more Southern Climates, as if it had been the peculiar Product of those happier Countries; and languish’d, like tender Exoticks, when remov’d into our colder Region: but some late Attempts have made it appear, that the English Genius is not so inharmonious, but that a publick Encouragement may render us capable of contending for the Mastery with the Italians themselves. (Signed by Owen Swiney.)

On the complex “Publishing History” of the music for Camilla, see Hunter, pp. 45-46 and nos. 13-16, 18-23, and 62. “Sen vola il dio” appeared as early as December 1703 in the Monthly Mask of Vocal Music. The first collection appeared on 2 April 1706, just three days after the London première, Songs in the New Opera, Call’d Camilla, published by I. Walsh (Hunter, no. 13). A second collection, with identical title but different contents, appeared on 17 April (Hunter, no. 14). A third such collection, which “compleats all the Songs,” was published on 30 April (Hunter, no. 15). A complete edition (lacking overture and two added songs) may have been available as early as 16 May, when such an edition was advertised in the Daily Courant (Hunter, no. 20). A complete edition with pagination appeared on 18 October (Daily Courant). Hunter notes separate publication of two songs (no. 5, items 393, 394). The extraordinary popularity of the work is indicated by subsequent editions. Cross brought out an edition with overture and 52 songs (misnumbered) in February 1707 (Hunter, no. 33a). On 1 March 1707 Songs in the new Opera of Camilla was published by John Cullen, “Fairly Ingrav’d on Copper Plates, and more Correct than the former Edition” (Hunter, no. 34).

COMMENT. For an enormously detailed scholarly account of the prior history (and subsequent performance history in London) of this important opera, see Lowell Lindgren, “A Bibliographic Scrutiny of Dramatic Works Set by Giovanni and His Brother Antonio Maria Bononcini” (diss., Harvard University, 1972). Lindgren has published a much shorter summary of some of his central evidence and conclusions (in English, title notwithstanding) in “I Trionfi di Camilla,” Studi Musicali, 6 (1977), 89-159.

FIRST EDITION. Wonders in the Sun, or, The Kingdom of the Birds; A Comick Opera. With great Variety of Songs in all kinds, set to Musick by several of the most Eminent Masters of of the Age. Written by Mr Durfey (London: Jacob Tonson, 1706). Copy used: Readex. The Dramatis Personæ gives no performers' names (but see Downes, below). Introduction to the Prologue, By the Satyr. The Prologue, all sung Prepar'd by Instrumental Musick. And after the last Symphony the Genius of Poetry appears, Crown'd with Bays and Sings. The Epilogue. Begun by Mrs Porter, the Parrot standing by.

The Reader is desired to take Notice, That several of the Songs will be omitted, the Performance being too long.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted before... A new Comical Opera.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. The last Opera [in a series of three at the Queen's Theatre in spring 1706] was, The Kingdom of Birds; made by Mr Durfey, perform'd in July [recte April], 1706. The Singers in't were, Mr Cook, Mr Laroon, Mr Laurence, Mrs Hudson and others: Dancers were, Monsieur De Bargues, Monsieur L'Abbe's Brother, Mr Fairbank, Mrs Elfort and others: It lasted only Six [recte five] Days, not answering half the Expences of it. (Downes, Roscius Anglicanus, p. 103)
Singers named in the six songs for which music was published (see below) are Pack Bradshaw, Mrs Willis’s Girl, Mrs Willis, and Jemmy Bowen.

COMMENT. Publication of the libretto was advertised in the Daily Courant on 8 April. Publication of Songs in the new Opera, Call’d Wonders in the Sun, or The Kingdom of the Birds was advertised by I. Walsh in the Daily Courant of 7 August. See Hunter, no. 25. Walsh and Hare advertised publication of “The Overtures and Aires in 4 parts for Violins perform’d in the comick Opera call’d the Kingdom of the Birds, composed by Mr John Smith, pr. 1s. 6d.” in the Post-Man of 27-29 August 1706.

FIRST EDITION. The Recruiting Officer. A Comedy. As it is acted at the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane, By Her Majesty’s Servants. Written by Mr Farquhar (London: Bernard Lintott, 1706). Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personae: Ballance – Keen; Scale – Phillips; Scruple – Kent; Worthy – Williams; Captain Plume – Wilks; Captain Brazen – Cibber; Kite – Estcourt; Bullock – Bullock; Costar Pearmain – Norris; Thomas Appletree – Fairbank // Melinda – Mrs Rogers; Silvia – Mrs Oldfield; Lucy – Mrs Sapsford; Rose – Mrs Mountfort. Prologue. Epilogue.

