Season of 1709-1710

This season began in doubt and suspense, did not proceed as expected, and concluded in riot and profound uncertainty about the future of the theatre in London. Virtually nothing went as planned, and no one can have been happy about what happened. Neither company was profitable.

Only gradually over the summer did the actors and shareholders at Drury Lane start to realize that the Lord Chamberlain’s silencing of the theatre on 6 June was more than a slap on the wrist and a temporary inconvenience. No disciplinary stoppage in the post-1660 history of the theatre had lasted as long as two weeks. Shutting the theatre down during the summer was doubtless an inconvenience to junior actors who hoped to collect some summer salary, but was not otherwise important. No evidence survives of the tugging and hauling that must have gone on behind the scenes over the summer. The patentees evidently thought they had worked out an agreement to try the matter in the courts, but in the event Lord Chamberlain Kent declined to cooperate. On 3 and 5 September the company advertised a performance of The Recruiting Officer for Tuesday the 6th, but Sir John Stanley (Kent’s secretary) wrote them a blunt prohibition of all performance until further order and went to town to see that it was obeyed. In a letter of 13 September (quoted below under date), William Collier—one Drury Lane shareholders entirely unrelated to Jeremy Collier—says he had “thought that matters had been soe settled that you wou’d have met with no other Interruption from playing then to have one [actor] taken upp & then to bee bailed in order to try the validity of the Lord Chamberlains order against the Patents.” The result can only have been consternation: those actors who had not been offered work at the Haymarket could expect to starve, and the proprietors could expect no income from their investment.

At an unknown date, eighteen of the Drury Lane shareholders addressed a petition “To the Queens most Excellent Majesty.” (Much of the text is printed above under “ca. August or later” 1709.) The petitioners complain specifically that Lord Chamberlain Kent did not have a legal right to issue or enforce various of his orders since 1705 and in particular the 6 June 1709 Order of Silence. They protest infringement of their patent rights and Kent’s refusal ever to give them audience “or ever hearing them in relation to the matters thereof.” They ask that they may be heard in Council “as to the Legallity of, and Releif against the said Orders. Bureaucracy being what it is, the petition was not heard until 18 February 1710, and though an official investigation was duly ordered, no report emerged until November 1711, by which time ongoing events had rendered it hopelessly out of date. Kent was replaced as Lord Chamberlain in April by the Earl of Shrewsbury, but the change seems to have had no effect upon the government’s position.

The Lord Chamberlain’s theory was that Drury Lane would remain shut and that a joint drama-opera company would occupy the Haymarket, performing operas two nights a week for about six months each year and plays the rest of the time. Presuming that he would enjoy a profitable monopoly, Owen Swiney took Wilks, Cibber, and Doggett into partnership and signed up a large number of ex-Drury Lane actors at substantial salaries. A joint company could afford to give up 40 or 50 performance nights to opera if it had no competition—or so Swiney calculated. The Haymarket company opened for occasional performances on 15 September and was performing several times a week by mid-October. At what point Swiney learned that his monopoly was in jeopardy is not clear, but his horrified protests (undated) to the Lord Chamberlain are excerpted below under “ca. early November.”

Exactly why Kent decided to issue a license to William Collier for plays at Drury Lane we can only speculate. He may have been conscious of public sympathy for the unemployed actors. Perhaps he hoped that letting Collier pay rent to most of the other Drury Lane proprietors would reduce the legal and political pressure of their protests. Conceivably his legal advisors feared that permanently silencing the theatre without even hearing the proprietors’ protest was not within the Lord Chamberlain’s legal powers. Whatever the reasoning, Stanley informed Collier that he could offer plays at Drury Lane beginning on 23 November, provided that Christopher Rich was not allowed any involvement in the enterprise. On 22 November the actors broke in and seized the theatre, assisted by soldiers of uncertain provenance. On 23 November, they duly opened, though reportedly not with the advertised play, since Rich, forewarned, had carried off virtually all the costumes.

Neither company flourished. Swiney was a competent manager, but his enterprise had an astronomical payroll and suffered from friction between dramatic and operatic personnel. The net result was a loss of £206 for the season. As early as 7 December the company was using the contortionist Higgins as an entr’acte feature (commented on with disgust and contempt in the Tatler of 15-17 December). Meanwhile at Drury Lane things were probably worse. Collier was neither competent to run a company nor interested in attempting to do so, but instead of appointing one or more of his senior actors, he installed Aaron Hill as manager. Hill was just 24 and had been secretary to Lord Peterborough. He was a writer of some talent and later in life an opinionated theorist of acting, but in 1709-10 the company's performers did not take kindly to his pretensions or guidance. To judge from his letter of 5 June, he struggled throughout the spring to placate them with some division of managerial authority and was finally so foolish as to try to impose his younger brother Gilbert on the company as assistant manager. The result was the riot of 2 June 1710 in which the actors forcibly ejected Hill and his flunkies from the theatre. Collier subsequently claimed in testimony to the Queen's investigating commission that he had not "received any benefitt or Advantage by means or vertue of the Playing all the last Yeare but gave the whole receipts to the Players to maintain them & their Families in Compassion to them." This was probably not his intention, but may well have been the fact of the matter.

An exceptional amount of theatrical commentary survives for this season. Zacharias Conrad von Uffenbach, a German visitor to London, left an extensive diary record of a visit that extended from late May to November 1710. He attended numerous performances and described some of them both fully and acutely. His accounts of concerts and Winstanley's Water Theatre are of special value for their rarity. The Tatler spent quite a lot of space on plays and actors. Some of the criticism is moral or theoretical, and some of it is rather jokey. But enough of it has theatrical substance that it conveys a sense of playhouse flavor and audience response. The most famous theatrical commentary in the Tatler this year is its eulogy on Thomas Betterton, who gave his last performance on 13 April and died later that month. The warm and generous appraisal published by Steele in his issue of 2-4 May is a landmark in the history of dramatic criticism. Granted, Steele's historical perspective was limited: he had seen Betterton only in his sixties. Nonetheless, he understood and conveyed some of the greatness of the man. Betterton had been one of the foremost actors in London for almost exactly half a century. From 1668 to 1705 he had been a powerful and influential manager, whose predilection for semi-opera had helped chart the course of that genre and brought it to its pinnacle with Purcell. His death vacated some of the greatest roles in the repertory and left his successors to try to imitate him or to endeavor to get out from under his influence. Wilks' attempt at Othello on 22 June (specially advertised) was clearly understood to be such an exercise in succession.

A curious development of this season is the arrival of the puppeteer Martin Powell from Bath. He did not advertise in the newspapers until 1710-11, but references in the Tatler prove that he was active in London by mid-December 1709 and was still newsworthy in March. A playbill survives for his performance on 1 May 1710, advertising a performance of The Last Years Campaigne, evidently a celebration of Marlborough’s victory at Malplaquet. Powell’s early repertory remains otherwise almost unknown, though he had given The Creation of the World at Bath in May 1709, according to the Tatler. By 1710-11 he had hit on the bright idea of guying the Italian opera, and he ran a series of spoofs on the form. Contemporary commentary implies elaborate staging and costumes, imaginative scripts, and the presence of a small orchestra. In Powell’s first season he performed at “Punch’s Theatre in St. Martin’s Lane,” but thereafter he moved to “the Seven Stars in the Little Piazza at Covent Garden.” The authors of the Biographical Dictionary say that “he had several unsuccessful winter seasons in London” (XII, 122), but Powell did keep returning to town for five years, and he made enough money to arouse envy. By his second season he had clearly established an interesting symbiotic relationship to high theatrical culture in London. No doubt the Tatler exaggerated in saying that the opera was nearly deserted on account of Powell’s puppets, but by implication he was appealing to a cultured audience—a conclusion borne out by his later repertory.

Because Drury Lane again fell silent after the riot on 2 June and the Haymarket offered only occasional summer performances, William Pinkethman was able to offer an extraordinarily long and varied summer season at Greenwich. His carrying on to 30 September is a clear sign that at the end of the season of 1709-10 the future of the London theatre was almost totally unclear. Would plays and operas remain together at the Haymarket (a bad idea)? Could Christopher Rich regain Drury Lane and find a way to reopen? What claims did Collier have—if not on Drury Lane, then to a performance license at some other venue? The newspapers are frustratingly silent, and almost no documentation of any sort survives. But the infighting must have been intense, prolonged—and inconclusive.

QUEEN’S THEATRE, HAYMARKET

The company owned and managed by Owen Swiney in partnership with Robert Wilks, Colley Cibber, and Thomas Doggett was the first and last ever to attempt to mount both a full season of plays and a full season of Italian opera in London. They staged 140 performances of 59 different mainpieces, adding afterpieces on just 20 occasions (one of them actually a triple bill). Seven different afterpieces were used. The two new mainpieces did the company no good. Susanna Centlivre’s The Man’s Bewitch’d (12 December) enjoyed only three performances. It might have enjoyed a better run, but was stopped when the actors took offense at a piece in the Female Tatler of 14 December that attributed various unflattering sentiments to the authoress. Charles Johnson's The Force of Friendship (20 April) survived just one night in its original form as a tragicomedy. It was immediately taken off and rebuilt as a tragedy with a farcical afterpiece (Love in a Chest). The company gave the author his benefit on the second night (1 May) and had done with it. The other new afterpiece, The Mayor of Queenborough (29 April; lost), appears to be derived from the subplot of Middleton's Hengist, Saxon King of Kent. Its first night was its last.

The success of the opera company is hard to judge in the absence of any figures. It gave 49 performances (a very high total), including 13 each of its two new works, the pasticcio Almahide (10 January) and Mancini's Hydaspes as arranged by Pepusch (23 March). The extant opera repertory was very limited. The company also gave Camilla (5 times), Pyrrhus and Demetrius (10), and Thomyris (8). Nicolini was its great attraction, and the tensions between him and Swiney that led to appeals to the Lord Chamberlain and a lawsuit in May 1710 boded ill for the enterprise. The most important operatic development of the year was the abandonment of dual-language performance. Heidegger's preface to Almahide admits the peculiarity of this practice, grants the impossibility of castratos singing creditably in English, and draws the logical conclusion: English performers must sing in Italian.

Managers: Owen Swiney, Robert Wilks, Colley Cibber, Thomas Doggett.

DRURY LANE

Collier's company opened on 23 November and gave 120 performances of 42 mainpieces (three of them new) before they ceased operations on 6 June in the aftermath of the riot four days earlier. Two of the new mainpieces were by Aaron Hill and proved neither disasters nor successes. Elfrid (3 January) managed a total of five nights. Squire Brainless (27 April) survived just three. Charles Shadwell's The Fair Quaker of Deal (25 February), however, turned out to be a major prop to the company, running up a total of 13 nights. Twenty-seven performances of five afterpieces were offered on 26 nights (with one triple-bill), two of the pieces being new. Centlivre's A Bickerstaff's Burying (27 March) managed only four nights, but Aaron Hill's The Walking Statue (9 January) ran a total of twenty times and was picked up by the Greenwich company for summer performance as well.

Salaries for 22 orchestra members are supplied from a list evidently drawn up in 1711-12 and headed "The Gentlemen in the Musick room receivd two years ago per opera night" (Coke Papers, no. 108). We have assumed that the "Mr Bryan" in that list is a mangled representation of "Soyan." An undated orchestra roster preserved in the Harvard Theatre Collection may be concerned with this season and is printed in full with analysis in the Coke Papers, no. 77. The list names 21 musicians, many of whom were definitely employed this year. We have not included all of them in the company roster because the dating is tentative and other musicians definitely worked for the Haymarket Theatre this season. Those named are Clodio [Claudio Rogier], Corbet, Banister, Pepusch (first violins), Young Babel, Soyans, Roberts, Plank (second violins), Smith and Armstrong (tenors), Lully [Loeillet] and Latour (hautbois), Babel Senior, Pietro [Chaboud], and Cadet (Bassons), Saggione (double base), Bolognese [Tomaso Gabrielli] (harpischord), Haym, Paisible, and Francisco [Goodsens] (violoncelli), and Gronon [John Baptist Granom] (trumpet).

Mrs Bickerstaff shared a benefit on 12 April with an actress; her function in the company is unknown. Mr Mannington, otherwise unknown, shared a benefit with a dancer on 20 April; he may also have been a dancer. Mrs Hodgson received a benefit on 22 April, but was never advertised as a singer or actress. She is not known to have per-

CONCERT. This present Saturday... will be A Consort of Musick; consisting of several Celebrated Songs and Dialogues, compos'd by the late Mr Henry Purcell and other great English Masters, and Perform'd by Mr Lawrence, Mr Cook, and Mr Tenoe; the Symphonys by Mr Dean and Mr Manship: A Song by Mrs Reading [Redding], accompany'd with the Trumpet and all the other Instruments. A Solo on the Violin by Mr Dean. A Solo on the Flute A-la-main by Mr Denby [Humphrey Danby?]. With variety of full Musick. To begin exactly at 5 a Clock, by reason of the length of the Entertainments. Tickets to be had only in the Coffee-Room at the Wells, at Half a Crown each. (Daily Courant)

THE RECRUITING OFFICER [Farquhar]. Sergeant Kite—Pack; Justice Bal- lance—Keene; Capt. Plume—Powell; Capt. Brazen—Bickerstaffe; Worthy—Booth; Costar Pearmain—Norris; Tho. Apple-tree—Carnaby; Bullock—Leigh // Silvia—Mrs Moor; Melinda—Mrs Bradshaw; Rose—Mrs Bicknell. (Daily Courant) Performance advertised, but not given (see below).

COMMENT. This ad, like virtually all Drury Lane ads this season, is headed “By Her Majesty’s Company of Comedians” and concludes with the following statement: “This Play is sold by J. Knaphen at the Crown in St Paul’s Church-yard, and B. Lintott next Nando’s Coffee-House, Temple-Bar.” Both of these formulas are hereafter omitted from this calendar.

