Paper proposals due February 15th | www.outreach.psu.edu/cnf/rhetoric
The theme of this year’s conference will be “Rhetorics and Technologies.” Technological contexts have moved toward the center of disciplinary conversations and encouraged people to think expansively and sometimes untraditionally about their practices and perspectives. The conference will provide a vibrant forum for work in this increasingly important area.

Featured speakers will include Marilyn Cooper, Michigan Technological University; Johndan Johnson-Eilola, Clarkson University; M. Jimmie Killingsworth, Texas A&M University; David Kirkland, New York University; Carolyn Miller, North Carolina State University; James Porter, Michigan State University; Geoffrey Sirc, University of Minnesota; and Anne Wysocki, Michigan Technological University.

Proposals (500-word abstracts) will be accepted until February 15, 2007. Visit the conference Web site for details and online submission.