Dedication: Twas my good fortune to be order’d some time ago into the Place which is made the Scene of this Comedy [Shrewsbury]. . . . People were apprehensive, that, by the Example of some others, I would make the Town merry at the expence of the Country Gentlemen: But they forgot that I was to write a Comedy, not a Libel. . . . I humbly beg leave to interline a Word or two of the Adventures of the Recruiting Officer upon the Stage. Mr Rich, who commands the Company for which those Recruits were rais’d, has desired me to acquaint him before the World of a Charge which he thinks lies heavy upon him for acting this Play [i.e., scheduling the première] on Mr Durfey’s Third Night [of The Kingdom of the Birds]. Be it known unto all Men by these Presents, that it was my Act and Deed, or rather Mr Durfey’s; for he wou’d play his Third Night against the First of mine. He brought down a huge Flight of frightful Birds upon me, when (Heaven knows) I had not a Feather’d Fowl in my Play, except one single Kite: But I presently made Plume a Bird, because of his Name, and Brazen another, because of the Feather in his hat; and with these three I engag’d his whole Empire, which I think was as great a Wonder as any in the Sun. But to answer his Complaints more gravely, the Season was far advanc’d; the Officers that made the greatest Figures in my Play were all commanded to their Posts abroad, and waited only for a Wind, which might possibly turn in less time than a Day. And I know none of Mr Durfey’s Birds that had Posts abroad but his Woodcocks, and their Season is over; so that he might put off a Day with less Prejudice than the Recruiting Officer cou’d, who has this farther to say for himself, that he was posted before the other spoke, and could not with Credit recede from his Station. These and some other Rubs this Comedy met with before it appear'd. But on the other hand, it had powerful Helps to set it forward: The Duke of Ormond encourag'd the Author, and the Earl of Orrery approv'd the Play.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted before.

COMMENT: Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant of 25 April. A second edition was advertised in the issue of 23 May. Farquhar received £16 2s. 6d. from Lintot for the copyright on 12 February 1705 (Nichols, VIII, 296).

THE ISLAND PRINCESS, or, The Generous Portuguese [Motteux]. Cast not advertised. (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Persons of Quality... With all the Original Musick, Songs and Dialogues, particularly the Enthusiastic Song by Mr Leveridge. And the Dances perform'd, by Monsieur du Ruel, Mrs du Ruel, Monsieur Cherrier, Mrs Evans taught by Monsieur Siris, Mrs Cross, and others.

† The Fashionable Lover; or, Wit In Necessity [anonymous]. Performance and cast not advertised, but see below.

COMMENT: The date is uncertain. Luttrell dated his copy 7 May; it is now in the Huntington Library. Drury Lane seems normally to have advertised most of its performances at this time, so there are few gaps in the calendar. The likeliest time, presuming three performances with a benefit for the adapter, would be 19, 24, and 26 April. According to Genest (II, 341-342), the principal plot of this play is a mediocre adaptation of Nabbes' The Bride (pub. 1640). We have found no record of any revival.

COMMENT. On 21 April Nicola Haym wrote to Vice Chamberlain Coke to say on behalf of Margarita de l’Epine that she is unable to wait on Coke the next day “because she is obliged to Learn ye part of Camilla by heart for Tuesday next.” This could refer to the performance of either 23 or 30 April. We deduce that for reasons unknown de l’Epine replaced Mrs Tofts in the role. The performance of 5 July was advertised with Tofts billed in the title role, something usually done at this time only when a change of cast was involved.

COMMENT. Toward the end of the summer of 1706 a pair of broadside poems were published, one satirizing and the other defending the Hampstead Wells audience. Hampstead Wells (“Hail! fairest Wells, tho’ late the Muses Deign”) was purchased by Luttrell on 26 September (London: no publisher, 1706). The reply, Hampstead-Wells, Part II (“Nor all deserve the biting Satyrs Sting”) was bought by Luttrell on 10 October (London: B. Bragge, 1706). ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. By Subscription. All sung after the Italian manner. None to be admitted into the Boxes or Pit but by the Subscribers Tickets, which are to be deliver’d out at Mr White’s Chocolate-House in St. James’s-street. Being the last time of performing the said Opera this Season [but see 4 June, 5 July, and 1 August].