COMMENT. This performance did not take place. It was advertised on 3 and 5 September but was prevented by the order of the Lord Chamberlain. A letter dated only “Tuesday” from Sir John Stanley to Vice Chamberlain Coke probably refers to this occasion (rather than to the silencing of 7 June 1709): “Dear Vice. This serves only to inform you that I have taken all possible care to prevent their playing to day, & am going to town to follow ye blow, of which you shall have a further account to night. I receivd to day a letter from my Lord Chamberlain with ye inclosd to you whereby I find him resolv’d to hold it out to ye last. I am Dear Vice Yours most con- stantly J. Stanley” (Coke Papers, no. 76).

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Prithee, what’s the reason the Players in Drury-Lane disappointed the Town last Tuesday-Night, and made several Ladies as well as my self dress and undress again before Bed-time[?]. . . . The Lord Chamberlain did not think fit to give them Liberty of Acting without owning his Authority. (Female Tat- ler, 9-12 September) For another report of the prohibition, see the account in the Post Boy quoted under 15 September.

Friday 9

DOCUMENT. On this day Owen Swiney signed two actresses to contracts at the Haymarket Theatre. (1) Elizabeth Willis and her daughter Mary Willis signed for three years at £40 and £20 respectively; each was to have a share in a benefit play; and Swiney agreed to pay Mrs Willis’ legal expenses if Rich sued her for breach of contract at Drury Lane. (2) Katherine Baker signed for three years at £40 per annum. (The agreements are preserved in LC 7/3, fols. 121-122 and 123.)

Friday 9

ADVERTISEMENT. Serjeant Kite [Richard Estcourt] gives Notice, that he in- tends to hang out his Flag no more this Season, till next Thanksgiving-Day, because the Duke of Marlborough has come upon him so often with re- peated Victories, that it is quite worn out, and he must be more sparing of it for the future, unless the Market Women in Covent-Garden, and Mob adjacent, will contribute to the buying a New one. Subscriptions are taken at the Theatre in the Hay-Market, and the Watch-House in Covent-Garden. (Female Tatler, 7-9 September)

COMMENT. The import of this jokey notice is not clear to us. Estcourt was increasingly unwell (suffering from stone and gout) and was in the process of moving from DL to Queens.

Monday 12

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Three scraps of theatrical gossip are reported, all of them peripherally related to the silencing of Drury Lane. (1) Mrs Everchat’s “Memory is so very good, that by running over the Names of those that compose the Audience there, she wou’d be of excellent Use in all probability to Mr Rich, (if ever he opens House again) to tell Noses for him in the Play-house [i.e., as numberer]. (2) “Mr Mill[s] is a charming Actor. I should be glad to know what House he is to belong to now they are divided. . . . [Answer:] He has turn’d himself over to the Queen’s-Theatre in the Hay-Market.” (3) “The Virtuous Imoinda [Jane Rogers] being now down in the Straw with her Fourth and last Child, without any Father for it, declares, she is resolved to observe an exact Neutrality in the Present War between the Two Play-Houses, till she gets up again. When that House which shews it likes her Whining best, may have her at its Service, provided such Articles be drawn up for her Continuance in that Station, as may be more binding on their sides that employ her, than those of Marriage would be on hers, had she any Husband to play fast and loose with.” (Female Tatler, 9-12 September)

Tuesday 13

DOCUMENT. On this day William Collier (one of the Drury Lane proprietors) sent a long letter to Barton Booth, the crucial parts of which are as follows:

> Yours I received and am as much surprized at the late order [of silencing] sent as you can bee, I thought that matters had been soe settled that you wou’d have met with no other Interruption from playing then to have one [actor] taken upp & then to bee bailed in order to try the validity of the Lord Chamberlains order against the Patents; I must doe Sir John Stanley that justice that he did not consent we should play, but if wee did it was agreed as is above & that was all we desired & that was the Lord Chamberlains own method . . . but it’s pretty plaine that his Lordships methods are not regarded and it is very difficult to knowe who to obey there is a secrett in this affair which time will bring to light, in the meane time, I cannot see we have anything to doe but to Petition the Queen . . . whatever Mr Rich Mr Goodall Mr Metcalfe & the rest of the Gentlemen concern’d shall think fitt to doe I will consent too for Sir Tho: Skipwith and myself. . . . *(Scribal copy in British Library Add. CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Sir John Percival to Elizabeth Stockwell, 20 September: We should have languished for want of diversion but for Othello, which drew all the stragglers in town together, and our number was greater than I imagined. . . . Meanwhile I declare that they who cannot be moved at Othello’s story so artfully worked up by Shakespeare, and justly played by Betterton, are capable of marrying again before their husbands are cold, of trampling on a lover when dying at their feet, and are fit to converse with tigers only. (Egmont MS, II, 240)

REPORT. “The Lord Mayor of York has put a stop to the Acting of Plays . . . and has turned the Play-House into an House for the Woollen Manufactures.” “The Justices from the County of Middlesex” have suppressed the theatre in Hampstead. “These Disappointments to the Stage (together with what they met with on Tuesday, the 7th instant, in Drury-Lane, when the Players were just going to act, but were, by Order from their Superiors, stopped from farther Proceeding, so that they were, to their great Mortification, forced to dismiss their publick Auditors) it’s to be hoped will prove such a Discouragement to the publick Theatre, as entirely to put a stop to their future acting.” (Post Boy, 13-15 September)

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. There being a Prize Comedy this Winter, and Capt. Brazen [Colley Cibber] the chief Candidate, Mrs Crackenthorpe desires the Town to bestow the Bays, and Profit on him: Nothing but want of Assurance in her, robs him of being the Subject of half a dozen Papers; we shall only touch upon some few Particulars, to give the World a Sample of his shining Qualities; What Miracles has his Wit not perform’d! And now Harlequin, and Dame Ragonde’s Children are out of Fashion; his Sublime, Original, Tender, Flowing Composures shall Charm the Pit, and Ravish the Galleries, Oedipus and Aurengzebe must give way to his Immortal Xerxes, and the Double Dealer; to his judicious sprightly unborrow’d Double Gallant. Nay that devouring Monster, Opera, so formidable to the Theatre, sickens at the sight of him, and through his means is likely to be brought to Poverty, and Bread and Butter; I lay aside Ben and Shakespear, when I but think of his Elaborate Piece, vulgarly call’d, Millers Thumbs; what will future Ages say of this Terence, and Euripides, this Janus of Dramatick Poetry; Why, that Aristotle only cou’d give Rules, and he write to ‘em, but as for Love’s Last Shift, Careless Husband, &c. he declares ‘em to be Spurious, and not of his own Composing, wonders People can’t see the difference between the Style and Fable, and thinks they may as well ascribe Hudibras and Bunion to the same Author. CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Had you been to Night at the Play-house, you had seen the Force of Action in Perfection: Your admir’d Mr Betterton behav’d himself so well, that, tho’ now about Seventy, he acted Youth; and by the prevalent Power of proper Manner, Gesture and Voice, appear’d through the whole Drama a young Man of great Expectation, Vivacity and enterprize. The Soliloquy, where he began the celebrated Sentence of, To be, or not to be; the Expostulation where he explains with his Mother in his Closet, the noble Ardor after seeing his Father’s Ghost, and his generous Distress for the Death of Ophelia; are each of them Circumstances which dwell strongly upon the Minds of the Audience, and would certainly affect their Behaviour on any parallel Occasions in their own Lives. . . . ca. early October

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. A long and irritable complaint was addressed to the Tatler at about this time, but not published there: . . . I was really surpriz’d to find the Censor of the Age falling yet lower, and praising the Players of the age, whom no Body else will praise, except Settle, in hopes, by their Favour, of exerting one of his admirable Qualities of Taylor, or Poet. . . . That he [Cibber?] is now one, nay perhaps by his Address the chief of the Managers of the Stage, is a scandalous Truth, and that is the Reason the town is furnish’d with such wretched Plays; Men of Parts and Learning will not submit their Writings to such a Judge. . . . There you shall find C[ibber] at the Head of the Ministry, and growing rich by the Plunder of the Underlings; while Ben Johnson, the best Comedian in the Nation, is an humble dependant, and content with a bare Salary: And there is honest Will Pierre [Peer], who has stood the shock of so many turns of State, so many Revolutions, and Transmigrations, without advancing beyond a Property-Man. Perhaps it may be the Providence of his good Genius, which has preserv’d him in that humble Station below Envy and above Contempt, equal to his unambitious Hopes; while Mr Bright, being in a high Post, has been subject to the evil Fortunes of all great States, is fall’n into Banishment, and stroles about for a Living; and Mr Downs [John Downes], who had been prime Minister to so many Buskin’d Monarchs, is thrown aside into a Pension, which, like those at Court, are not long well paid. . . . The Town is injur’d in their Diversion, the best Plays are supress’d, the worst expos’d to Sibilation, just as the Caprice or Interest engages this Judge and Manager. He had lately by him, as he told a Friend of mine, twenty Plays . . . [The author says that rolling dice to pick new scripts would be an improvement] for by it the Author had a Chance of Success, and a Certainty of no Abuse; it wou’d dispatch a great deal of business in a little time, for a Man without reading the Play wou’d soon decide the Author’s Fate, without having his Play garbled, and his Scenes transfer’d to some Scription (to use an elegant Word of Mr D’Urfey’s) . . . of the Player. By this Means a valuable Jewel, lately brought to them by a Friend of mine, might have had a Chance of obliging the Town with a noble Diversion. I mean, a Play written by Beaumont and Fletcher, and the immortal Shakespear, in the Maturity of his Judgment, a few Years before he dy’d. A piece so excellent, that a Gentleman, who is allow’d a Master of the Stage, tells me, that after reading it seven times, it pleas’d and transported him, and that it is far beyond any of the Collegue Poets, and inferior to few of the other Poets which are in Print. There is infallible Proof that the Copy is genuine; yet this Rarity, this noble Piece of Antiquity, cannot make its way to the Stage, because a Person that is concern’d in it, is a Person, who of all Persons Mr C[ibber] does not approve . . . Charles Dickson. (Printed in The Post-Man Robb’d of his Mail, [ed. Charles Gildon] (London: Bettesworth and Rivington, 1719), pp. 264-268)

COMMENT: The play on which Shakespeare is said to have collaborated was presumably a manuscript of Cardenio, adapted and staged by Lewis Theobald in December 1727 as Double Falsehood.

Contemporary Comment. In response to a suggestion that she write a comedy, the authoress of The Female Tatler comments at length on the difficulties faced by women playwrights: . . . no woman ever yet turn’d Poetess, but lost her Reputation by appearing at Rehearsals . . . The Treatment Authors meet with from the Play’rs, is too gross for a Woman to bear, since at the getting up of so successful a Comedy as the Busy Body, Sir Harry Wild-Air [Wilks] in great dudgeon flung his Part into the Pitt for damn’d Stuff, before the Lady’s Face that wrote it: Upon the whole, my Lady Sneak propos’d, that I shou’d not appear in the Matter, but give the enrag’d Sir Harry the whole Profits of the Play, and then let it have neither Plot, Wit, Sense, Turn or Humour, he’d bully Capt. Brazen [Cibber] into a good Opinion of it; Fourscore Pounds shou’d be laid out in Cloaths, and she’d warrant a prodigious Third Night: But . . . I could not see the Reason why Sir Harry Wild-Air should reap the Benefit of my Studies . . . At last it was agreed, I shou’d apply my self to Serjeant Kite [Estcourt] who is a Person of prodigious Integrity, values Money no more than Dirt, and we proceeded to think of Characters; Sir Harry and his Associate [John Mills?] are to be two walking Gentlemen; and as they are both Men of Wit and Judgment, I shall leave ’em to speak what they think proper; but if they only move on and off, they are good Figures, always well dress’d, and more to be admir’d than Mrs Salmon’s Wax-Work: Pinket [Pinkethman] is only to laugh, his Face is Jest enough to make the Play go Six Nights, and My Heer Van Grin was the best thought for him in the World; the famous Jubilee Dicky [Norris] is to represent the Figure of No-body, and Tall-boy [William Bullock], who always shall be a Boy, shall have just such another Part wrote for him; Captain Brazen [Cibber], who is so fond of being in Women’s Cloaths, shall personate a finish’d Coquet, one that Jilts the Men, rattles with the Women, always upon the seeming Trifles, tho’ seriously grounded up on Self-Interest: Imoinda [Jane Rogers] is to be a disdainful Beauty, have a world of Admirers, and use ’em all like Dogs; Lady Betty Modish [Anne Oldfield], a Woman of Quality, and plays in her own Cloaths, and my Lady Bountiful [Mary Powell] to talk of Eating and Drinking, admires a boil’d and Egg Sause [sic], and takes a prodigious deal of Snuff. The Catastrophe of the Play is to be a Marriage and a Country Dance, and Serj. Kite [Estcourt], by way of Epilogue, to sing a Ballad of his own making; the Act tunes must be Melancholy and Moving, to keep People from laughing too much, as they play Jiggs in Tragedies to keep People from greiving too much, and if their Comedy don’t gain the Prize, the Subscribers to it must expect their Characters in this Paper . . . CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. A complaint in Tatler 89 may pertain to this performance in particular: I was very pleas’d this Evening, to hear a Gentleman express a very becoming Indignation against a Practice which I may myself have been very much offended at. There is nothing (said he) more ridiculous, than for an Actor to insert Words of his own in the Part he is to act, so that it is impossible to see the Poet for the Player: You’ll have Pinkethman and Bullock helping out Beaumont and Fletcher. (Tatler, 3 November)

November 1709

ca. early Nov.

COMMENT. Sometime during October or early November 1709 Owen Swiney sent Vice Chamberlain Coke a protest against Collier’s being allowed to set up a competing company at Drury Lane, some supporting documentation, and a draft of an order he wanted issued by the Lord Chamberlain’s office.

(a) Swiney to Coke: I have inclosed sent your Honour an abstract of the Articles of Partnership with Mr Wilks, Mr Dogget & Mr Cibber which are founded upon my Lord Chamberlain’s order to me to Receive all her Majesty’s sworn Comedians. If that order is not observ’d I must Endeavour to preserve my self from Ruin & have recourse to such Methods as shall be advised by the ablest Lawyers in England for my security. I was with Mr Vanbrugh this Morning who surprized me very much in telling me he found a great many difficulty’s to obtain an order to me for the security of those Actors and other performers both in Opera’s and comedy’s which are now Actually Engag’d to me. I must therefore for my own sake resolve not to run my self into any further Engagements for scenes cloaths &c nor perform Opera’s any more till I receive such an order from my Lord. When I do if there is any Prospect left me of getting any thing by the Play-house I will go on if there is not I hope it will be a justification of me if I Refuse. (Holograph in the Harvard Theatre Collection. Printed in full in the Coke Papers, no. 78.)