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. I shall not trouble you with one Word upon the progress of the D. of Marlbrō’s successes, because you will hear them so much quicker from the Hague, but the effect of them yesterday at the last representation of Camilla, which you will see in the paper enclosed [not copied], will I make no question be very agreeable to you. DOCUMENT. Monday 28 [i.e., 27?] May 1706. Sir, Upon Saturday last Itt was appointed That I should wait on the Earle of Carlisle & Mr Vice Chamberlain on Wensday next in the Afternoon upon the Treaty about the Play house in the Hay markett, But in pursuance of your Letter, which I received last Night I have inclosed sent you a Copy of the Letters Patent granted to Sir Wm Davenant, upon the Authority of which the Theatre in Dorsett Garden was built, But ye Patent granted to Thomas Killigrew Esq for the Theatre in Covent Garden [i.e., Drury Lane] is not in my Custody but in Mr Charles Killigrews as I believe who am Sir Your most humble servant Chr. Rich. (Letter from Christopher Rich to Sir John Stanley “at the Lord Chamberlains Office at the Cockpitt Whitehall.” LC 7/3, fols. 100-101)

COMMENT. The copy of the Davenant patent is apparently not in the Lord Chamberlain’s papers in the Public Record Office. This correspondence and the insistence upon inspecting the patent authority under which Rich’s company was operating is clearly connected to Vanbrugh’s efforts to negotiate or force a union.

ca. late Spring

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Our stage is in a very indifferent condition. There has been a very fierce combat between the Haymarket and Drury Lane, and the two sisters, Music and Poetry, quarrel like two fishwives at Billingsgate; and then comes a whole battalion of subscribers who promise to stand by the former. Though Farquhar meets with success, and has the entire happiness of pleasing the upper gallery, Betterton and Wilks, Ben Jonson and the best of them, must give place to a bawling Italian woman [presumably Margarita de l’Epine], whose voice to me is less pleasing than merry-andrew’s playing on the gridiron. The Mourning Bride, Plain Dealer, Volpone, or Tamerlane will hardly fetch us a tolerable audience, unless we stuff the bills with long entertainments of dances, songs, scaramouched entries, and what not.

COMMENT. This fragment of a letter, source unknown, is printed by Percy Fitzgerald (I, 240), who identifies it only as by “One of Her Majesty’s players at Drury Lane, writing to a stroller at Nottingham.” We have dated it late spring 1706 on the supposition that it follows the success of Farquhar’s Recruiting Officer and the opera wars of 1705-1706.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. After this [the production of Wonders in the Sun], Captain Vantbrugg gave leave to Mr Verbruggen and Mr Booth, and all the Young Company, to Act the remainder of the Summer, what Plays they cou’d by their Industry get up for their own Benefit; continuing till Bartholomew-Eve, 23d of August, 1706, ending on that Day, with The London Cuckolds: But in all that time their Profit Amounted not to half their Salaries, they received in Winter. (Downes, Roscius Anglicanus, pp. 103-104)

COMMENT. Downes’ comment is internally contradictory, and consequently the date at which the actors began a summer season at their own risk is highly conjectural. Downes misdates Durfey’s opera by three months, but he does specify “July.” This would make the summer season relatively short, but he says “in all that time,” implying an unusually long summer season. Even in a long summer, one would not expect the actors to earn half of their full-season salaries: perhaps Downes meant they earned less than half their regular salaries on a weekly basis.

COMMENT. Some time during this month a group of London actors performed some plays at Burnham’s Tennis Court in Oxford. The repertory included The Recruiting Officer, and William Bullock was among the actors (see P.R.O. C9/464/32). A “Prologue to the University of Oxford Written by Mr Steel, and spoken by Mr Wilks” was published by Bernard Lintott with a 1706 date (reprinted by Danchin with commentary, I, 340-341). Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant of 4 July, though Luttrell did not acquire his copy (now in the Newberry Library) until 8 August. Defoe denounced the performances in The Review on 3, 8, and 10 August.