(b) Summary of Swiney’s agreement with Wilks, Doggett, and Cibber: Mr Swiny having a Lease of the Play-house in the Hay-Market with an assignment of the Queen’s Licence for Acting Plays &c from Mr Vanbrugh, upon My Lord Chamberlain’s late order to him, to Receive all her Majesty’s Sworn Comedians did Agree to Receive in as Partners with him Mr Wilks, Mr Dogget & Mr Cibber upon the following terms. After all charges & Expences in carrying on the businesse of the Playhouse being paid Mr Swiny is to Receive £300 per annum Mr Wilks £250 per annum with a benefit Play clear of all charges, Mr Dogget & Mr Cibber £200 per annum each with a benefit day clear of all charges. And then the clear profits are to be divided into two equal parts, one part to be paid to Mr Swiny and the other Part to the three sharing Actors, And in case of loss, one half is to be paid by Mr Swiny and the other half by the sharing Actors. All affairs relating to the house to be carried on by the Majority of the four sharers. (Holograph MS in a private collection. Printed in the Coke Papers, no. 79.)

(c) Swiney’s proposal for sharers’ terms and performers’ salaries at the Haymarket: I have been thinking of a Thousand ways to make this matter as easy to every body as it can be. For as it stands now it will be impossible for me to go on. . . . I am willing to undertake the business with four Actors [Wilks, Cibber, Doggett, and Anne Oldfield sharing half the profits] . . . besides which each of the four sharers shall have a Benefit play paying £40 Charges. . . . If this is thought reasonable I am ready to receive my Lords orders as your Honour proposd with a list of the performers in opera & Comedy, with the salaries of each Comedian and the Benefit Plays fix’d to each name. . . . (Printed in the Coke Papers, no. 80, from a nineteenth-century transcription.)

(d) Swiney’s draft order, submitted to the Lord Chamberlain. This manuscript, now in the Theatre Museum, is written in the form of an order by the Lord Chamberlain, but appears to be a draft submitted by Swiney in the hope that Kent would issue it. The complete MS is printed, with analysis, in the Coke Papers, no. 81, from a nineteenth-century transcription. Swiney’s proposed order contains three clauses, plus a list of personnel. First, all extant performers’ contracts are declared dissolved; each performer named in the appended list will receive the salary stated there. Second, Rich must deliver all contracts in his possession to the Lord Chamberlain’s office to be cancelled. Third, all performers named in the appended list are forbidden to appear with any other company “without a discharge first had in writing under the hand of the Manager of the Theatre in the Hay Market and approvd off by my Lord Chamberlain.”

The actors and their proposed per annum salaries are listed as follows:
Wilks (£200), Betterton (£100), Doggett (£150), Cibber (£150), Estcourt (£150), Mills (£100), Johnson (£100), Penkethman (£100), Bullock (£80), Thurmond (£60), Husband (£60), Bowen (£60), Boman (£40), Bullock Junior (£30), Cross (£30), Thurmond Junior (£25), Mrs Barry (£100), Mrs Oldfield (£100), Mrs Betterton (£25), Mrs Bicknell (£80), Mrs Cross (£80), Mrs Porter (£80), Mrs Saunders (£50), Mrs Wilks [i.e., Willis] (£30), Mrs Baker (£30), Mrs Mills (£20), Mrs Willis Junior (£20), Mrs Robins (£15), Mrs Granger (£15), Miss Younger (£10).

The following are to be allowed benefits before the end of April at £40 charges: Betterton, Wilks, Estcourt, Doggett, Cibber, Mrs Barry, Mrs Oldfield.

Singers and dancers (salaries not specified): Nicolini, Valentini, Leveridge, Laurence, Ramenden, Mrs Tofts, Mrs Margaritta [de l’Epine], Baroness [Joanna Maria Lindelheim], Mrs Lindsey, Monsieur Cherrier, Miss Santlow.

REPORT. On this day William Collier and his actors succeeded in seizing possession of Drury Lane. Accounts of the proceeding vary somewhat. (1) Affidavits by John Price, George Stockdale, and Christopher Rich cited in British Library Add. MS 20,726, fols. 29v-30r say that Collier “came with a Corporal & divers soldiers armed with swords & Musquett in a riotous & violent manner broke open the Doors of the said Theatre & turnd out Mr Rich’s servants who were then in the quiet possession of the same . . . & as Mr Rich sweares possessed himselfe of the Scenes, Cloaths, & other things belonging to the [said?] Mr Rich to a great vallue.” (2) The same source (fols. 31-32) quotes Collier as saying that “in November 1709 he had leave to employ the Players (who at that time were in a very low condition) & on or about the 22d day of the said month [of] November it being a day of publick rejoyceing he ordered a Bonefire to be made before the Playhouse Door and gave the Players money to Drink your Majesties health & the then Lord Chamberlains and to rejoice for the victory which was that day Commemorated, & that he came that Evening to the Playhouse & showed the Players Sir John Stanley’s Letter and told them they might act as soon as they pleased. . . . and the said Mr Collier further deposed that he had the consent of the major part of the Rentors or owners of the said Theatre to get into the said house and they all received the said rent . . . nor did he send for or know of the soldiers being there untill he saw them nor did he order them to bee there nor any for him.” (3) On the 22d Instant, a Night of publick rejoycing, the Enemies of Divito [Christopher Rich] made a Largess to the People of Faggots, Tubs, and other combustible Matter, which was erected into a Bonfire before the Palace [Drury Lane Theatre]. Plentiful Cans were at the same time distributed among the Dependences of that Principality; and the artful Rival of Divito [William Collier] observing them prepared for Enterprize, presented the lawful Owner of the neighbouring Edifice, and showed his Deputation under him. War immediately ensued upon the peaceful Empire of Wit and the Muses: The Goths and Vandals sacking Rome did not threaten a more barbarious Devastation of Arts and Sciences. But when they had forced their Entrance, the experienced Divito had detached all his Subjects, and evacuated all his Stores. The neighbouring Inhabitants report, That the Refuse of Divito’s Followers marched off the Night before disguised in Magnificence; Door-Keepers came out clad like Cardinals, and Scene-Drawers like Heathen Gods. Divito himself was wrapped up in one of his black Clouds, and left to the Enemy nothing but an empty Stage, full of Trap-Doors, known only to himself and his Adherents. (Tatler, 24-26 November) (4) A 16-page pamphlet titled The Playhouse Scuffle, or, Passive Obedience Kickt off the Stage (London: Bethel and Morphew, 1710) presents a jeering couplet account of the dispute between Rich and his actors and his loss of possession of Drury Lane. The poem was apparently not published until the following summer (Luttrell’s copy is dated 1 July), when it appeared with a title-page misleadingly implying that it concerned the actor-riot of 6 June at Drury Lane. See Document Register, no. 2093.

COMMENT: The Tatler confirms that Rich managed to empty Drury Lane of its theatrical stock before Collier’s forces broke in and seized the premises. Steele’s story of the seizure is prefaced by a jokey pseudo-allegorical account of the power struggle between Collier and Rich for possession of the theatre.

COMMENT: We have printed the title and cast as advertised, but there is good reason to believe that another play had to be hastily substituted. In testimony recorded in British Library Add. MS 20,726, fol. 31, William Collier is reported as saying that on 22 November “the Players themselves & some Soldiers got into the Playhouse, and the next day performed a Play but not the play that was given out for that they informed the said Mr Collier that Christopher Rich Esq (one of the Patentees) had carried away the cloaths & soe were forced to play in their own Cloaths till stage Cloaths could be got for them.” Aureng-Zebe needed costumes other than contemporary street dress. Probably the company mounted a comedy in its place.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. [Following praise of Hart and Mohun, Steele comments as follows.] It is not the Business of a good Play to make every Man an Hero; but it certainly gives him a livelier Sense of Virtue and Merit than he had when he entered the Theatre. This rational Pleasure . . . has for many Years been very little tasted: But I am glad to find, that the true Spirit of it is reviving against amongst us, by a due Regard to what is presented, and by supporting only one Playhouse. It has been within the Observation of the youngest amongst us, That while there were Two Houses, they did not outvie each other by such Representations as tended to the Instruction and Ornament of Life, but by introducing mimical Dances, and fulsom Buffoonries. For when an excellent Tragedy was to be acted in one House, the Ladder-Dancer carried the whole Town to the other: And indeed such an Evil as this, must be the natural Consequence of Two Theatres, as certainly as that there are more who can see than can think. Every one is sensible of the Danger of the Fellow on the Ladder, and can see his Activity in coming down safe; but very few are Judges of the Distress of an Hero in a Play, or of his Manner of Behaviour in those Circumstances. Thus, to please the People, Two Houses must entertain them with what they can understand, and not with Things which are designed to improve their Understanding: And the readiest Way to gain good Audiences, must be to offer such Things as are most relished by the Crowd; that is to say, immodest Action, empty Show, or impertinent Activity. In short, Two Houses cannot hope to subsist, but by Means which are contradictory to the very Institution of a Theatre in a well-govern'd Kingdom. (Tatler, 24-26 November)

COMMENT. Steele's essay in favor of a single-company monopoly was evidently written as a plea against the Lord Chamberlain's licensing of Drury Lane—but it appeared in print only after Drury Lane had actually reopened under William Collier (see 23 November).

COMMENT. The Biographical Dictionary, X, 232, reports speculation in a British Library manuscript that the actor who had never appeared before at Drury Lane was...
Josias Miller—who was to become a famous Teague. The identification is highly plausible.

THE RECRUITING OFFICER [Farquhar]. Cast not advertised (but see 22 September). (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. With several surprising performances on the Stage by the famous Mr Higgins, lately arriv’d from Holland; who turns himself into such variety of Amazing Shapes and Figures, that the particulars wou’d be incredible to all Persons who have not seen him.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. I found the Audience hushed in a very deep Attention, and did not question but some noble Tragedy was just then in its Crisis, or that an Incident was to be unravelled which would determine the Fate of an Hero. While I was in this Suspence, expecting every Moment to see my old Friend Mr Betterton appear in all the Majesty of Distress, to my unspeakable Amazement, there came up a Monster with a Face between his Feet; and as I was looking on, he raised himself on one Leg in such a perpendicular Posture, that the other grew in a direct Line above his Head. It afterwards twisted it self into the Motions and Wrathings of several different Animals, and after great Variety of Shapes and Transformations, went off the Stage in the Figure of an human creature. The Admiration, the Applause, the Satisfaction, of the Audience, during this strange Entertainment, is not to be expressed. I was very much out of Countenance for my dear Countrymen, and looked about with some Apprehension for Fear any Foreigner should be present. Is it possible (thought I) that human Nature can rejoice in its Disgrace, and take Pleasure in seeing its own Figure turned to Ridicule, and distorted into Forms that raise Horror and Aversion? ‡ THE MAN'S BEWITCH'D; or, The Devil to do about her [Susanna Centlivre]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. The Man's bewitch'd; or, The Devil to do about Her. A Comedy As it is Acted at the New-Theatre in the Hay-Market; by her Majesty's Servants. By Susanna Cent-Livre (London: Bernard Lintott, n.d. [1709]). Publication “This Day” was advertised in the Daily Courant on 22 December. Copy used: Readex. Drammatis Personae: Sir Jeffry Constant — Bowman; Captain Constant — Mills; Lovely — Husband; Faithful — Wilks; Sir David Watchum — Johnson; Trusty — Estcourt; Num — Dogget; Slouch — Cross; Clinch — Pinkeman; Roger — Bullock; Manager — Cibber; Coachman — Harris // Belinda — Mrs Oldfield; Laura — Mrs Cross; Maria — Mrs Porter; Dorothy — Mrs Saunders; Lucy — Mrs Bicknell. Prologue By a Gentleman. Spoken by Mr Wilks. Epilogue Spoken by Mrs Oldfield. Written by Mr Cibber.

Preface: I Shou'd not have troubled my Courteous Reader with a Preface, had I not lain under the Necessity of Clearing my self of what some People have been pleas’d to charge me with, viz. of being the Author of a Paper call’d The Female Tatler, consequently of a Paragraph in that of the 14th Instant, relating to this Comedy; tho’ I think no reasonable Person will believe I could be guilty of so much Folly. [See 14 December.] Tho’ Vanity is said to be the darling Vice of Womankind, yet nothing but an Idiot wou'd express themselves so openly; and I hope the World won’t think me guilty of Printing, what I must blush to Read, nor imagine it Wrote even by any Friend of mine, for two Reasons; First, the Grossness of the Flattery. Secondly, the Injury it must of course do me, in the Run of my Play, by putting those People out of Humour, whose Action was to give Life to the Piece [i.e., the actors]. I suppose these Reasons are sufficient to convince the Judicious part, that I was no ways concerned in those Reflections, but own I was treated with all the seeming Civility in the World, till the second Night of my Comedy. I willingly submitted to Mr Cibber’s Superiour Judgment in shortning the Scene of the Ghost in the last Act, and believed him perfectly in the right, because too much Repetition is tiresome. Indeed when Mr Estcourt slic’d most of it out, I cou’d not help interposing my Desires to the contrary, which the rest readily comply’d with; and I had the Satisfaction to see I was not deceiv’d in my Opinion, of its pleasing. This Passage I happen’d to mention among my Acquaintance; for 'tis Natural to have a kind of a Tender for our own Productions, but especially if they have the good fortune to divert others. Now, if from this the Author of the Tattler gather'd his Account, I am guilty of speaking, but not designedly; for who they are that Write that Paper, or how Distinguish'd, I am perfectly ignorant, and declare I never was concern'd, either in Writing, or Publishing, any of the Tattlers.

I never had the Vanity to think, much less to publish, that any thing I am capable of doing, cou'd support the Stage, tho' I have had the good Fortune to please, or to find the Town willing to be pleas'd; tho' at present it seems a certain Author [i.e., Colley Cibber?] has enter'd a Caveat against all Plays running to a sixth Night, but his own. Tho' an Opera interfer'd with this Comedy, yet it brought above Forty Pounds the second Night, which shew'd it had some Merit; for I have known many a Play kept up, that fail'd of half that Money the second Night. Now by the Rules of the House, it ought to have been play'd on: But who can secure the Life of a Play, when that of a Man is often Sacrific'd to the Malice of Parties? This Play met with a kind Reception in general, and notwithstanding the Disadvantages it had to struggle with, by raising the Prices the first Day, and the Nearness of Christmas, it would have made its way to a sixth Night, if it had had fair Play. Mistake me not, I do not mean from the Representation; for I must do the Players Reason: Had I search'd all the Theatres in the World, I cou'd not have selected a better Company, nor had more Justice done me in the Action, tho' they have not dealt honourably by me in my Bargain, for they ought not to have stop'd the run, upon any Pique whatever. 'Tis small Encouragement to Write for the Stage, when the Actors, according to the Caprice of their Humours, maugre the Taste of the Town, have power to sink the Reputation of a Play; for if they resolve not to Act it, the Town can't support it.

Well, if there is any Merit in suffering wongfully, I shall find my Account in't one time or other; in the mean while I intreat the Female Tattler to be Witty no more at my Expence. I desire I may not be rank'd in the Number of those that support the Stage, since the Stage is become a Noun Substantive, and resolves to shew it is able to stand by itself.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. This Evening the Ingenious Mrs Centlivre did me the favour of a Visit. . . . Her Business then was chiefly to have my Opinion of her new Comedy, for that she spy’d me out the first Night in the Box. . . . The whole Company Congratulated her on the Success of her Performance, and were rejoyce’d to see the inimitable Mrs Bhen so nearly reviv’d in Mrs Centlivre; some there . . . thought it a Genteel, Easy and Diverting Comedy: That it had a better Plot, and as many Turns in it as her Celebrated Buisy-Body; and thro’ the two first Acts were not so roar’d at as the rest, yet they were well Wrought Scenes, tending to Business: The Squire [Doggett as Num] out did himself throughout the whole Action; nor is Mrs Saunders, tho’ rank’d below Belinda [Mrs Oldfield], to be less applauded for her Natural Trembling and Faultering in her Speech, when she apprehended Sir Jeffery to be a Ghost. The Ladies highly commended the Author, as what cou’d they expect less from one of their own Sex, for the Care she had taken not to Offend the nicest Ear, with the least Double Entendre, and press’d me to acquaint the Town, that ev’n Dissenters may be seen at this Play [with an appeal for support for the author’s “Third and Sixth Night”]. . . . The Society had the Curiosity of knowing the Nature of introducing a Play into the House; Mrs Centlivre told ’em, that ’twas much easier to Write a Play than to get it Represented; that their Factions and Divisions were so great, they seldom continued in the same mind two Hours together; that they treated her, (tho a Woman) in the Masculine Gender; and as they do all Authors with Wrangling and Confusion. . . . That to show their Judgment in Plays, they had actually cut out the Scene in the Fifth Act, between the Countryman and the Ghost, which the Audience receiv’d with that wonderful Applause; and ’twas with very great strugling the Author prevail’d to have it in again; one made Faces at his Part, another was Witty upon her’s: But as the whole was very well perform’d at last, she has Condescension to pass over the Affronts of a Set of People, who have it not in their Natures to be grateful to their Supporters. c. mid December

REPORT. Martin Powell’s puppet theatre in St Martin’s Lane was apparently open by this time, according to bemused commentary in the Tatler in which Steele makes merry with a report that the women in the opera audience have deserted Nicolini in favor of Punchinello (see commentary quoted in connection with the opera performance of 30 December). In a ponderously jokey way Steele reminds his readers of previous reports about Powell at Bath, and concludes with a promise to give his work the serious critical consideration it deserves: . . . I shall therefore . . . consider, whether the several Parts are written up to that character which Mr Powell piques himself upon, of an able and judicious Dramatist. I have for this Purpose provided my self with the works of above Twenty French Criticks, and shall examine, (by the Rules which they have laid down upon the Art of the Stage) whether the Unity of time, Place and Action, be rightly observed in any one of this celebrated Author’s Productions; as also, whether in the Parts of his several Actors, and that of Punch in Particular, there is not sometimes an Impropriety of Sentiments, and an Impurity of Diction. (Tatler, 3 January)

COMMENT. No newspaper ads are known for Powell’s theatre this season, but a playbill survives for 1 May. Powell may have performed as often as six days a week throughout much of this season.

DOCUMENT. On this day Lord Chamberlain Kent issued a long order “To Mr Swiny & the rest of the Managers of her Majesty’s Theatre in ye Hay Market,” noting that “The like Order to ye Theatre in Drury Lane was sign’d the same day.” He gave directions as follows. (1) “An exact List sign’d by you of all Comedians and also of all the Vocal and Instrumentall Musick & Dancers who are at present Entertain’d” is to be sent to the Lord Chamberlain’s office, “mentioning particularly the Terms of their respective Agreements.” (2) “A List of such of ye Comedians as are not yet sworn” [as servants to the Queen] must be submitted. (3) “That hereafter no Player Singer Dancer or Musitian be entertain’d . . . nor any New Agreement made with them without my Approbation first had and such Agreement entred in my Office.” (4) “That no Bonds be given for the performance of any bargains or Agreements but that all disputes relating thereto be submitted and finally determined by the Lord Chamberlain.” Existing bonds are to be cancelled save for those concerned with Swiney’s management agreement with Wilks, Cibber, and Doggett. (5) From 1 January 1710 “no New Representations” are to “be brought upon the stage which are not Necessary to the better performance of Comedy or Opera, such as Ladder Dancing, Antick postures &ca without my leave and Approbation first had.” (6) The managers must “forthwith prepare and transmit to me an exact list of all such Comedyes which you propose to Act the next Year that were Licenc’d before her Majestys Accession to the Crown in Order to their being More carefully revis’d and new licenc’d by the Master of the Revells and that from and after Lady Day Next [25 March 1710] you shall not suffer or permitt any such Play to be Acted till it has received new licence.” (7) “And you are hereby strictly requir’d not to allow any thing to be Acted upon the Stage that has been struck out by the Master of the Revells nor any new Prologues or Epilogues to be Spoke without his Licence upon the pain of being silenc’d for such Neglect. (8) That you take strick[t] care to Observe her Majestys Orders in not permitting any persons to stand upon the Stage nor any Vizard Masks to be worn in the House.” (LC 5/154, fols. 256v-257)

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. I went on Friday last to the Opera, and was surprised to find a thin House at so noble an Entertainment, till I heard that the Tumbler [Higgins] was not to make his Appearance that Night. For my own Part, I was fully satisfied with the Sight of an Actor, who, by the Grace and Propriety of his Action and Gesture, does Honour to an human Figure, as much as the other vilifies and degrades it. Every one will easily imagine I mean Signior Nicolini, who sets off the character he bears in an Opera by his Action, as much as he does the words of it by his voice. Every Limb, and every finger, contributes to the Part he acts, insomuch that a deaf Man might go along with him in the Sense of it. There is scarce a beautiful Posture in an old Statue which he does not plant himself in, as the different circumstances of the Story give Occasion for it. He performs the most ordinary Action in a Manner suitable to the Greatness of his Character, and shows the Prince even in the giving of a Letter or the dispatching of a Message. Our best Actors are somewhat at a Loss to support themselves with proper Gesture, as they move from any considerable distance to the Front of the Stage; but I have seen the Person of whom I am now speaking, enter alone at the remotest Part of it, and advance from it with such Greatness of Air and Mien, as seemed to fill the Stage, and at the same time commanded the Attention of the Audience with the Majesty of his Appearance. But notwithstanding the Dignity and Elegance of this Entertainment, I find for some Nights past, that Punchinello [Powell’s puppet theatre] has robbed this Gentleman of the greater Part of his Female Spectators. FIRST EDITION. Elfrid or, the Fair Inconstant. A Tragedy: As it is Acted at the Theatre Royal, by her Majesty's Servants. To which is Added the Walking Statue: or, the Devil in the Wine-Cellar. A Farce. Written by Mr Hill (London: Bernard Lintott and Egbert Sanger, n.d. [1710]). Publication "This Day" was advertised in the Daily Courant of 27 January. Copy used: Readex. Personæ Dramatis: King—Powel; Athelwold—Mr Booth; Orldgar—Keen; Egbert—Cory; Servant—Burkehead // Elfrid—Mrs Bradshaw; Ordelia—Mrs Knight. Prologue Spoke by Mr Keen. Epilogue Spoke by Miss Santlow, running out upon the Stage, as if she had been forcibly withheld. The First Epilogue she ever spoke.

Preface: I Should not have troubled the Reader with a Preface . . . but in Defence of my little Judgment . . . [which] stands now accus'd of having led me to prefer the Actors of the Old House [Drury Lane], when (say my Accusers) the Universal Voice of the town has voted for the New One [the Queen's Theatre]. That Novelty is taking, be the Puppet-Shew a Witness [a reference to Martin Powell’s theatre]; but, that it has led the Town to decide the Difference between the two Houses, in Favour of the New, is what I can by no means consent to. The Judicious Nobleman, who, by vertue of the Office he so deservedly holds, presides over Both the Houses, has given a very publick Proof, that no Partiality of Inclination shall have Power to make him prefer either: And, since they are left entirely to their Merit, I appeal to all the Knowing, and unprejudic'd Part of Mankind, whether Her Majesty's Company of Tragædians, in Drury-Lane, have not at least an equal Claim to Encouragement, with Her Majesty's Company of Comedians, in the Hay-market.

If Modesty, Sincerity, and Industrious Application, are motives sufficient to engage an Author in the Interest of a Company, I have Reason on my side, in the Choice I made of Those in Drury-Lane. . . . One Thing more I must add, and that is, When the Actors in Drury-Lane had labour'd long under such unsurmountable Difficulties, that my Lord Chamberlain himself, who had most Reason to prolong his Resentment, compassionated their Sufferings, and generously restor'd them to the Liberty he had Power to restrain, even then the Town dealt most hardly with 'em; and while their Misfortune, and Oppression, depriv'd 'em of the very Habits they were us'd to act in, made that their Crime, which was indeed their Misery. . . . However, the Clouds which eclips'd their Industry, are now blown over, and they begin to find the Encouragement due to their Merit. . . .

I take this publick Opportunity to return my Thanks to that generous Part of the Town, who remember'd, 'twas a Third Night, and made so favourable an Appearance in my Interest, and I can't omit doing Justice to the ingenious Author of the Tender Husband [Steele], who endeavour'd as much as possible to persuade the Manager of the New House to put off that Play, and the Interest which was made for it, to another Night. Mr Steel is a Gentleman, for whom I profess so entire an Esteem, that I cou'd not have been uneasie, if any Thing, which was design'd to do him Honour, had been never so much to my own Disadvantage.

The Tragedy succeeded as well, as I cou'd have expected, especially when I consider ‘tis an Entertainment out of Tast. I have not met with Friends enough to particularize the Errors, I have committed; therefore can only say, in general, that I endeavour’d to preserve the Unities to a greater Nicety, than, perhaps, an English Audience may think necessary. The Action is one, and entire; the Scene confin’d to the House, and Garden; and the time no more than the Play requires in its Representation.

If Regularity is a Fault, ‘tis at least a very pardonable one: and tho’ the Example of all the ancient Writers, and the Authority of their commentators, may form a Plea sufficient to Justifie my Imitation; yet, I must confess, not Aristotle himself cou’d more prevail upon my little share of Reason, than the Opinion of a modern Prodigy . . . Torquato Tasso . . . .

COMMENT. The play is flatteringly dedicated to Lord Chamberlain Kent, to whom Hill implausibly credits the reformation of the stage.

‡ ALMAHIDE [pasticcio arranged by Heidegger from music by Giovanni Bononcini and Attilio Ariosti]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. Almahide (London: Tonson, 1710). Dual-language edition. Copy used: BL 1477.b.33. Dramatis Personæ: Almanzor—Signor Valentino Urbani; Almiro—Sig. Caval. Nicolin Grimaldi; Gemir—Sig. Cassani; Rusteno—Mr Lawrence; Floro—Mr Dogget // Almahide—Sig. Margarita de l'Epine; Celinda—Sig. Isabella Girardau; Blesa—Mrs Lindsey; [Eliza—Mrs Cross?]. Dedication signed by Heidegger and dated 9 January.

To the Reader: Several People of Quality, and Encouragers of the Opera's, having found fault with the Absurdity of those Scenes, where the Answers are made in English, to those that sing in Italian, and in Italian to those that recite in English; and it being impossible to have the whole Opera perform'd in English, because the chief Actors would not be able to perform their parts in our Language: I hope I shall be pardoned, if I have made all the Parts in Italian. 'Tis a Language with more Vowels, softer, and more adapted to Musick than any other; besides, for the conveniency of those who do not understand it, I have translated the Opera litterally on the other side of the book. . . .