First Edition. The Adventures in Madrid. A Comedy, As it is Acted at the Queens Theatre in the Hay-Market. By Her Majesty's Servants (London: William Turner, James Knapton, Bernard Lintot, and B. Bragg, n.d. [1706?]). Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personæ: Gomez—Freeman; Gaylove—Booth; Bellmou—Husbands; Gusman—Bowen; Don Phillip—Cory; Jo—Pack; Pedro—Fieldhouse // Laura—Mrs Brucegrilde; Clarinda—Mrs Barry; Emilia—Mrs Boman Lisset—Mrs Bicknel; Beatrice—Mrs Baker; Page—Miss Porter. Prologue Spoke by Mr Booth. Epilogue Spoken by Miss Porter the little Girl.

Comment. The dates of performance and publication have been the subject of some confusion. The Readex copy (Yale) is annotated “1709,” a date the ESTC has accepted. We see no reason to do so. Avery put the play in June 1706, but only as an approximation: there is no specific evidence tying performance to that month. The best consideration of date has been Genest's (II, 352-353). He points out that the prologue makes summer production virtually certain, and that performance must antedate the abrupt retirement of Mrs Bracegirdle in the middle of the 1706-07 season. Performance at the Haymarket in the summer of 1705 is unlikely: the company was camped in an incomplete theatre and about to return to Lincoln's Inn Fields for three months. A première in the summer of 1706 seems virtually certain, but it cannot be pinned down more specifically on current evidence.

COMMENT. Cibber spoke a prologue written by himself. It was published by Lintott as "A Prologue In the Opera call'd Camilla. Written and spoke [sic] by Mr Cibber at the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane. July the 5th 1706." Publication was advertised in the Daily Courant on 12 July, but Luttrell bought a copy (now in the Newberry Library) on 10 July. The prologue is reprinted by Danchin, I, 342-343.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. I was heartily griev'd when I heard at London, that the Devils-Chappel in Dorset-Garden was refitted, and that the Devils-Chaplains, the Players, had there opened their Scenes of Lewdness. We have now no less than three of those Tabernacles of Wickedness. Good God! Where is the Religion, the Vertue, the Piety, and Honour, the Honesty of our Ancestors? . . . One such House of Lewdness is enough to taint a whole Kingdom. (Observer, 10-13 July)

COMMENT. Another long fulmination appears in the issue of 13-17 July.

Tuesday 23

DOCUMENT. On or just before this date was published A Description of the Play-House in Dorset-Garden (London: B. Bragg, 1706), a broadside account of the old playhouse in rather general terms. Arnott and Robinson, no. 1316. The date is from Luttrell's copy, now in the Newberry Library.

COMMENT. The anonymous author was Joseph Addison. The poem ("Where gentle Thames thro' stately Channels glides") was originally written circa December 1698, but later revised to refer to Drury Lane and published in that form in 1702. The 1706 version of the piece was reprinted by Emmett L. Avery, "A Poem on Dorset Garden Theatre," Theatre Notebook, 18 (1963-064), 121-124. ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted there before . . . With various Entertainments of Singing and Dancing.

COMMENT. Sgnanarella is merely Act II and Mock Pompey Act V of Davenant’s The Playhouse to be Let (1662). Genest (II, 352) suggests that the company probably performed Acts I, II, and V of Davenant’s pastiche.

August 1706

ca. August

DOCUMENT. At about this time someone (probably Vanbrugh or Vice Chamberlain Coke) drew up a draft of an order for genre separation, to be issued by the Lord Chamberlain, restricting Drury Lane to opera and musical entertainments and the Haymarket to straight plays without music or dancing, and permitting each theatre to employ relevant performers currently in the employment of the other house. (Harvard Theatre Collection, HTC Coke 10)

COMMENT. Printed in full in the Coke Papers, no. 4. A much-corrected rough draft of this draft (probably in the hand of Sir John Stanley) is preserved in LC 7/3, fol. 178. This order was not issued and put in force at this time, but a compromise was made involving less drastic restrictions and a more limited transfer of personnel (see the headnote to the season of 1706-07). When the genre-division order was finally issued, opera was given to the Haymarket, straight plays to Drury Lane.

ca. August

DOCUMENT. If any body shou’d endeavour to possess the Queen That the Persons concern’d in the Patent (besides Mr Rich) wou’d be prejudic’d by an establishment That shou’d confine acting to one house, and musick to tother. It is so evidently otherwise That ‘tis the only means left to Restore ’em to any advantage, for the money they have in that adventure; as will beyond all Contest appear when it is observ’d

That in twelve years past [i.e., since the actors’ rebellion of 1694] That Mr Rich has had the management in his hands (tho’ ‘tis notorious he has spent Vast sums himself) he has not divided to those concern’d with him, one single shilling.