Songs in the new Opera, Call'd Almahide was published by Walsh, Randall, and Hare and advertised in the Tatler on 16 February 1710. It comprises overture and 43 songs. See Hunter, nos. 64, 65, and 68.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. By Subscription. . . . A new Opera. . . . The Boxes to be open'd to the Pit, and no Person to be admitted but by the Subscribers Tickets, which will be deliver'd this Morning, at Mr White's Chocolate-house in St James's-street.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Two days before the performance an exchange of letters was printed in the Tatler. [Doggett to Bickerstaff:] On Monday next will be acted for my Benefit, the Comedy of Love for Love: If you will do me the Honour to appear there, I will publish on the Bills, That it is to be performed at the Request of Isaac Bickerstaff Esq; and question not but it will bring me as great an Audience, as ever was at the House since the Morocco Ambassador was there. . . . Thomas Doggett. Being naturally an Encourager of Wit, as well as bound to it in the Quality of Censor, I returned the following Answer; Mr Dogget, I am very well pleased with the Choice you have made of so excellent a Play, and have always looked upon you as the best of Comedians; I shall therefore come in between the First and Second Act, and remain in the Right Hand Box over the Pit till the End of the Fourth, provided you take Care that every Thing be rightly prepared for my Reception. (Tatler, 12-14 January) According to the Bond edition of The Tatler, “A person dressed for Isaac Bickerstaff did appear at the playhouse on this occasion.” In no. 122 Steele commented on “Bickerstaff’s” reception, assured his readers that he had taken “particular Care . . . to observe the Conduct of the Drama, and give no Offence by my own Behaviour,” and proceeded “to lay down the proper duties of an Audience” at some length.

ca. mid January

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. A letter written by “Philo Patriæ” for the Tatler but not published takes up a number of issues concerning drama and opera: . . . you ought to be depos’d from your Censorship when once you descended from the Dignity of it by beating the drum to the Benefit of a Comedian [Doggett; quoted under 16 January], who tho meritorious in his Way is far from being the best Commedian in England, since Ben: Johnson excells him in all Parts where Nature is to be expressed in her proper Gestures: Dogget is confind, & the same in all Parts, but Ben: is various yet just in All. . . . What you have been pleas’d to say of Operas & their Support Grimaldi [Nicolini] brings in Question your Integrity . . . you declaim in Praise of Opera’s which corrupt the Minds of the Nobility with Luxury. . . . [The author berates Bickerstaff for having] set up Sound against Sense; Eunuchs against Men; and Italians (the very Dreggs of Mankind) against Englishmen . . . for I will be bound to prove, that there is scarce an Actor even now on the Stage, who makes but any tolerable Figure, but who excells Grimaldi in all the true Graces of action. Nay it is demonstrable that there can be no such thing as true acting in an Opera; since the Singer is obligd to stop in the Midst of a passion. . . . Grimaldi has not above four Motions, which he passes through & then begins again. I am not against Music . . . But alas! all the Italian Operas, which we have had here consist only of light Airs that tickle the Ear, but never once reach the Heart or touch the Soul. . . . (Bond, New Letters, pp. 90-95)

ca. late January?

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. An anonymous letter sent to the Tatler about this time (but not published) concerns the state of opera in London: . . . a Friend of Mine . . . has a very good Opera after the old Way [i.e., a semi-opera], that is a perfect Tragedy (but with a happy Event) intermixt with Music absolutely Necessary for the carrying on of the Plot. . . . But then [in tragedy and English opera] was only sung what was proper, But in [Italian] Operas we sing fighting, weeping, dying bid them shut the door, read & write Letters in Crotchets & Quavers, & a thousand other absurdities which shock the understanding more than the light Italian airs can please the Ear, for they never penetrate so far as the Heart. . . . You must needs know that such a Creature as Count Hidacre [Heidegger] has been able to get 2 or 3000 guineas an Opera subscribd; now your very advertising a Subscription for an Opera, & naming the place where the Subscriptions shall be taken in will more than double the Product of his personal Importunity. . . . As for setting the Musical part, I do pretend to know so much that Daniel Purcel, & Clayton well instructed, & their Names conceal’d will do the Business much better, than any Foraigner. . . . THE SILENT WOMAN (Written by the famous Ben Johnson). Cast not advertised (but see 12 January).
(Daily Courant)

COMMENT: Whether Estcourt took his usual role (Captain Otter) is not clear. A preliminary puff in the Tatler of 4-7 February says: Mr Eastcourt ... was formerly my Apothecary, and being at present disabled by the Gout and Stone [i.e., Estcourt is disabled?], I must recommend him to the Publick on Thursday next, that admirable Play of Ben. Johnson's, call'd The Silent Woman, being appointed to be acted for his Benefit. It would be indecent for me to appear Twice in a Season at these Ludicrous Diversions [cf. 16 January]; but as I always give my Man and my Maid one Day [at the theatre] in the Year, I shall allow them this, and am promised by Mr Eastcourt, my ingenious Apothecary, that they shall have a Place kept for them in the first Row of the Middle Gallery. [No other record of such an impersonation has come to light.]

Thursday 16

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Denouncing cock-fighting, bear-baiting, and prize-fighting, Steele comments on similarly brutal tastes in drama: Rapin observes, that the English theatre very much delights in Bloodshed... I must own, there is something very horrid in the publick Executions of an English Tragedy. Stabbing and Poisoning, which are performed behind the Scenes in other Nations, must be done openly among us, to gratify the Audience. When poor Sandford was upon the Stage, I have seen him groaning upon a Wheel [in Venice Preserv'd], stuck with Daggers [in Hopkins' Boadicea?], impaled alive [in The Villain], calling his Executioners, with a dying Voice, Cruel Dogs and Villains! And all this to please his judicious Spectators, who were wonderfully delighted with seeing a Man in torment so well acted. The Truth of it is, the Politeness of our English Stage, in Regard to Decorum, is very extraordinary. We act Murders to show our Intrepidity, and Adulteries to show our Gallantry: Both of them are frequent in our most taking Plays... (Tatler, 14-16 February)
COMMENT: Samuel Sandford was long famous in the title role of Porter’s The Villain (1662).

DOCUMENT. On this day the Queen gave an order in Council that the Attorney and Solicitor Generals should investigate the claims of the shareholders in Drury Lane and report on whether the silencing of Drury Lane and the licence to Collier had unfairly damaged their interests. Recorded in British Library Add. MS 20,726, fol. 24.

COMMENT: The report was not issued until 8 October 1711, by which time it was essentially irrelevant.

‡ THE FAIR QUAKER OF DEAL; or, The Humours of the Navy [Charles Shadwell]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. The Fair Quaker of Deal; or, The Humours of the Navy. A Comedy. As it is Acted at the Theater-Royal in Drury-Lane (London: James Knapton, Bernard Lintott, and Egbert Sanger, 1710). Publication “This Day” was advertised in the Daily Courant of 17 March. Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personæ: Flip—Leigh; Mizen—Pack; Worthy—Booth; Rovewell—Powell; Sir Cha. Pleasant—Bickerstaff; Cribidge—Elrington; Easie—Cory; Indent—Knapp; Scruple—Freeman // Arabella Zeal—Mrs Bradshaw; Dorcas Zeal—Mrs Santlow; Belinda—Mrs Moor; Jenny Private—Mrs Spillar; Jiltup—Mrs Hunt; Advocate—Mrs Finch; Maid—Mrs Shirburn [Sherburn]; Bar-Maid—Mrs Cox. The Prologue. The Epilogue Spoke by the Fair Quaker [Miss Santlow].

Preface: This Play was writ about three Years since, and put into the Hands of a famous Comedian [Colley Cibber?] belonging to the Hay-Market Play-House, who took care to beat down the Value of it, so much as to offer the Author to alter it, fit to appear on the Stage on Condition he might have half the Profits of the Third Day, and the Dedication intire, that is as much as to say, That it might pass for one of his, according to Custom. The Author not agreeing to this reasonable Proposal, it lay in his Hands till the beginning of this Winter, when Mr Booth read it, and lik’d it, and persuaded the Author, that with a little Alteration ‘twould please the Town. Indeed the Success of it has been wonderful: Notwithstanding the Tryal in Westminster-Hall, and the Rehearsal of the new Opera it has answer’d the ends of the Poet, and he hopes, that of the Town too.

I cannot omit mentioning the extraordinary Performances of Mrs Bradshaw, Mrs Santlow, Mr Pack, and Mr Leigh, who are the only People on the English Stage that could have acted those Parts so much to the Life. . . .

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS: Never Acted before. . . . Note, That the Tickets given out for this Day for the Play of Tamerlane, for the Benefit of Mr Cory and Mr Elrington, will be taken on Tuesday the 7th of March.

THE SCHOOL-BOY: Or, The Comical Rivals [Cibber]. Cast not advertised though Cibber presumably played Master Johnny (and see 13 February). (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. A Farce of two Acts only. . . . Boxes 5s. Pix 3s. First Gallery 2s. Upper Gallery 1s. Boxes upon the Stage 8s. Being oblig’d to begin exactly at 6 a Clock, by reason of the Practice.

COMMENT. This ad is both cryptic and incomplete. The ads of 28 February and 1 March give Almahide for this day. The School-Boy could not have been the principal entertainment of the evening. The reason for raised prices is not stated. The reference to a “Practice” is presumably to a rehearsal for Hydaspes, which was rehearsed publically on 6 March, advertised for 16 March, and finally given its première on 23 March.

THE SCORNFUL LADY (Written by Beaumont and Fletcher). Cast not advertised (but see 11 February). (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Ladies of Quality. . . . With several Select Scenes of Musick perform’d between the Acts by Signior Cavaliero Nicolini, Signior Valentini, and Signiora Margaretta.

COMMENT: The ad of the 18th announces The Stratagem for this day. The operatic entr’actes probably did not take place. A handbill to the following effect was printed on 17 March: It has been Publish’d in Yesterdays Daily Courant, and last Night in her Majesty’s Theatre at the Hay-Market, that to Morrow (being Saturday the 18th of March) will be presented there A Comedy, with several Select Scenes of Musick, to be perform’d between the Acts by Cavalier Nicolini, Signor Valentini, and Signora Margarita; which sort of Performance the said Cavalier Nicolini finding to be directly contrary to the Agreement made between him and Mr Owen Swiny, and that the same would prove a real Means to Vilifie and Prejudice the Opera. He doth hereby acquaint all Gentlemen and Ladies, that his Intention is strictly to observe the Tenor and Meaning of the said Agreement, that is to say, to Sing during the Winter Season only formal Operas, and to be always ready to please and serve them according to his Duty and usual Custom. THE TRAGEDY OF MACKBETH [Shakespeare adapted by Davenant]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. For the Benefit of Mrs Rogers. At the Desire of several Ladies of Quality.

COMMENT. What was almost undoubtedly the cast for this performance was published in a reprint of the Davenant version of Macbeth, “As it is now Acted at the Queen’s-Theatre” (London: Tonson and Phillips, 1710). Copy used: British Library 11763.cc.15. Dramatis Personae: King of Scotland [Duncan]—Keen; Malcolm—Cory; Donalbain—Bullock, Jun.; Lenox—Captain Griffin; Macbeth—Betterton; Banquo—Mills; Macduff—Wilks; Seyward—Husband; Seyton—Bickerstaffe; Banquo’s Son—Mrs B. Porter; 1 Murtherer—Fairbank; 2 Murtherer—Cross; Macbeth’s Lady—Mrs Knight; Macduff’s Lady—Mrs Rogers; Hecate—Mr Johnson. This cast cannot reflect the performance of 28 November 1709 since Mrs Barry was then advertised as Lady Macbeth. Nor can it be for the performance of 24 April 1710 since Betterton was dying by then.

Tuesday 21
DL

THE WOMAN CAPTAIN: or, The Usurer turn’d Soldier (Written by the late ingenious Mr Shadwell). Woman Captain [Mrs Gripe]—Mrs Bradshaw; Usurer [Gripe]—Norris. (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Ladies of Quality. . . . With a new Prologue and Epilogue. For the Benefit of Mr Knapp and Mr Miller.

COMMENT. The epilogue may be one “incomparably spoken by Mrs Knight” and published in the Female Tatler of 27-29 March. It is reprinted with discussion by Danchin (II, 463).

Tuesday 21
Queen’s

PYRRHUS AND DEMETRIUS [Swiney and Haym]. Cast not advertised (but Nicolini presumably took Pyrrhus, and see 27 October). (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Ladies of Quality. For the Benefit of Signior Cavaliiero Nicolini Grimaldi. . . . Being the last time of performing it this Season. With all the Scenes and other Decorations of the last new Opera of Almehide. The Boxes to be open’d to the Pit, and no Person to be admitted but by printed Tickets, which will be deliver’d this Morning at Mr White’s Chocolate-House, at St James’s Coffee-house in St James’s-street, and at the Playhouse by the Box-keepers, at half a Guinea each Ticket.

RECEIPTS: In a complaint to the Lord Chamberlain dated 18 May, Nicolini states that the face value of the benefit tickets for which he accounted to Swiney was £190 5s. 6d. (Coke Papers, no. 85).

Wednesday 22
SH

CONCERT. For the Benefit of Mr Cook and Mr Laurence. At Stationers-Hall, this Day . . . will be perform’d an extraordinary Consort of Vocal and Instrumental Musick, by the best Masters. With several Solo’s and Sonato’s, by Mr Dean and Mr Manship, and Signior Nicola’s Trumpet Tune by Mr Phillip’s: Also several Trumpet Sonato’s, with other Entertainments too long to be inserted here. All Friends are desir’d to be there betimes, by reason of the Length of the Entertainment. Price 2s. 6d. each Ticket, which may be had at the Hall. Beginning between 6 and 7 a Clock. (Daily Courant)

COMMENT. The authors of the Biographical Dictionary (XI, 283) identify “Signor Nicola” as Nicola Matteis.

Wednesday 22
St Alb

CONCERT. This performance may be deduced from the deferral notice, published in the Daily Courant on 14 March: “The Consort of Signior Giacomo Cortis [i.e., John Crouch] . . . is put off to Wednesday the 22d.”

COMMENT. Cortis is not entered under this name in the Biographical Dictionary.
Giacomo Courti was generally known as John Crouch in England.

‡ HYDASPES [Francesco Mancini, arranged by J. C. Pepusch]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

Songs in the new Opera, Call’d Hydaspes was issued by Walsh, Randall, and Hare and advertised in the Post Man on 30 May 1710 (see Hunter, no. 69). It comprised the overture and 40 songs. The Additionall Songs in the new Opera, Call’d Hydaspes (published on 27 January 1711) pertains to a revival the next season (see 22 November 1710).

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never perform’d before . . . a New Opera. By Subscription. The Scenes painted by Signor Marco Rizzi of Venice. The Boxes to be open’d to the Pit, and no Person to be admitted but by the Subscribers Tickets, which will be deliver’d this Morning at Mr White’s Chocolate-House in St James’s-street.

COMMENT. As with Almahide earlier this season, performance was entirely in Italian. The original libretto was by Giovanni Pietro Candi. Pepusch arranged music by Mancini that had been brought from Naples by Nicolini, who was paid £150 for it by contract (see 18 May).

Saturday 25

THE FAIR QUAKER OF DEAL;* or, The Humours of the Navy [Charles Shadwell]. Cast not advertised (but see 25 February). To which will be added THE WALKING STATUE;* or, The Devil in the Wine Cellar [Hill]. Cast not advertised (but see 9 January). (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the desire of Several Persons of Quality. For the Benefit of Mr Bois and Mr Wellar . . . we are oblig’d to Act the last New Comedy. . . . The French Peasant’s Dance by Miss Santlow. The Miller’s Dance by Mr Leigh and Mr Prince. The Scaramouch by Mr Layfield. The Italian Night Scene between a Scaramouch, a Harlequin, a Cooper and his Wife. The Tickets given out for the Northern Lass will be taken at this Play.

COMMENT. The Northern Lass was advertised for this day on 21 March and on 23 March with Mrs Santlow in the title role, but by the ad on the 24th the company had realized that it would be unable to mount the play at this time.

THE MISTAKE [Vanbrugh]. Cast not advertised (but see 11 February). With a Farce never Acted before, call’d, ‡ A BICKERSTAFF’S BURIAL;* or Work for the Upholders [Susanna Centlivre]. Cast not advertised (but see below). (Daily Courant)

FIRST EDITION. A Bickerstaff’s Burying; or, Work for the Upholders. A Farce; As it was Acted in the Theatre in the Hay-market [sic], by Her Majesty’s Sworn Servants. Written by Mrs Susanna Centlivre, Author of The Busie Body, and The Man’s Bewitch’d (London: Bernard Lintott, n.d. [1710]). Copy used: Readex. Dramatis Personæ: Mezro—Norris; Captain—Bickerstaff; Boatswain—Spiller; 1st Sailor—Pack; 2d Sailor—Miller; Lady Mezro—Mrs Knight; Isabinda—Mrs Cox; Lady—Mrs Kent; Officer—Carnaby; Servants—Mr Cole, &c.; Lucy—Mrs Spillar. An epilogue for this play was published in the British Apollo of 3-5 April and is reprinted by Danchin (II, 466).

[Dedication] To the Magnificent Company of Upholders, &c.: Custom has made some Things absolutely necessary, and these Sheets without a Dedication, or a Preface, by way of Excuse, would be an unpardonable Indecency: To avoid which, I was considering at whose Feet to lay these following Scenes. First I thought of offering it to all those young wives who had sold themselves for Money, and been inter’d with Misery, from the first Day of their Marriage; but supposing their chief Pleasure to consist in Pride, and that they had rather gratifie their Ambition in the Arms of a Fool, or Fourscore, than wed a Man of Sense of narrower Fortunes, I concluded ’em unworthy of my Notice. . . .

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. The Farce to be Acted before the Play, and no Money to be return’d after the Curtain’s drawn.

Monday 27
Queen’s
KING RICHARD THE 3D [Cibber adapting Shakespeare]. Cast not advertised (but the ad of 20 March specifies K. Henry—Wilks; K. Richard—Cibber // Queen—Mrs Porter; Lady Anne—Mrs Rogers, and all the other parts to the best Advantage). (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Ladies of Quality. For the Benefit of Mrs Porter.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. For the Benefit of Mrs Centlivre. . . . With several Entertainments express’d in the great Bills.

COMMENT. The use of the playwright’s name (rather than “Benefit the Author”) is March, 1710  *  SEASON 1709-1710  559

highly unusual at this date.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. In the British Apollo of 31 March-3 April appeared “An Ode Inscrib’d to Aaron Hill Esq; Upon his being appointed Governor of the Royal-Theater.” In seven gushy stanzas the anonymous poet lavishes praise on Hill, whom he terms an “Illustrious Genius” destined to “become the Darling of Mankind” by delighting the audience and reforming the stage.

COMMENT: As Hill was editor of the periodical, the disinterestedness of the rapture may be doubted.

Squire Nicodemus Somebody—Dogget. With a Comical Masque of Musick, call’d ROGER’S WEDDING [see below]. The part of Roger to be perform’d by Mr Dogget. (Daily Courant)
COMMENT. The Daily Courant of 8 and 10 April announced Hydaspes for this day. Roger’s Wedding is otherwise unknown, but we suspect that it was merely the comic subplot from Motteux and Eccles’ Acis and Galatea, which the company had performed regularly this season under that title. See 12 November and later dates.

THE SEA VOYAGE; or, A Common-Wealth of Women [Durfey, adapting Fletcher and Massinger]. Cast not advertised. To which will be added a Farce of one Act only, call’d, THE WALKING-STATUE [Hill]. Cast not advertised (but see 9 January). (Daily Courant)
ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. For the Benefit of Mrs Kent and Mrs Bickerstaffe. . . . With several Entertainments between the acts. A French Peasant and Chacoon by Miss Santlow. A Scaramouch by Mr Layfield. The Miller and his Wife by Mr Leigh and Mr Burkhead. And an Italian Night Scene by Mr Layfield and others.
COMMENT. The ad of 10 April announced that “The Tickets given out for Thursday the 13th will be taken on Wednesday the 12th.”
COMMENT. Mrs Bickerstaff is otherwise unknown. The advance ad of 10 April names only Mrs Kent, but those of 11 and 12 April both specify “Mrs” Bickerstaff as well—conceivably an error for Mr Bickerstaff, though he had received a benefit on 4 February. Or this could be a joke in reference to his disguise in The Walking-Statue.

THE MAIDS TRAGEDY [Beaumont and Fletcher]. Melantius—Betterton; Amintor—Wilks; Calianax—Pinkethman; Evadne—Mrs Barry, and all the other Parts to the best Advantage. (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Persons of Quality. For the Benefit of Mr Betterton... To which will be added Three Designs, Representing the Three Principal Actions of the Play, in Imitation of so many great Pieces of History Painting, where all the real Persons concern'd in those Actions will be Plac'd at proper distances in different Postures peculiar to the Passion of each Character. [The advance ad of 6 April adds: This has been often perform'd on the Theatres abroad, but never yet attempted on the English Stage.]

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. This was Betterton's last performance. Writing thirty years later, Cibber says: The last Part this great Master of his Profession acted was Melantius in the Maid's Tragedy, for his own Benefit; when being suddenly seiz'd by the Gout, he submitted, by extraordinary Applications, to have his Foot so far reliev'd that he might be able to walk on the Stage in a Slipper, rather than wholly disappoint his Auditors. He was observ'd that Day to have exerted a more than ordinary Spirit, and met with suitable Applause; but the unhappy Consequence of tampering with his distemper was, that it flew into his Head, and kill'd him in three Days (Apology, I, 117-118). Cibber's report is a bit melodramatic: Betterton did not actually die until 28 April. For the Tatler's eulogy, see 4 May.

FIRST EDITION. The Force of Friendship. A Tragedy. As it is Acted at The Queen’s Theatre in the Hay-market. By Her Majesty’s Servants. April, 1710  *  SEASON 1709-1710  563

Mills; Sebastian—Husband // Aspatia—Mrs Rogers; Julia—Mrs Porter. [Prompt notes in Folger MS D.b.62 add: Fantasio—Young Ray; Antonio—Ryan; Servant—Ford; Lucippe—Mrs Granger. The cast list in the manuscript shows that the part of Aspatia was originally intended for Mrs Oldfield: Rogers’ name replaces Oldfield’s in prompt notes in the latter part of the manuscript.] Prologue Design’d for Mr Betterton, Spoken by Mr Wilks. Epilogue Spoke by Mrs Bicknell.

To Her Grace the Dutchess of Shrewsbury [wife of the new Lord Chamberlain]:

Poems of this Sort as they ought to be Representations of the most exalted Worth and the most shining Images in Human Life, so they seem to claim the Protection only of the truly Great and virtuous, where indeed can expiring Tragedy hope for Countenance and Patronage but from those few, very few elegant Spirits who are pleas’d with the Distress of a well wrought Scene, who with the utmost Indulgence to their Reason, behold the Conduct of our Passions on the Stage, and with a generous sympathy feel alternate Joy and Pain, when Virtue either conquers, or is contending with adverse Fate. . . .

Preface: The two wisest as well as the greatest Commonwealths, that ever were, Athens and Rome, condescended to make their Poets their Pensioners . . . the Name of Poet was held sacred. . . . Tragedy degenerated into Farce and the Mimic Droll shoulder’d off the Buskin; if this can be any Proof of the Licentiousness of the Age we live in, it may be urg’d with some Force, when we see no Audience now can bear the Fatigue of two Hours good Sense tho’ Shakspear or Oatway [sic] endeavour to keep ‘em awake, without the promis’d Relief of the Stage-Coach, or some such solid After-lude, a few Lines indeed are now and then forced down their Throats by the Help of this Gewgaw, ‘tis tack’d to the Tragedy or rather the Tragedy to that, for ‘tis the Money Bill; the Actors may design it as a Desert, but they generally find the Palates of their Guests so vitiated that they make a Meal of Whipt Cream, and neglect the more substantial Food which was design’d for their Nourishment; methinks those Gentlemen who have the Management of the Theatres shou’d agree to banish everything that cou’d be thought the least below the Dignity of the Stage, but this I fear we can hardly hope to see while there are two Houses open—since as the General Taste now is, that which does not outmonster the other must starve; here are no publick Stipends for the Player or Poet, they must submit to the Taste of the Town, nay they are both oblig’d (while they are divided) servilely to emulate one another in that Submission, nor can we think of seeing any thing hereafter but Bombast and Farce in the Room of Nervous Sense of Sterling Wit . . . that Company which before was able to furnish out Performers for the best Tragedy have now by this Division so weaken’d the Body that the Town seems to have lost the Relish of that most worthy Entertainment of the Reason, Roscius [i.e., Betterton] indeed is no more, and Tragedy mourns with real Tears his Loss; That mighty Genius (let us call him so) for to become so perfect an Actor, a Man must have almost all the Qualifications of the greatest Author; he must have the most Exalted Soul, the Deepest Judgment, and the most lively Fancy . . . . Nature had indeed been very bountiful to Mr Betterton, and yet Art and Labour had improv’d him wonderfully, and he confessed but very lately, He was yet learning to be an Actor. If then an Actor is not to be made like an Artificer, by Seven Years Apprenticeship, and hardly two good ones arise in an Age, we ought to keep those few that are so together; there is no other way to Banish Posture-Masters, Foreign Monsters, Tub Scenes, &c from the Theatre . . . and make it become, as it certainly may be, both Ornamental and Useful to the Government. . . .

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. Never Acted before.

COMMENT. On the entangled early history of this play, see Edward Niles Hooker, “Charles Johnson’s The Force of Friendship and Love in a Chest: A Note on Tragi-Comedy and Licensing in 1710,” Studies in Philology, 34 (1937), 407-411. Hooker points out that a manuscript of this play is preserved in the Folger Library (MS D.b. 62) that served as both promptbook and licensing copy. Charles Killigrew’s licensing emendations are preserved in this MS, and his signed permission to perform the piece appears at the end on page 58, dated 11 April. Hooker also observes that as originally written The Force of Friendship was not a tragedy but a tragicomedy: the scenes printed separately as Love in a Chest (performed as an afterpiece with The Force of Friendship on 1 May) were originally interspersed with the serious scenes of what was printed as a tragedy. The cast list in the manuscript includes the principals from both works. Hooker presumes that the cominingled version was premièred as a single play on 20 April, failed, and was hastily divided into tragedy and farce for the second performance—which did not occur until 1 May on account of operas and benefits. Hooker further presumes that the play initially failed on account of critical objections to tragicomedy as a form. This is theoretically possible, but so far as we can see, not proveable. The separation of the farce scenes could have occurred at any time, and what was performed on 20 April could have been either the original tragicomedy or the shorter tragic version. Publication of the split version was advertised by Egbert Sanger in the Tatler of 11-13 May. Whether the combined text was ever performed as a single play cannot be determined with confidence. For discussion of the prompt notes in the Folger MS, see Langhans, Restoration Promptbooks, pp. 505-506.

COMMENT. Mrs Cross was not advertised again in London until 1715. For some account of her falling-out with the managers, see Milhous and Hume, “Theatrical Politics at Drury Lane: New Light on Letitia Cross, Jane Rogers, and Anne Oldfield,” Bulletin of Research in the Humanities, 85 (1982), 412-429. |
| Monday    | Queen’s | THE TRAGEDY OF MACBETH [Shakespeare adapted by Davenant]. | Cast not advertised (but see 27 December). (Daily Courant)
ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. For the Entertainment of the Four Indian Kings lately arriv’d in this Kingdom. For the Benefit of Mr Bowen.
COMMENT. A new epilogue spoken by Bowen on this occasion was specially published (Foxen E353) and is reprinted by Danchin (II, 470) and Bond (p. 4)—see below. On 20 April an advance ad announced The Old Batchelour for Bowen’s benefit, with the title role to be played by Betterton. Macbeth was substituted in the ads of 21 and 22 April. The 21 April ad specifies “That the Tickets deliver’d for the Old Batchelor, will be taken at this Play.” The only role known for Bowen in Macbeth is one of the witches.
CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Evidently working from an unidentified source, Genest (II, 451) reports: The Mob took care to attend in order to survey the swarthy Monarchs—the curtain was drawn, but in vain did the players attempt to perform—the Mob, who had possession of the upper gallery, declared that they came to see the Kings, “and since we have paid our money, the Kings we will have”—whereupon Wilks came forth, and assured them the Kings were in the front box—to this the Mob replied, they could not see them, and desired they might be placed in a more conspicuous point of view—“otherwise there shall be no play”—Wilks assured them he had nothing so much at heart as their happiness, and accordingly got four chairs, and placed the Kings on the stage, to the no small satisfaction of the Mob, with whom it is a maxim to have as much as possible for their money. [Genest comments further that Murphy relates this transaction inaccurately in the Gray’s Inn Journal, no. 74.]
COMMENT. The visit of the Indian kings is described and documented by Richmond P. Bond, Queen Anne’s American Kings (Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1952). The Kings’ names are specified in the Queen’s Theatre ad of 26 April: Tee Yee Need Ho Ga Ro, Emperor of the Six Nations; Sa Ga Qua Rash Tow, King of the Maquas; E Tow oh Kaom, King of the River Nation; On Nee Yeath Tow no Riow, King of Granahjoh-Hore. The names are variously spelt in Powell’s playbill for 1 May and other sources. |