That he own’d last year, he lost by his Players, what he got by his Opera; and by Consequence, his desire of keeping ’em on, can be for nothing, but to confound and embroil the Accounts and give him a Pretence to make no Dividend.

That if he has the Opera single & Entire The Profit must be so Certain, and the accounts will ly in so short and plain a Compass; That twill be impossible for him to deceive the People any Longer who have Claims to a share with him.

Whereas; If he go’s on, in this Confus’d jumble, of a Double Company, there is no manner of reason to believe, They’ll fare any better for twelve years to Come, Than they have done for twelve years Past.

Memorandum: To put Mr Riches design of Cheating the rest of the adventurers out of all question: There was an offer made in him August was twelve month [i.e., August 1705], to put the Whole thing into his hands, and He refus’d it, owning very frankly that ‘twas better for him to have it as ‘twas to himself; than by restoring the Patent to its former Condition to let in the Others to govern & share with him. This may be prov’d upon oath. (LC 7/3, fols. 179-180)

COMMENT. Printed in the Coke Papers, no. 5. Rich had indeed apparently profited from Arsinoe and Camilla, but the success of these novelties led Vanbrugh grossly to deceive himself about the profitability of opera, as he was to discover in the spring of 1708.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Defoe took violent exception to the performance of a play at Oxford with the proceeds (£50, according to Defoe’s issue of 10 August) being given for the repair of a church. He was particularly offended at the choice of “Sir John Falstaff” (i.e., 1 Henry IV), pointing out that it had been denounced for profaneness by Collier in a book of which “thousands” of copies had been given away by “the Societies for Reformation and Founders of the Charity Schools.” (Review, 3 August)

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. On this day Defoe continued his attack on the actors, devoting a whole issue of his Review to a heated denunciation of the impropriety of permitting theatrical performances at the universities, occasioned by “a Set of our players of both Companies” going “down to the University of Oxford to assist in . . . debauching the Morals of the Sons of our chief Families.” Defoe continued the attack in the issue of 10 August, recommending the example of Cambridge to the Oxonians and gloating over the suppression of Doggett at Sturbridge Fair in 1701. (See Document Register, nos. 1857 and 1858.)

That with the Consent and Approbation of the Right Honourable the Earl of Kent, Lord Chamberlain of her Majestys Household, it is agreed between Mr Vanbrugh and Mr Swiny That Mr Vanbrugh shall put into the Hands of Mr Swiny the Direction and Government of the Queens Company of Actors in her Majestys Theatre in the Haymarket, for the space of seaven years, commencing from the date hereof. That Mr Swiny shall likewise have the free use of all the stock Tho’ without power of selling, or disposing of any Part of it. Otherwise than for the use of the Company. And at the Termination of the said seaven years, Mr Vanbrugh shall be entituled to the Stock in the Condition it then shall be. That Mr Swiny shall receive for his own use and Benefit, the whole and Entire clear Profits, that shall be made. That Mr Swiny shall have the Power of receiving into the Company such Actors as he shall think fitt; But shall not discharge any of them without the Consent of the Lord Chamberlain. That in consideraion of this Power resign’d to Mr Swiny together with the use of the House and Stock He shall pay to Mr Vanbrugh Five Pounds every day there shall be a Play Acted by the said Company during the Abovemention’d Term, either in London, Oxford or elsewhere. That the said Five pounds shall be every Night deducted by the Treasurer out of the Receipts, preferable to any Other Charge, and paid by him weekly to Vanbrugh. That all Taxes and Repairs whatever, shall be paid by Mr Vanbrugh. That the Ground Rent (being fifty pounds per Annum) shall be paid by Mr Swiny; but he shall have the Advantage of the Fruit money. That if at any time there happens a Dispute upon the meaning and Intention of any of these Articles, it shall be referr’d to the Decision of the Lord Chamberlain. And it is our Humble Request to his Lordshp, that this Book may be kept in his Lordships Office in the Custody of the Secretary. [Vanbrugh holograph, and signed “J. Vanbrugh.”] (LC 7/2, fol. 1)