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Steele devoted his current issue to cheerful mockery of rulebook critics: An Execrable Wretch—Was there ever such a Monster? . . . To lay the first Scene, says he, in St. James's Park, and the last in Northamptonshire! Is that all, says I? Then I suppose you have been at the Rehearsal of a Play this Morning. Been! says he, I have been at Northampton, in the Park, in a Lady's Bed-Chamber, in a Dining-Room, every where; . . . the Author has not observed a single Unity. . . . [A young lady objects:] I never knew a Play take that was written up to your Rules. . . . I laughed very heartily at the last New Comedy which you found so much Fault with. But Madam, says he, you ought not to have laughed; and I defy any one to show me a single Rule that you could laugh by. Ought not to laugh! says she: Pray who should hinder me. Madam, says he, there are such People in the World as Rapin, Dacier, and several others, that ought to have spoiled your Mirth. (Tatler, 27-29 April)

REPORT. Thomas Betterton's burial on this day occasioned a eulogy occupying the whole of Tatler 165, some key parts of which are as follows: Having received Notice, That the famous Actor Mr Betterton was to be interred this Evening in the Cloysters near Westminster-Abbey, I was resolved to walk thither, and see the last Office done to a Man whom I had always very much admired, and from whose action I had received more strong Impression of what is great and noble in Human Nature than from the Arguments of the most solid Philosophers, or the Descriptions of the most charming Poets I had ever read. . . . Such an Actor as Mr Betterton ought to be recorded with the same Respect as Roscius among the Romans. . . . I have hardly a Notion, that any Performer of Antiquity could surpass the Action of Mr Betterton in any of the Occasions in which he has appeared on our Stage. The wonderful Agony which he appeared in, when he examined the Circumstance of the Handkerchief in Othello; the Mixture of Love that intruded upon his Mind upon the most innocent Answers Desdemona makes, betrayed in his Gesture such a Variety and Vicissitude of Passions, as would admonish a Man to be afraid of his own Heart, and perfectly convince him, that it is to stab it, to admit that worst of Daggers, Jealousy. [Steele goes on to discuss Hotspur, Falstaff, and Macbeth]. . . . The Mention I have here made of Mr Betterton . . . can do him no Good; but it may possibly be of Service to the unhappy Woman he has left behind him, to have it known, that this great Tragedian was never in a Scene half so moving, as the Circumstances of his Affairs created at his Departure. His Wife, after the Cohabitation of Forty Years in the strictest Amity, has long pined away with a Sense of his Decay, as well in his Person. . . . Her Husband’s Death, added to her Age and Infirmitie, would certainly have determined her Life, but that the Greatness of her Distress has been her Relief, by a present Deprivation of her Senses. . . . This, I think, is a proper Occasion for exerting such heroic Generosity [as an unnamed benefactress is prepared to exercise]. (Tutler, 2-4 May)

COMMENT. The advance notice of 12 May in the Daily Courant adds: “with a new Farce, call’d The Twin Adventurers.” This title is otherwise unknown. Whether the play was ever performed is doubtful, and no play was published under this title. An ad in the Tatler of 9-11 May deferring this performance to the 17th calls the farce The Blandering Brothers, or, The Twin Adventures (see 11 May). Avery (I, 223) states erroneously that The Walking Statue was also in the 12 May advance ad.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. In response to a question as to whether theatres are “the Grand Nurseries of VICE” and whether the government “should not totally suppress these Seminaries of Wickedness,” an anonymous author [Aaron Hill?] offers a lengthy middle-of-the-road reply: They who would pass an impartial Judgment on the Playhouse must own, it is much reform’d to what it was, tho’ we heartily wish the Stage was much more reform’d. . . . As to the Reflection of meeting Loose Women there, ‘tis well known none need want them, where e’er they be if they will pay for them. . . . We highly applaud all who write against the Immoralities of the Stage or of any kind, but think some appear a little too Invidious against this, and shew more of Prejudice than Zeal for Morality. . . . Besides ‘tis notorious, that what chiefly takes the Town, are Opera’s and Farce, the first consisting in Shew and Musick, the last in Humor, Buffoonery, Whimsical Dances, &c. Tragedies have been most subject to daring Prophaness and Comedies to lewd Expressions, both of which are little in vogue now.

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Ladies of Quality . . . an Opera. . . . Being the last time of performing any Opera this Season, the Agreements with the Singers (for this Year) ending this Day.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Uffenbach reports: In the evening we went to the opera ‘Hidaspis’, which was being given for the last time, because it was summer, when the Lords for the most part reside in the Country. The opera house is in Haymarket, which is a large square. It is not at all large but is certainly very massive and handsomely built. The opera was very lovely in all respects, in composition, music and representation. I am sure that, as far as the first two items are concerned, nothing could be better, even in Italy. The singers were few in number, but all were excellent, especially the principal and the Director Nicolai [Nicolini], who has already been much admired in Venice but has greatly advanced himself here, because he earns prodigiously large sums of money. The best of the females is Margarite de l’Epine, who has also done very well for herself. The orchestra is so well composed that it could not be better. They are all foreigners, mostly Germans and then French, for the English are not much better musicians than the Dutch, and they are fairly bad. The conductor is Pepusch from Brandenburg, who is known everywhere for his amazingly elegant compositions. The scenery and properties had all been made expressly for the opera and were very fine, though not as costly as those in Italy; but the costumes were of the finest and the performances were in all things most natural and uncommonly elegant. In especial the representation of the lion with which Hidaspes has to fight was incomparably fine. The fellow who played him was not only wrapped in a lion-skin, but, moreover, nothing could be seen of his feet, which usually betray the fact that a man is hidden within. We were filled with surprise at the way in which the fellow could spring about so nimbly on the ground on all fours as well as on his hind legs. The singers expressed so well the emotions they must represent that I have never seen the like, above all Nicolini, who excels all actors in the world in this respect. (London in 1710, pp. 17-18)

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Uffenbach reports: In the evening we went to the play, 'Youman of Kent.' It was played in the same theatre where the opera was given, though the playhouse is in Drury Lane. But for some time there have been plays at both theatres, though opera was being given at the same time at the Haymarket. I must confess that I am greatly charmed with English plays and that the English represent the characters and emotions with a great deal of nature. The pronunciation or diction is also very good, and a foreigner, if he takes a book or a printed copy of the play with him and follows in it, can learn much about the English language. Because I learnt French in this manner in Strasburg, I did the same here with much profit. The play they gave today was tolerable, though we have seen better. (London in 1710, pp. 19-20)

THE FAIR QUAKER OF DEAL; or, The Humours of the Navy [Charles Shadwell]. Commodore Flip—Leigh; Beau Mizen—Pack // Arabella—Mrs Bradshaw; Fair Quaker [Dorcas Zeal]—Miss Santlow, (and see 25 February). (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. For the Benefit of Commodore Leigh and Coxen Burghhead. . . . With 6 several Entertainments of Comical Dancing between the Acts, as will be express'd in the Great Bills.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Uffenbach attended and reported in detail: In the evening we saw an extremely lively comedy: 'The Fair Quacker of Deal', an uncommonly curious play, in which English Quakers and Quakeresses are represented most naturally. The female who played the chief part, that of a Quaker, is a person well known throughout England, called Mistress Sandlow. She is universally admired for her beauty, matchless figure and the unusual elegance of her dancing and acting, and she is visited by those of the highest fashion in England. To my mind her looks must be very much gone off, though her style is still tolerable. She is certainly the best actress of this company. The comedy was played in Drury Lane. The theatre here is neither so large nor near as elegant as that in the Haymarket. Between every act they introduced several dances for variety, which is never done there. The above-mentioned actress danced charmingly as Harlequin, which suits her excellently and much pleases the English. They make such a to-do about her that her portrait in this costume is painted on snuff-boxes and frequently sold. After her a man appeared as Scaramouche, but he was far from being as elegant a dancer, though he excels in droll attitudes, leaping and contortions of the body, in which I never saw his equal. The most amazing of all was that he danced a 'Chique' with great agility on the tips of his toes with his feet turned entirely inwards, so that one cannot conceive how he was able to bend his feet thus backwards, stand on tiptoes, and spring about without straining his feet or breaking them at the ankle-joints. He jumped so high in the fair and with such frequency, alighting each time on his toes, that, when he suddenly collapsed, his feet were not to be seen; then he immediately sprang up again without putting his hands to the ground to help himself. That he further set one foot exactly before the other backwards, and placing himself flat on the ground, sprang up immediately with great nimbleness, is not so much out of the ordinary, and I have seen it done often. Finally a person with a horse, who was dressed as a mountebank or gipsy, came on to the stage and sang very well a long song, which was much clapped by the English; but we could not understand it, as it was not printed with the play.

THE LONDON CUCKOLDS [Ravenscroft]. Doodle—Johnson; Dashwell—Bowen; Wise-acre—Bullock; Ramble—Mills; Townley—Husband // Arbella—Mrs Bicknell; Eugenia—Mrs Porter; Peggy—Miss Willis. (Daily Courant)

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Uffenbach attended and commented: In the evening we went to the play, a most diverting and agreeable piece; called ‘London Cuckolds’. When this play is given, there are always prodigious crowds; it is not that everyone wishes to see how it is represented, as Molière says of the Archbishop of Paris and his Tartufe, although it happens often enough, but that everyone fits the cap to his neighbour and not to himself. (London in 1710, p. 38)

DOCUMENT. [In a letter written to William Collier this day Aaron Hill described the actors’ riot at Drury Lane on Friday 2 June prior to the performance. He reminds Collier that he had “taken away ye useless Power of ye seven managers.” Pack became “Manager of Rehearsals,” but abandoned the job “after a day or two.” Booth refused it, so Hill made his brother Gilbert deputy manager. This provoked open rebellion while Hill was away in Essex.] . . . ye News reach’d me, that They were all in an uproar, at being forfeited; that They had flung up Their Parts, refus’d to act, threaten’d to take ye Cloaths out of ye House, &c: I came up to Town immediately; found all This true. . . . Bickerstaff . . . had told Baggs he wou’d push my Brother off ye stage by ye shoulders & in short; that he had, with Keene endeav’our’d to disorder, & distract ye whole Company. These, & many Insolencies more . . . obliged me to suspend Mr Bickerstaff & Mr Keene. . . . [Bickerstaff] forc’d ye Printer to put his Name in ye Bills . . . [and] told me . . . he wou’d come behind ye scenes, & see who durst hinder him. Leigh . . . told me in publick defyance, that he wou’d not only be a manager when I was none, but wou’d go down & act with Pinkethman [at Greenwich], in spite of my Lord Chamberlain, or me either. Booth, with a Thousand Raskally Invectives against yourself & me, told me publickly . . . that Mr Bickerstaff shou’d act that night, & Mr Keene ye next, were it but in Contradiction to me. . . .

These Proceedings; & several anonymous Letters which inform’d me of designs upon ye House, ye Cloaths, &c, oblig’d me to send an order to Stockdale, not to open ye Doors that night, (last Fryday) till I sent him a Guard of Constables . . . accordingly he shut up ye doors, & about 4 a Clock I found Mr Baggs, (till then I cou’d not) come to ye office, I went in to direct him about ye Constables, & while my Brother & I stood talking with him, we heard Booth, Powel, Keene, & several others, breaking open ye great Doors within; (It seems Mrs Bradshaw had let ‘em in thro’ a private way, from her Lodgings) I made Mr Baggs open ye office window, & while I was calling, to know what They were at, The Doors were beaten open, & a Crowd, with Booth at their Head, burst into ye office upon me, with drawn swords in their Hands; with much ado I got out into ye open Passage had drawn my Sword, & while surrounded by a Crowd, some to prevent, & some to encrease ye Tumult, Powell had shorten’d his sword to stab me in ye Back, and has cut a Gentlemans Hand through, who prevented ye Thrust, Leigh in ye mean time, while my Brother was held, struck him a dangerous Blow on ye Head, with a stick, from behind. This was done in ye open face of ye day, amongst Numbers of men & women, who came to see ye Play.

As soon as I cou'd, I left 'em; & went directly to St. James's, in Hopes I might have met Mr Vice Chamberlain, but miss'd him there, & at Kensington twice since. . . . [When he returned to the theatre that night, he] found ye proper doorkeepers dismiss'd, & orders given, that neither my Brother, nor myself, nor any that belong'd to me shou'd have admission there. Bickerstaff, that night, acted, & They gave out Tomorrow, for ye last time of acting, till next season, contrary to ye pressing Desire of ye honest young Company, who are all confounded at their Proceedings, & stark mad to go on without em.

Mr Rich happen'd to pass by in ye first Tumult, & was huzza'd along ye Passage, had his Hands kis'd, & was saluted by Mr Leigh—God bless you, Master, see here! we are at work for you. . . . The Cloaths that are not gone already, are to be sent away tomorrow night, & Mr Rich is to be offer'd Possession of ye House, if he thinks fit to take it.

Now Sir, if such villanies as these must go unpunish'd farewell all Hopes of order in a Playhouse . . . unless Booth, Powel, & Leigh, are taken immediately into Custody, & silenc'd, your Interest in ye Playhouse will, from This Time forward, be worth not one shilling. . . . Tis already ye Talk, & amazement of ye other company, & ye whole Town. (Printed complete from Hill's holograph letter in the Coke Papers, no. 86.)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. For the Benefit of Miss Santlow and Mrs Moore. At the Desire of several Persons of Quality. . . . With the Harlequin Dance by Miss Santlow before the Play begins [the notice of 5 June adds: “being the first time of performing it this Season”]. The Italian Night Scene by Mr Layfield and others; and he will imitate the Horn, Huntsman, and Pack of Hounds, after the manner of the famous Mr Clinch of Barnet. And a new Epilogue to be spoken by Miss Santlow [apparently not extant].

COMMENT. This was the last performance by a “second” acting company in London until the opening of the third Lincoln’s Inn Fields in December 1714.

Thursday 8

REPORT. On this day Uffenbach attended an otherwise unrecorded performance by Winstanley: In the afternoon we visited Henry Winstanley’s Water Theatre. It is immediately behind St James Park and is an ordinary theatre, in which all kinds of water effects are represented. They all depend on the vat that stands in the middle, but the inner mechanism could not be seen. All kinds of tubes may be set on the vat, just as one pleases, and pulled towards the end of the theatre, while some fellow blows into them from above. In the vat they have put a tea-and coffee-pot, from the top of which water is tapped, as though it were springing up out of it. Above on the ceiling there were pulleys, to which a coffee-tray was fastened with ropes, so that it could be drawn hither and thither in the theatre and offered to the people of highest rank. Finally all the jets played on the stage, and that, with the glass candlesticks in which candles were burning, looked very well. The theatre is elegant, although it is only made of painted wood. (London in 1710, pp. 50-51)
Thursday 8

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT: Steele devoted a rather wandering essay to the pleasures of the theatre: The first of the present Stage are Wilks and Cibber, perfect Actors in their different Kinds. Wilks has a singular Talent in representing the Graces of Nature, Cibber the Deformity in the Affectation of them. Were I a Writer of Plays, I should never employ either of them in Parts which had not their Bent this Way. This is seen in the inimitable Strain and Run of good Humour which is kept up in the Character of Wild-air, and in the nice and delicate Abuse of Understanding in that of Sir Novelty. Cibber in another Light hits exquisitely the flat Civility of an affected Gentleman-Usher, and Wilks the easy Frankness of a Gentleman. . . . I have at present under my tutelage a young Poet, who, I design, shall entertain the Town the ensuing Winter. And as he does me the Honour to let me see his Comedy as he writes it, I shall endeavour to make the Parts fit the Genios of the several Actors, as exactly as their Habits can their Bodies: And because the Two I have mentioned are to perform the principal Parts, I have prevailed with the House to let the Careless Husband be acted on Tuesday next, that my young Author may have a View of a Play which is acted to Perfection, both by them and all concerned in it. . . . (Tatler, 6-8 June)

COMMENT: The identity of the young writer is uncertain. Bond reports Nichols' suggestion of Leonard Welsted (II, 490), but whether he and Steele were acquainted at this time is not known and Welsted did not have a play produced until 1726. John Loftis suggests that Steele was writing an oblique puff for his own Conscious Lovers, which was not completed and staged until 1722 (Steele at Drury Lane, p. 186).

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. The ingenious Mr Penkethman, the Comedian, has lately left here a Paper or Ticket, to which is affixed a small Silver Medal, which is to entitle the Bearer to see One and twenty Plays at his Theatre for a Guinea. Greenwich is the Place where, it seems, he has erected his House; and his Time of Action is to be so contrived, that it is to fall in with going and returning with the Tide. Besides, that the Bearer of this Ticket may carry down with him a particular Set of Company to the Play, striking off for each Person so introduced one of his Twenty one Times of Admittance. Tickets 5s. Seven a Clock precisely. (Tatler, 10-13 June)

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Uffenbach reported as follows: In the afternoon, hearing that a concert was to be given, which often happens, we sent out for tickets at a crown apiece. The famous Pepusch often gets up such a concert at the request of some noble lords. The orchestra was not very strong, consisting of no more than sixty persons, but it was incomparable. Signora Margarita de l'Epine sang, but she was by no means as pleasing as in the opera. This was doubtless owing to the fact that the hall was neither so large nor so resounding as the Opera House, and also partly that she rehearses more for the opera, while here she sang whatever was put before her and did not take much trouble. We were surprised that on a near view her face was uncommonly ugly, especially in complexion. She was the only person who sang. The instrumental music was extremely beautiful: Pepusch, who directs everything, and played the thorough-bass, excelled all the others. The violins too could scarce have been better. But most notable of all was a most charming concerto played with Pepusch by a flute and a viol di gamba. The person who plays the flute is a Frenchman called Paisible, whose equal is not to be found. Herr Gramm, who comes of a noble Lüneburg family and frequents our society and is an amateur of the flute, wished to take lessons of him, but he wanted three guineas for eighteen lessons, which frightened Herr Gramm off. My brother chose a violin master, a German called Scheyon [John Soyan?], who instructs him very well indeed for a guinea a month. The second man, who played the viol di gamba with such uncommon excellence, is an Italian called Signor Pietro [Chaboud], and he is under the patronage of the Duke of Ormond. He certainly achieves great wonders. When this concerto was finished, he wanted to play a solo on the flute traverse or flute d'Allemand, but the ladies did not want it, and as they left, the music came to an end, though it had only lasted for two hours. I could have listened the whole night with the greatest pleasure. (London in 1710, pp. 66-67)
are therefore to charge and require you immediately to dismiss and remove the said Powell from the Service of her Majesty's Company he having been formerly guilty of the like offences and that you suspend Barton Booth, Theophilus Keen, Jonathan Bickerstaff and Francis Lee from further acting. (LC 5/155, p. 11)

Comment: Suspension notwithstanding, all five actors were employed by Swiney's company the following season. Hill transferred to the opera.

SIR MARTIN MARR-ALL; or, The Feign'd Innocence [Dryden and Newcastle].

Sir Martin Marr-all—Bullock; Warner—Mills, and all the other parts to the best Advantage. (Daily Courant)

Comment: Uffenbach attended: In the evening we went to the play: 'S. Martin Mar all or the feign'd Innocence', by John Dryden, Esq. It is no more than a translation, with slight alterations, of Molière's L'Etourdy. The person who played l'Etourdy [i.e., Sir Martin—William Bullock] himself was quite incomparable. (London in 1710, p. 77)

(Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Ladies of Quality. For the Benefit of Mr Cibber. . . . With a new Epilogue (intended to be Humorous) Writ and Spoke by Mr Cibber, upon all Mankind’s being Actors on the Stage of the World.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. (1) Uffenbach attended: In the evening we were at the Queen’s Theatre in the Haymarket and saw: ‘Othello, Moor of Venice’, written by the immortal Shakespeare. It was a fine piece, and on that account had a large audience.
(London in 1710, p. 96) (2) An advance notice in the Tatler of 17-20 June reports “Discourse on the full House which is to be at Othello on Thursday, and the Curiosity they should go with to see Wilks play a Part so very different from what he had ever before appeared in, together with the Expectation that was raised in the gay part of the Town on that Occasion.” (3) Many years later Colley Cibber commented that Wilks “miscarried” in the part, being unsuited to its “exclamatory Rage or Jealousy” (Apology, II, 244).

COMMENT. The part of Othello had been vacated by Betterton’s death. It was soon to be taken over by Barton Booth. For the Tatler’s view of Wilks’ performance, see 26 July.

With one Act of a Comical Tragedy, call’d THE RIVAL QUEANS; with the Humours of Alexander the Great [Cibber]. Alexander—Cibber; Clytus—Estcourt; Roxana—Bullock, Sen.; Statira—Bullock, Jun., and all the rest to the most Ridiculous Advantage.
(Daily Courant)
ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Ladies of Quality. For the Benefit of Mrs Oldfield. . . . With three select Entertainments of Singing in Italian by Mr Holcombe. Being the first time of his performance on that Stage. Boxes 5s. Pit 3s. First Gallery 2s. Upper Gallery 1s.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. An advance puff for this performance appeared in the Tatler: . . . It seems the Play of Alexander is to be then turned into ridicule for its Bombast, and other false Ornaments in the Thought as well as the Language. The Bluster Alexander makes, is as much inconsistent with the Character of an Hero, as the Roughness of Clytus an Instance of the Sincerity of a bold artless soldier. . . . [A friend proposing to attend] was glad any one had taken upon him to depreciate such unnatural Fustian . . . The Character of that Prince indeed was . . . given to Intemperance; but in his sober Moments . . . he was a Pattern of generous thoughts and Dispositions . . . but instead of representing that Hero in the glorious character of Generosity and Chastity in his Treatment of the beauteous Family of Darius, he is drawn all along as a Monster of Lust or of Cruelty. . . . Such rude and indigestible Draughts of Things are the proper Objects of Ridicule and Contempt; and depreciating Alexander, as we have him drawn, is the only Way of restoring him to what he was in himself. It is well contrived of the Players to let this Part be followed by a true Picture of Life in the Comedy called, The Chances, wherein Don John and Constantia are acted to the utmost Perfection. There need not be a greater Instance of the Force of Action, than in many Incidents of this Play, where indifferent Passages, and such that conduce only to the Tacking of the Scenes together, are enlivened with such an agreeable Gesture and Behaviour, as apparently shows what a Play might be, though it is not wholly what a Play should be. (Tatler, 27-29 June)

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Uffenbach attended, commenting: In the evening we saw a comedy: 'The Changes' [sic].” (London in 1710, p. 110)

DOCUENT. On this day the Middlesex justices noted that they had issued an order to suppress a playhouse in Hampstead on 18 July 1709 under an act of 39 Elizabeth I relating to rogues and vagabonds. They have been informed that illegal plays and games have continued, and therefore order “that the said Statutes be forthwith put in operation” and that any actor who persists be apprehended and “committed to the house of Correction.” (Middlesex Court Session Books, GLRO, MJ/SBB/683, p. 47)

Tuesday 4

DOCUENT. A long letter in the Tatler, signed “J. Downes” but probably by Steele, satirizes Christopher Rich’s reported plan to operate a new company in the revamped Lincoln’s Inn Fields Theatre. A thinly-allegorized history of Rich’s management continues: … this cunning Person, to compleat his Company, bethought himself of calling in the most eminent Strollers from all parts of the Kingdom … but they are many of them Persons that never trod the Stage before, and so very awkward and ungainly, that it is impossible to believe the Audience will bear them. … The Actors having a great Mind to play The Tempest, [but] there is not a Man of them when he is to perform any Thing above Dumb Show is capable of acting with a good Grace so much as the Part of Trincalo. However, the Master persists in his Design, and is fitting up the old Storm. … The Play with which they design to open is, The Duke and no Duke, and they are so put to it, That the Master himself is to act the Conjurer, and they have no one for the General but honest George Powell. … I desire your Opinion, whether you think it advisable for me to undertake to prompt ‘em? For tho’ I can clash Swords when they represent a Battel, and have yet Lungs enough left to huzzaa their Victories, I question, if I should prompt ‘em right, whether they would act accordingly. … P.S. Sir, Since I writ this, I am credibly informed, That they design a New House in Lincoln’s-Inn-fields … to be ready by Michaelmas next [i.e., late October 1710]; which indeed is but repairing an Old one that has already failed. (Tatler, 4 July)

COMMENT. This is the first direct allusion of which we are aware to the “third” theatre in Lincoln’s Inn Fields, which was able to open in December 1714 after the accession of George I.

THE RIVAL QUEENS; with the Death of Alexander the Great [Lee]. At the desire of several Ladies Mr Powell will perform his Part of Alexander, it being the last time of his Acting at Greenwich this Season [but see 10 July and later]; Clytus—Elrington; Lysimachus—Thurmond, Jun.; Hephhestian—Bullock, Jun.; Cassander—Husband; Perdicas—Cory // Sysigambis—Mrs Powell; Statira—Mrs Spiller; Roxana—Mrs Kent. (Daily Courant, 4 July)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Ladies of Quality. … To which will be added the diverting Italian Night Scene [between a Scaramouch, a Harliquin, a Cowper, his Wife, and others], as it was perform’d at the Theatre-Royal with general Applause. Beginning exactly at Six.

COMMENT. Avery omitted this performance, believing that it was rescheduled for 6 July, when the Daily Courant ad again wrongly claims that Powell’s performance will be his last of the summer. But an extra performance this week is possible, and the misleading note about Powell may well have resulted from use of standing type. We cannot tell whether the performance announced for 5 July was given or deferred.

THE RECRUITING OFFICER [Farquhar]. Capt. Plume—Wilks; Lame Sergeant Kite—Estcourt // Silvia—Mrs Oldfield; and all the other parts to the best advantage. [The company added an unadvertised “satirical Interscenium”—see below.] (Daily Courant)

ADVERTISEMENT DETAILS. At the Desire of several Persons of Quality. For the Benefit of Mr Estcourt. . . . With several Comical Dialogues by Mr Dogget and Mr Leveridge. And other Entertainments of Ballad-Singing after the true English manner, Compos’d and perform’d by Mr Estcourt, in Honour of the Great and Glorious Successes of her Majesty over her proud French Foes.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Uffenbach reported: In the evening went to the play: ‘The Recruiting Officer’. This is one of the most elegant and diverting pieces and is very frequently played. On this occasion the actors represented a prodigiously satirical Interscenium, which was not to be found in the printed copy of the play. It is my habit to follow by this, so that I may better understand everything and improve my knowledge of the language, especially of the pronunciation. In this interlude a troop of soldiers came on, singing at the top of their voices an English song which had been made by the army in Flanders about the Duke of Marlborough. In it Prince Eugene is praised for his openhandedness, while Marlborough, on the other hand, is blamed for his avarice, so that every verse ended: ‘but Marlborough not a penny’. The people, who are very bitter against the whole family, even the Duke himself, laughed prodigiously and bandied about monstrous insults, although Marlborough’s daughter, the Duchess of Montaigu, was herself at the play and was so greatly shamed that she was covered with blushes. I protest that I was myself greatly angered at their insolence in heaping public opprobrium on so brave a General, above all in the Queens-Theatre, though it cannot be denied that he has made for himself a most evil reputation through his excessive avarice. When the song was at an end, there was such a clapping and yelling that the actors were unable to proceed for nearly a quarter of an hour. (London in 1710, pp. 138-139)

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT. Mr Mills the Player . . . with much Modesty acquainted me . . . that Hamlet was to be acted on Wednesday next for his Benefit. I had long wanted to speak with this Person, because I thought I could admonish him of many Things which would tend to his Improvement. In the General I observed to him, That tho’ Action was his Business, the Way to that Action was not to study Gesture, for the Behaviour would follow the Sentiments of the Mind. . . . He informed me, That Wilks was to act Hamlet. I desired him, to request of him in my Name, That he would wholly forget Mr Betterton; for that he failed in no Part of Othello, but where he had him in View. (Tatler, 20-22 July)