mid-August
DOCUMENT. Between 15 and 20 August Vanbrugh signed seven contracts with members of the Drury Lane company to perform with his troupe at the Haymarket. (1) Robert Wilks is to perform for £150 per annum, plus £50  “For his care and Management of Rehearsalls” and a benefit play at £40 charges with “fourteen days Notice to engage his freinds.” In the event of stoppage of performance on account of government order, a reasonable abatement is to be made. If Vanbrugh breaches the agreement, then Wilks “is to be at liberty to dispose of himself as he shall think fitt, without a discharge in Writing.” Wilks submits himself “to the Rules, Orders, & settl’d forfeitures of the House.” Terms for the others are similar. (2) Mrs Oldfield is to receive 13s. 4d. per acting day, plus 3s. 4d. for his wife (Margaret Mills), and a benefit play at £40 charges. (3) Henry Norris is to receive 10s. per acting day. (4) John Mills is to get 13s. 4d. per acting day, plus 3s. 4d. for his wife (Margaret Mills), and a benefit play at £40 charges. (5) William Bullock is to be paid 10s. per acting day, and “to be allow’d the benefit of May-Fair & Bartholomew ffair.” (6) Theophilus Keene is to get 8s. 4d. per acting day. (7) Thomas Newman is to receive 5s. per acting day for serving as bookkeeper and prompter. (LC 7/2, fols. 2-8)

COMMENT: We presume that these agreements were formally recorded with the Lord Chamberlain’s office because they involved tampering with the members of the other company. For the agreement that ratified this raid on Rich’s personnel, see the headnote to the season of 1706-07.

Viz Captain Lovewell—Mills; Captain Blunderbuss—Mr Bullock; Squib, his Man—Norris, alias Jubilee Dick; Corporal Scare-Devil—Mr Bickerstaff // Maria, the Governor’s Daughter—Mrs Baxter; The Dame of Honor—Mrs Willis. (Playbill preserved in the extra-illustrated “Bartholomew Fair” in the Harvard Theatre Collection. Exemplars may be found in volume II, facing p. 336, and in volume III, following page 364.)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. To which will be added, the Wonderful Performance of that most celebrated Master Mr Simpson, the famous Vaulter, who has had the Honor to teach most of the Nobility in England; and at whose Request, he now performs with Mr Pinkeman, to let the World see what Vaulting is. Being lately Arrived from Italy. The Musick, Songs and Dances are all by the best Performers of their Kind, whom Mr Pinkeman has Entertain’d at extraordinary Charge, purely to give a full Satisfaction to the Town. Vivat Regina.

COMMENT. The playbill is undated, but it says “Vivat Regina” and Rosenfeld, Theatre of the London Fairs, pp. 18, 144, points out the topical reference to the capture of Montjuich by the Earl of Peterborough in 1705. “The Dame of Honor—Mrs Willis” implies that she sang the song of that title from Wonders in the Sun (see 26 April).

COMMENT. According to testimony by Christopher Rich in P.R.O. C9/464/126, Wilks and other actors commenced a series of performances of The Recruiting Officer and other plays at “Burnhams Tennis Court” in Oxford on this date.

COMMENT. Wilks did not dispute the allegation, and the visit to Oxford appears to tie in with Defoe’s denunciation of play performances at the universities (see 3 and 8 August, above).

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. The Observator of 4-7 September 1706 noted with pleasure a “Presentment of the Grand-Jury of the City of Bristol, against those Infamous Wretches, the Players”; deplored the lack of official action against them at Oxford (“I think the People everywhere have more Virtue than the Varsity-Men”); and denounced strolling actors and plans to re-open Dorset Garden: “Are these Fellows that Strole about the Country, Acting the Scenes of Lewdness, the Queens Servants too? . . . ’Tis a Barren time with ‘em: The Shows at the Fair of St. Bartholomew gathers the Crowd that way, so they get a Licence from the Master of the Rebels [Revels], and go a Stroaling about the Country to pick the Pockets of the Foolish Sinners. . . . Was not the Play-House in Dorset Garden Presented? And yet, you see, they have the Impudence to open Shop there again. This Lewd Practice will never be abolish’d till the Great Ones, the Men in Power, shall Seriously consider how Pernicious such Practices are, how Odious in the Sight of God, and how Prejudicial to the State.”
